Suspect Held in Slaying, Blood on Car Is Clue; Police Inquiry Ordered

A colored man, owner of an automobile which was found to be splattered with blood, was arrested last night in connection with the rape-murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23-year-old War Department clerk, whose nude body was found in a garage Monday morning.

The suspect now held for "investigation" at the Second Precinct Station, was caught in a round-up of men previously arrested in sex crimes.

Police said two windows in his automobile were smashed, and that the rear seat was stained with blood. He himself had a wound on his right index finger, and his nails had been pared down to the flesh. This last circumstance interested police because Miss Strieff had been viciously clawed by the man who abducted, raped and strangled her.

Five Others Questioned

The super-squad of detectives assigned to the murder questioned five other men during the night. One of them was picked up in an apartment in the 2000 block of Columbia Road Northwest, not far from the apartment in which Miss Strieff lived and from which she walked to her doom during a cloudburst Sunday afternoon.

The owner of the blood-stained automobile, it developed, was a man who, back in the days of prohibition, used to work as an informer for the police. His job was to make "buys" of bootleg liquor for use as evidence.

The man's automobile, an old, 4-door sedan, tallied with the description of an automobile used by a man with "a big package" who entered the Strieff murder case earlier in the day.

Seen Coming from Cellar

About 4 p. m. Sunday, an hour and three-quarters after the pretty amateur flier and bride-to-be, disappeared in a thunderstorm, the mysterious man was seen coming out of an apartment house cellar in an alley that connects Florida Avenue and Nineteenth Street.

Miss Strieff, police believe, may have used this alley as a short cut after she had purchased butter in a delicatessen store at 1810 Florida Avenue and started for her apartment house at 2110 Nineteenth Street Northwest.

If the attractive clerk did use this alley, her assailant might have seized her just as the storm caused a semiblackout, and have dragged her into the dungeon-like cellar of the apartment house.

Boy Sees Tall Man

Adrian Wiggins, 5, colored, of 1846 Vernon Street Northwest, was playing in the alley about 4 p. m. Sunday. He told a Washington Post reporter yesterday that he saw a tall colored man emerge from the cellar carrying "a big package" wrapped in newspapers.

A few minutes before, Adrian said, the mysterious man had driven into the alley from Nineteenth Street in a black sedan. He went into the cellar, Adrian said, and then came out a few minutes later with the bundle. Adrian said the bundle seemed very heavy. He said the man stuffed it into the sedan and then drove away.

Mrs. Haddie Wiggins, mother of the boy, who lives in the apartment house in question, recalled that Adrian had gone out into the alley to play after Sunday's thunderstorm. She said, "Adrian's a truthful boy. He doesn't make up stories."

Adrian said that the man was "a little bit" taller than the reporter—making him about 6 feet tall. The

'No Whitewash'

D. C. Heads Act Today to Weed Out Deadwood on Force

The Commissioners today will take steps to launch an extensive investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department — a probe described by Commissioner John Russell Young as designed to "weed out the deadwood and find out just what we lack in equipment and facilities."

Announcement of the inquiry came from both Commissioners Young and Melvin C. Hazen. They will meet this morning with Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz to name a special investigating group composed of police officials and local civic leaders.

"I can promise there will be no whitewash," said Young. "With the persons we intend to select, the investigation will cover the department from top to bottom."

Young emphasized that plans for the probe were made more than ten days ago and were prompted by neither the recent murder of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff nor reports of a contemplated Congressional inquiry.

"Even Brown himself (Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police) admits there is need for the investigation, especially within the detective bureau," Young declared.

Suggested for members of the special board of inquiry, from which five will be chosen, are Inspector Edward J. Kelly, Capt. John Fowler, James Colliflower, past president of the Board of Trade; Capt. Richard Mansfield, Capt. Clarence Talley, E. Barrett Prettyman, president of the District Bar Association, and Ringgold Hart, local attorney and former corporation counsel.

Inspector Kelly would head the committee under tentative plans. Commissioner Hazen suggested that the majority of the investigating group be composed of citizens to eliminate any chance of "whitewash talk."

Commissioner Young said he wanted the investigators to discover just what the department needs in

U. S. Asks Bethlehem Closed Shop

Mediation Board Calls on Shipbuilding Company to Sign With Metal Craftsmen

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday called on the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. to sign a closed shop agreement with A. F. of L. metal trades craftsmen in the San Francisco area and thus end a dispute which stopped work for almost a month on $300,000,000 of naval construction.

The board's public recommendation was also seen as a union face-saving means to pave the way for the speedy settlement of another stoppage in the San Francisco Bay area, that of 1,700 A. F. of L. and C. I. O. machinists who have been striking against the Bethlehem plant and 10 other shipbuilders since May 10.

Meantime, the Secretary of Labor yesterday laid in the board's lap the serious interunion dispute which threatens part of the power supply of the key Pittsburgh defense area.

No Strike Agreement Signed

The case was certified after the C. I. O. Utility Workers Organizing Committee voted to call a strike at the Duquesne Light Co.'s Colfax plant. The dispute involves the question of whether the C. I. O. union or an independent union is to represent employes at the plant. A C. I. O. union spokesman said his organization had issued the strike call after the independent group had rejected a proposal of Conciliation Service Director John R. Steelman to put the controversy before the Pennsylvania State labor relations board.

In still another development, the United Press reported from New Orleans that a two-year no-strike agreement had been signed for the entire Gulf Coast shipbuilding industry. The agreement, negotiated between labor unions and builders under Government supervision, is similar to the Pacific Coast master contract and to stabilization agreements applying to the Atlantic Coast and now awaiting formal ratification.

In the San Francisco labor situation, where the Bethlehem dispute has been considered the key issue, a labor spokesman yesterday told the Associated Press that the board's recommendations in the Bethlehem case made prospects for ending the machinists' strike "very much brighter, indeed."

Union Chief Hopeful

In a similar tone, Harvey W. Brown, national president of the A. F. of L. machinists union, expressed confidence work would be resumed shortly. Brown, who has classed the strike of the rebellious local as "outlaw" and vainly ordered the men back to work, was to address a mass meeting last night. He said that a secret vote on returning to work was to be taken.

The Mediation Board's proposal applied only to the Bethlehem phase of the confused and overlapping strikes. Specifically, it called on the

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 18.—Germany gained the signature of Britain's nonfighting ally, Turkey, to a ten-year friendship pact tonight, thereby assuring herself that the Turks will stay out of the Reich's battle with the British.

On the other hand, should German-Russian friendship turn into channels of enmity Germany can feel free of danger from an interfering Turkish attack on her southern flank.

Adolf Hitler's ace diplomat, Ambassador Franz von Papen, scored the new triumph, signing the pact at Ankara with Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, which binds each party to respect the other's territorial integrity and to take no direct or indirect measures aimed at the other.

No Bearing on Syrian Warfare

Just as Hitler suddenly came to terms with Russia on the eve of the war, thus removing the possibility of Poland's eastern neighbor causing trouble then, so Van Papen secured the pact which now permits the German army to pursue operations in the Middle East without worry of Turkish interference.

Authorized sources said they did not know, however, whether Russia had been told in advance of the new friendship between Germany and Turkey.

Authorized sources said the accord has no bearing on the warfare in Syria, adding the French are taking care of the British there to the satisfaction of Germany.

The treaty also says that nothing in it impairs the obligations which either party previously has contracted.

Besides agreeing to conduct their press and radio in accordance with the principles of mutual friendship, and to iron out all their differences in friendly negotiation, the Turks and the Germans decided upon close economic cooperation.

The two countries will enter into economic negotiations "utilizing the mutual experiences gained by the two countries during war," the announcement said.

Move to Increase Russian Fears

London, June 18. — British informed circles tonight viewed the new German-Turkish friendship pact as a move by Berlin to increase Russian fears of encirclement and said Germany accepted much less than she had hoped to gain by the treaty with Britain's non-belligerent ally.

The general view here was that Adolf Hitler had agreed to a mere stop-gap agreement with the Turks in order to impress the Soviet. Later, when and if Joseph Stalin is brought to terms, the idea would be to renew pressure on Ankara for further concessions.

British Pushed Back in Africa, 400 Tanks Reported Trapped

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 18.—The Axis powers declared today the British had suffered resounding defeat in their counter-offensive into Libya and that hundreds of American-made tanks were cut off and probably would be captured.

The American tanks, the Italians reported, made their first large scale appearance in a drive which the Italians said the British launched in hopes of scoring a "big success" to encourage the American entry into the war.

After three days of fierce fighting in the area around Salum and Fort Capuzzo, Italian sources said the British were crushed and one brigade said to be equipped with 400 to 500 tanks, largely American, was encircled in the desert with surrender the only apparent possibility.

(The German high command also announced full victory for the Axis. The British Middle East command at Cairo acknowledged its advance forces had been withdrawn after "accomplishing the object" of forcing the Germans to reveal their strength.)

Describing the battle as one of the war's major contests of mechanized forces, "and certainly the major one in colonial theaters," the Italian news agency Stefani asserted that the entire British Seventh Armored Division was "anhillated," and that not less than 200 British tanks were destroyed or captured.

Stefani said Axis combat planes brought down 31 British craft.

Almost daily attacks by German and Italian airplanes were destroying the fighting gear of the British at Tobruk, the Fascists added, while bombers, in attacking ships, were shortening the garrison's supplies, which must come by sea.

Besides the tank brigades, units of motor transport and infantry, were reported to have gone into action when the first divisions broke through the Axis lines.

The main attacking forces were first halted, then were counterattacked, Italian accounts explained,

Rumors Fly

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), June 19. Germany has issued an ultimatum demanding sweeping territorial and economic privileges of Russia, it was reported by a British news agency in a dispatch from Ankara today, and the agency added that other reports said the Germans already had launched an attack.

Reuters news agency quoted Martin Agronsky, National Broadcasting Co. representative in Ankara, as saying he had it from very reliable diplomatic sources that the German ultimatum is about to expire and is being considered in Moscow while Nazi and Soviet troops mass on the border.

The same agency also said it had received from Winston Burdett, Columbia Broadcasting System's representative in the Turkish capital, unconfirmed reports that the Nazis had attacked at 15 places, but correspondents in London with diplomatic contacts said this report had been in circulation for 17 hours without confirmation from any quarter in Europe.

Demands Given

Agronsky was quoted as saying Germany is asking the return of Bessarabia to Rumania, guarantees of delivery of large proportions of the Russian wheat yield from the Ukraine and other materials and free admission of German technicians and experts to take control of Russian transport and industry.

The C. B. S. representative said he also had heard, without confirmation, that Rumania had served an ultimatum on Russia demanding return of the lost province of Bessarabia.

In New York, C. B. S. said the report carried by Reuters was read to C. B. S. from Ankara by Burdett after his regular broadcast had been made and the reports later were broadcast on the C. B. S. hookup in the United States.

Burdett's Report

C. B. S. gave this version of Burdett's report:

"Various commercial radios here in Turkey today picked up unspecified and uncredited reports to the effect that Rumania had dispatched an ultimatum to Russia demanding the return of Bessarabia and that the German army had actually launched the attack against Russia at 15 points from the eastern frontier.

"As far as anyone in Turkey knows, these reports are not true

50% WPA Cut Here to Stand, Hunter Hints

Approximately 4,000 Would Lose Jobs; D. C. Heads Surprised

By Howard P. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

The 50 per cent slash in Washington's WPA personnel is justified and will stand as far as the Federal Government is concerned and some 4,000 workers who will be thrown out of jobs July 1 must seek other employment, it was indicated last night by Howard O. Hunter, national WPA commissioner.

Hunter charged in a statement that reports of the contemplated cut were "misrepresented" and were apparently based on a "confidential notice" to District WPA Administrator Paul Edwards.

He admitted, however, that his agency planned the drastic reduction and said Washington's quota of the curtailment was based on "improved employment and business conditions in the District."

Had Been Planned

Referring specifically to the District, Hunter added:

"This reduction in project employment is in line with the Administration's plan for the national employment of an average of 1,000,000 persons during the coming fiscal year on WPA projects. There is nothing sudden or startling in this, as such reduction has been contemplated in the President's message to Congress and the Bureau of the Budget."

In answer to contentions that the District would be overly burdened by accepting a 50 per cent cut while the Nation as a whole received only a 29 per cent reduction in WPA rolls, Hunter declared:

"The reduction in employment in the District is at a higher percentage than the national percentage for the very obvious reason

Defense Chiefs Discuss Jobs for Negro

Meet at White House; LaGuardia Predicts Solution of Problem

A committee of top defense officials drafted a program yesterday to put into force President Roosevelt's recent edict that discrimination against Negroes in defense industries must be stopped.

Meeting with the President at the White House, the group of top defense directors heard the Negro case presented by two spokesmen for their race—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

LaGuardia Predicts Solution

Attending the seminar on the problem with President Roosevelt were, in addition to Randolph and White, Secretary of War Stimson, Navy Secretary Knox, Production Directors Knudsen and Hillman and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, director of civilian defense.

LaGuardia, spokesman for the Government chiefs, said there "has been some discrimination in the employment of Negroes" on defense jobs and he said that the official group that discussed the situation yesterday would be able to find a solution.

Civil Defense Aides Named

He did not indicate what steps would be taken to instrument the President's order of last Sunday that more defense jobs be opened to members of the colored race.

A fine example of the kind of democracy the President is trying to achieve, said LaGuardia, was the fact that the representatives of large groups of Negroes sat down to discuss their problems in the White House yesterday around a table with the Chief Executive, and received

Acts to End Espionage Forced by Threats To Torture Relatives

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

In another move to combat the Fifth Column, the United States last night forebade immigration here of German subjects who might be forced to act as Nazi agents through fear of torture of relatives they leave at home.

A flat rejection was in store, meanwhile, for Germany's protest against the expulsion from the United States by July 10 of her consuls and certain propaganda agents.

In a move obviously aimed at Germany, the State Department instructed its officers abroad not to grant visas to residents of countries under the Nazi flag if the would-be immigrants leave behind in their homelands any close relatives.

Visas are to be denied to such refugees, it was ordered, if they have either children, a spouse, brothers or sisters remaining in "the old country."

Exception Allowed

The order was precipitated, officials said, by knowledge that the German government has obliged some refugees to the United States to act as Nazi agents through fear that their relatives in the homeland may suffer harm if they refuse the assignment.

The only exception made to the rule was that consuls may recommend "meritorious cases" to the State Department of visa applicants who still have relatives in Europe but whose entry here, in the consul's opinion, would not endanger American security.

The State Department pointed out that aliens who are refused entry here because they have relatives

Allied Forces Launch Attack On Damascus

Reported Ultimatum To City's Defenders Apparently Expired

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), June 19.—Reuters, British news agency, reported from Palestine that Allied troops now are attacking Damascus.

A military spokesman in Jerusalem made the announcement.

Allied troops had been reported steadily surrounding the Syrian capital amid fierce fighting.

An earlier report from Ankara, Turkey, said that the Free French troops fighting alongside the British had served an ultimatum on the French defenders demanding the capital's capitulation by 5:30 a. m. (10:30 p. m., Eastern standard time Wednesday).

Considerable Opposition

The indications were that the ultimatum had expired and the Allies attacked.

The attack was launched following the occupation of Mezze Airfield 4 miles west of the city.

The Allies are meeting with a "good deal of opposition," a spokesman said, but this had been expected.

The British and Free French were reported to have retaken Kuneitra and Ezraa, 40 miles southwest and south of Damascus, but the French held out at Merdjayoun, a Lebanese town just north of the Palestine frontier.

20 Miles from Beirut

To the west a fierce French counterattack at Djezzine was reported repulsed by the British with the loss of "many Vichy infantry and several armored cars."

Along the coastal road Allied troops were said to be still about 20 miles south of Beirut, Lebanese capital, after advancing five miles from Sidon.

Milk Depot Operator, on WPA, Unable to Buy 5-Cent Quarts

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

"Yes, sir, I sure would like to buy some of this myself."

As he spoke, Alonzo Winfield made an entry on a soiled file card and another customer was sent on his way with a quart of 5-cent milk.

Winfield, colored, has a wife and two children. WPA pays him $60, maybe a little more or less, a month to help operate one of the 11 depots which sell surplus milk to the needy. His station is in the abandoned firehouse near Wisconsin Avenue and M Street.

It was there that he was found yesterday, somewhat enviously selling bottles he'd like to buy himself. But Winfield can only dish it out. He can't take it.

As long as he holds a WPA job he must pay the full market price for milk, even if there were ten children in his family. Those are the rules. You've got to be either on public relief or awaiting assignment to a WPA pay roll before you can obtain the necessary yellow card which opens the door to 5-cent milk.

Business was slow at Winfield's stand yesterday. But no slower than usual. No. 11—that's the depot's number—sold only 2,888 nickel quarts all last month. This in spite of the fact that it is the only surplus milk dispensary west of Rock Creek.

When the file cards, on which the dates and amounts of purchases are recorded, were examined, it developed that virtually all the inactive ones are in the names of per-

Louis K. O.'s Conn In 2:58 of 13th; 50,000 See Bout

New York, June 18.—Joe Louis, on the losing side of his eighteenth heavyweight title defense for 12 rounds, suddenly pounded Billy Conn with a relentless barrage of lefts and rights to win by a knockout over the Pittsburgh challenger in 2 minutes 58 seconds of the thirteenth round tonight in New York.

An estimated crowd of more than 50,000 jammed the Polo Grounds and watched with amazement as the 174-pound former light-heavyweight champion had Louis in trouble and gave him a boxing lesson for the better part of the fight.

With the thirteenth round half over, Louis took over and for a minute and a half pounded the challenger who finally fell to the floor and feebly attempted to rise at the count of ten. He could not make it.

Italy Threatens to Apply Retaliatory Measures

U. S. Navy Air Arm, RAF Collaboration Reported Settled

Ottawa, June 18 (U.P.).—A report was current tonight in informed government circles that collaboration, which would mean close to 100 per cent protection for Atlantic shipping convoys, had been aranged between the Royal Air Force and the air arm of the United States Navy, with close coastal cooperation from Canada's air force.

A high air force official stated here today that the ability of air convoys operating from the American side and from British and Iceland bases to give complete daylight protection to Atlantic shipping was simply "a mathematical proposition," governed by the cruising ranges of British and American flying boats.

He added that substantial night protection could also be afforded by the two air forces.

(Navy officials in Washington last night said they had no comment on the report.)

Calls for Technicians

Britain Seeks U. S. Recruits To Man Secret Plane Locators

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Great Britain yesterday launched a Nation-wide recruiting drive in this country for unlimited thousands of skilled American volunteers to help win the battle of Britain in its new civilian technical corps.

Appeals for technicians to help operate England's new "secret weapon"—an airplane detector which promses to defeat night bombing—were made here, as it was disclosed that the new radio-locator is in use not only along Britain's shore line, but also in R. A. F. fighting planes and ships of the fleet to warn of approaching bombers or warships.

Air Commodore George C. Pirie, Air Attache of the British Embassy here, who announced the opening of recruiting offices in New York and sounded the call for volunteers, said the new weapon was already in satisfactory mass production in England and had been turned over to our Army and Navy.

Radio mechanics, either professional or amateur, are the greatest need of the British, but the call for volunteers also includes skilled engine fitters and metal workers, electrical technicians, instrument makers and repairers, machine tool setters and operators, motor mechanics and engine room repairmen.

Pirie said the device could detect approaching planes "many miles" off through fog or darkness. Germany has something similar but believed inferior, Pirie said.

Radio technicians accepted for the Civilian Technical Corps must be 18 to 50 years old. The pay is $24.12 a week for basic workers.

Knudsen Hints Further Cut In Auto Output

Defense Chief William S. Knudsen yesterday hinted that further reductions will follow the announced initial 20 per cent curtailment of auto production. At the same time, other OPM officials forecast a defense program which would mount to the staggering total of $100,000,000,000 before it was completed.

Knudsen's intimation of further auto cuts was made in answer to press conference questions. Knudsen emphasized that the curtailment recently ordered was an "initial" one.

He indicated, however, that the OPM did not favor an immediate 50 per cent reduction, as asked for last week by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson. The objection, he said, was the sudden and enforced idleness of large groups of workers. He added that he preferred to make the cuts gradually, meanwhile building up the size of the defense program in order to absorb labor displaced from civilian work.

Raw Materials Factor

He also admitted that strictures in critical raw materials would play an important role in determining the exact extent of the auto curtailment. Although present plans are for the industry to turn out 4,200,000 units, he said he believed that scarcity in alloys and nonferrous metals would make the total of actual production considerably smaller.

The forecasts of a $100,000,000,000 defense program were made by Robert L. Mehornay, chief of the OPM's defense contract service, and by Joseph L. Trecker, co-chief of the services subcontracting department.

Speaking before a "clinic" of OPM field officers, Mehornay said "you can find plenty of people in Washington who will tell you that the defense program is going to $100,000,000,000."

Hoarders Face Crackdown

On another defense front, Price Administrator Leon Henderson accompanied the announcement of amendments to maximum scrap iron and steel prices with a bald warning of an impending "crack down" on hoarders who are gambling on higher prices.

The ceiling prices announced, Henderson said, are high enough to give adequate compensation to all those in the scrap collection business, and, if there is no hoarding, to insure an adequate supply of scrap to support the present high steel production levels.

"Unfortunately," he added, "circulation of rumors to the effect that ceiling prices were to be raised by substantial amounts has caused some hoarding by both dealers and original suppliers of scrap. This office is engaged in securing names of such individuals and the tonnages which they are holding."

SERGT. PILOT JOHN MAGEE

Sergt. Pilot John Magee, 19, fresh out of a Canadian Royal Air Force School and bound for England, came home to say goodby to the family last night.

Young Magee, son of the Rev. John G. Magee, of St. John's Church, was very happy at having won his wings, more so at the prospect of flying a Spitfire—the ultimate dream of every British flier, he said—and the prospect of "a little action." He was interviewed at his home, 2118 Bancroft Place Northwest.

The youthful aviator has felt "restive" ever since the country in which he spent most of his life found itself at war. Having graduated from Rugby, famous English school, Magee had come to America and had won a scholarship to Yale University.

Then came September, 1939, and he "had to get into it."

Too young at 18 to qualify for the British Ambulance Corps, he packed up and left for Montreal. He was about to enlist in the Canadian army when he ran into some friends who persuaded him to join the air corps.

During the 190 hours of flying at aviation schools in Ottawa and elsewhere, the flier saw considerable excitement, but not always to the satisfaction of the air corps officials.

Once when he leveled off too soon and crashed, washing out both wings, they reprimanded him for "gross carelessness," Magee recalled.

Again there was dismay on the part of certain officers when he and five other Americans participated in a flying expedition at a low altitude in follow-the-leader fashion over the air ministry at Toronto. "There was so much noise the people in the city apparently thought the Germans were coming" the flier remarked.

But the official wrath was only temporary, it appears. The aviator last night exhibited a book bearing the pictures and biography of the exploits of all of Canada's World War flying immortals.

Given him by the commanding officer of his training squadron on his graduation, it bore the inscription: "Congratulations, Magee. May you be even greater than these."

under German rule may receive reconsideration of their applications if their relatives leave such areas.

The new ruling was expected to restrict sharply the number of refugees entering here from Germany. Numerous refugees, awaiting entry into this country in Lisbon and other European points, were expected to be seriously affected by the State Department ukase.

Hans Thomsen, German Charge d'Affaires, called at the State Department yesterday to present his country's protest against the ejection of consuls, and a few moments later Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles said that the Government was going ahead with its plans to remove the consular employes. This statement left no doubt that the German protest would be rejected.

Welles also made it clear, by implication, that the Germans will be shipped home and not allowed to filter into Latin American countries to carry on their work there, as happened during the World War.

Welles said that under present conditions the usual procedure was to request other belligerent governments for safe conduct of the ousted officials and to make suitable arrangements for their return home. He made it plain that the usual procedure would be followed in this case

Meanwhile there was speculation that other Western Hemisphere republics, especially Mexico, might copy the United States by ordering German consuls and recognized agents to leave.

The United States formally notified Latin American governments of the expulsion order against the consuls. The notification was considered tantamount to an invitation to these governments to follow suit

The German note of protest, though not made public, was said to protest the expulsion order on the grounds that it allegedly violated the German-American treaty of friendship and commerce of 1923.

The American reply, it was understood, would reiterate the charges made in the expulsion order that the consuls engaged in activities "wholly outside the scope of their legitimate duties," and would contend that their actions were violations of the consular treaty.

The United States expulsion order was directed against German employes of the German Library of Information in New York, the German Railway and Tourist Agencies and the Transocean News Service, as well as against German consular employes.

London, June 18 (AP).—War Secretary H. D. R. Margesson told the House of Commons today that 177,937 Italian officers and men were in British hands. In addition, he said, 68,010 native troops serving with the Italians have been captured.

Develops New Plane Locator

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ROBERT ALEXANDER WATSON WATT, 49, Scottish scientist, is credited with developing Britain's newly announced radio plane locator, a device which warns of approaching aircraft.

Alexandrian Helped to Develop Radiolocator

By the Associated Press

An American radio engineer, Cyril F. Elwell, of Alexandria, Va., played an important part in the development of the radiolocator which England is using to spot approaching Nazi bombers.

It was learned last night that the original idea came from an employe of a British company of which he was a member of the board of directors. The British government bought the employe's system, and began installing it before the war.

It involved the erection of a series of radio towers of an unusual type. Elwell designed and installed the first series of them extending northward along the British coast from Dover.

The President's Day

By International News Service

KISS THE DUTCH GOODBY: The President walked out on a complaint hearing of Negroes and national defense heads after a brief, warm-hearted, few-worded greeting, to have a final chat with the Dutch royal couple, Princess Julianna and Prince Consort Bernhard, and implant a goodby kiss on the cheek of the heiress to the Dutch throne. Mr. Roosevelt returned an hour later, found the conference still in session, and listened to the demands of the colored representatives that they be given an even-Steven opportunity to find employment in defense industries.

DISCRIMINATION AND DEFEAT: Mayor LaGuardia, civil defense chief and acting chairman of the complaint congress in the President's absence, told reporters that Negroes had been discriminated against by defense industry employers, would not be in the immediate future . . . Citing the conclave as an "example of democracy at work," LaGuardia praised the President's "patient, understanding listening." War Secretary Stimson, Navy Secretary Knox, OPMers Knudsen and Hillman, NYAer Aubrey Williams also sat around the table in the Cabinet office to thrash out the problem.

UNSCHEDULED: One unscheduled, unlisted conference member was Anna Rosenberg, who has shown up with increasing frequency at the White House recently, seen the President, swished out sans comment. Miss Rosenberg, reported to figure in the civil defense plans, is connected with the NYA.

WAITING: Mayor LaGuardia waited 20 minutes for the President yesterday morning because still-convalescent Mr. Roosevelt overslept.

MAIL AND MEN: After a conference with Wild Bill Donovan, Adviser Ben Cohen, Secretary of the Navy Knox, the President used what was left of the morning to polish off mail, shook hands with Moviemaker Darryl Zanuck, had lunch again with Justice Frank Murphy—presumably to discuss the Philippines and the possibility that Justice Murphy will return there as commissioner.

Corporations Warned On Excess Tax Returns

By the Associated Press

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, advised corporations yesterday that no further extensions of time would be given on the filing of excess profits tax returns for the calendar year 1940. These returns were due originally March 15.

Helvering added that except in "unusual circumstances," extensions also would not be granted for returns of corporations having fiscal years ending in 1941.

Helvering said in a statement that "this policy is based on the necessity, occasioned by the national emergency, of having excess profits tax returns filed without delay."

Both Halifax, Willkie Predict Allied Victory

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., June 18.—Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, said today that war, despite its "wreckage of human lives," was worth waging "provided you can preserve the roots of those things upon which all human life depends."

If those roots were cut, the diplomat told more than 1,000 Yale alumni at their annual luncheon, "there is no springtime, no recovery, no day of resurrection, but merely a long lapse back into utter darkness and blank despair."

The envoy and Wendell L. Willkie, both of whom received honorary doctor of laws degrees at the 240th commencement, each expressed confidence in an Allied victory.

The 1940 Republican Presidential candidate, urging that America be made a "great," disciplined, productive unit," told the alumni that "bayonets are not the solution of the relationship between capital and labor."

Based On U. S. Aid

Lord Halifax said his confidence in victory was based on the "overwhelming" aid America could give, and because:

"Everything in my soul tells me that it is impossible for those values that are now called in challenge to go down in the world before so foul and so vile a thing as Nazism has shown itself to be."

"All history teaches me that it is impossible for Hitler indefenitely to hold down 150,000,000 of sulky, revolting people who day by day hate more and more him and everything that he stands for."

Willkie, after his remark about solving capital-labor problems with bayonets, said "'we must find a more constructive solution than that.'"

"I am not interested," he continued, "in men attempting to make records as to the failure to produce certain of our basic materials. All liberals who love liberty should be struggling to produce aluminum instead of talking about each other's failure to do it."

Willkie, Halifax Lauded

At the commencement exercises the university hailed Lord Halifax as an envoy "of the state with whose security our American interests are indissolubly tied."

Willkie, who "though he did not win the election has won the hearts of the American people," was lauded by President Charles Seymour as "champion of free enterprise, courageous and independent in all affairs whether private or public, but subordinating every interest to the defense of the Nation."

To Robert E. Sherwood, the playwright and advocate of aid to Britain, went the honorory degree of doctor of letters, while President Kenneth C. M. Sills, of Bowdoin College was made a doctor of laws.

War Can Settle Much, Says Frankfurter

Cambridge, Mass., June 18 (AP).—Justice Felix Frankfurter, of the United States Supreme Court, held today that it is fallacious to believe that "war never settles anything."

Hitting at "paralyzing evasions of thought," he said in an address prepared for Radcliffe College's fifty-eighth commencement:

"The Civil War settled slavery. This war will settle the quality of your lives and your children's lives."

"I respect the convictions of a conscientious objector to war and I believe I understand the philosophy underlying Ghandi's nonresistance," he continued. "But the relentless choice events may force on every individual cannot be met by such a fair-sounding pernicious abstraction as that "war never settles anything."

Frankfurter said "another favorite drug for the mind" is the claim that a country at war is already under dictatorship.

"Democracy in this country has expanded despite four wars," he said.

"And only those unfamiliar with what has taken place in Great Britain since September, 1939, will deny that England is more democratic today than she has ever been.

"By that I mean very specifically that her present government is more responsive to the will of the common people, although to be sure that will has imposed self-restraints not required in times of peace.

"I recommend to any doubter of the alertness of British democracy a reading of the debates in the House of Commons since this war began."

Former Choir Singer Becomes Mrs. 'Sonny' Whitney No. 3

International News Service

Plymouth, Ohio, June 18.—The movies haven't a patch on Eleanor Searle, the pretty village choir singer who made good in the big city.

Today, amid the cross-roads simplicity of her old home-town, Miss Searle became the bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney, 42, scion of one of the richest and most socially prominent clans in the United States.

The young and pretty bride, a concert and radio soprano, worked from the middle of 1937 until the end of 1938 as a member of the general New York office staff of Pan-American Airways, which the bridegroom helped to found in 1927 and of whose board he is still chairman. During that time the new Mrs. Whitney also was studying voice with metropolitan teachers.

Without formal or previous announcement of any kind, the Whitney heir and Miss Searle were married today in Plymouth's First Lutheran Church, where the bride made her debut as a singer in the church choir.

Whitney's third bride is a pretty brunette in her late twenties.

Following the ceremony in the church which was founded by the bride's great grandfather, Felix Fenner, in 1840, the bride and bridegroom and the handful of guests drove to Mansfield, Ohio, to attend the wedding breakfast. It was held at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. George James Searle, jr.

The wedding guests included the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who is equally well known as Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, sculpturess.

LaGuardia Bars Civil Defense Registration

Mayor La Guardia, of New York, Director of Civilian Defense, showed disapproval yesterday of city-wide registrations of volunteer defense workers, such as has just been completed in the District.

"What would we do with all of them?" the stocky mayor asked after a call on President Roosevelt, when reporters asked him if he had plans for a Nation-wide registration of civilian workers.

La Guardia said he was trying to "stop" as many registrations as he could.

District Commissioner J. Russell Young, one of the heads of the District Defense Committee, said later that, in spite of La Guardia's views, the local unit would go ahead with its registration. Young said he thought that the registration here in the District, which produced thousands of volunteers, was valuable.

He pointed to the fact that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., were among the first to volunteer here.

When the Office of Civilian Defense wants volunteers for specific tasks, said LaGuardia, they can easily be found.

The Mayor said that Census figures provide an ample reservoir of specialized workers. Cross-indexed Census cards, giving the occupation of every individual in the United States, could be quickly run through a tabulating machine, he said, to select any needed number of workers for a particular task.

LaGuardia said that as far as he was concerned the registration such as conducted in the District, would not be extended to other cities.

The District was the first municipality to hold city-wide registration days under the new volunteer program.

In 1939 Grosjean married Miss Emlen Davies, daughter of Joseph E. Davis, and came to this country with her after the fall of Belgium. He took out his first papers and became a citizen of this country on June 4.

Selectees Give Tips for Gifts

Service men who attended the United Service Organizations party at the Service Men's Club, 606 E Street Northwest, last Saturday, have passed on a few suggestions to Washingtonians who would like to make life more comfortable for the boys in uniform, Salvation Army officials announced yesterday.

In the first place, the selectees would like to receive at least one letter a week from each person at home. Secondly, an occasional gift of handkerchiefs and socks would be most welcome, as laundry in the military cantonments is sometimes a complex thing. Thirdly, stamps make an excellent gift, for even such small items as these cut deeply into that $21 a month. Then, Washington newspapers are a source of unending joy to the soldier who likes to keep in contact with local news. And, finally, the soldier would like some small but different package each week: i. e.—razor blades, tobacco, soap, and other little items which will be liked and appreciated.

The pace of the Washington campaign for United Service Organizations has stepped up considerably since the first report luncheon, Tuesday, which revealed that approximately $50,000 of the $250,000 goal has been raised so far. The campaign opened June 3, and will close July 3.

Committeemen Agree on Corporate Tax Increase

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday completed groundwork for compromise income and excess profits tax schedules that would meet Treasury demands for revenue by revised methods and rates.

No votes have been taken on either plan, but the committee was in agreement in principle on a $1,255,000,000 increase in corporate taxes, bulk of which would come from increased excess profits taxes proposed by its own tax experts.

Likewise ready for final action, were compromise individual income surtax schedules. The Treasury's individual income tax plan starting drastic surtax rates at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income has been completely sidetracked. Favored compromise schedules pending would start surtaxes at 6 or 7 per cent and graduate them less heavily on the lower and middle brackets.

Volunteer Bureau Signs Up Fifty Members of Press

The first flying squadron of registrars from the Central Volunteer Bureau of the District Defense Council dropped in at the Newspaper Women's Club at 1604 Twentieth Street Northwest yesterday and signed more than 50 members of the press.

When the city-wide registration ended last Thursday night officials of the Volunteer Headquarters announced that arrangements would be made for registrars to visit all groups requesting them.

Tonight civilian defense registrars will visit the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest, to enroll members of the Jewish Appeal at their victory banquet.

Approximately 250 persons have visited Volunteer Headquarters at Sixth and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest daily since the closing of the city-wide registration.

Soviet's War On Religion Told at Trial

Soviet "hatred" of Christianity was analyzed in the District Court yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, of Georgetown University, as part of the Government's evidence against three alleged Russian agents on trial for criminal conspiracy.

Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Parker said he expected that this afternoon he would conclude prosecution evidence that three officials of Bookniga Corporation in New York were really agents of a propaganda machine controlled from the Kremlin.

Father Walsh said "Soviet anti-religious persecutions are limited only by the ingenuity of the human mind when inflamed by hatred and bent on destruction." The priest said he spent several years in Russia and saw clerics tortured and condemned to death.

The Goverment claims tons of such propaganda were imported for more than 10 years by a string of corporations which were mere camouflage for Mezhniga, the official Soviet publishing agency in Moscow.

Special Agent Claude Lee of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, testified yesterday that the FBI began to look into Bookniga Corporation on March 18, 1929, at the request of the State Department.

Prosecutor Parker produced documents which showed that Bookniga Corporation began to dissolve six days later and by April 6 had ceased to exist. However, he charged, its propaganda mission, its telephone number and its employes were quietly taken over by Bookniga, Inc.

The three defendants, Morris Liskin, Bookniga president; Norman Weinberg, secretary, and Raphael Rush, vice president, were declared to have signed the dissolution papers.

Body of Canoe Victim Recovered From River

Harbor police yesterday recovered from the Potomac River near the Three Sisters Islands the body of Gerald Gregg, 24, of Langhorne, Pa., who was drowned Sunday while canoeing.

Gregg and a companion, Miss Frances Buck, 22, of 2902 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest, were paddling in the Upper Potomac when their craft upset. Miss Buck clung to the overturned boat and was rescued.

Harrison's Condition Continues Serious

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, last night was in serious condition at Emergency Hospital but was "resting as comfortably as could be expected." The Mississippian has been in the hospital the last four days, following an operation for an intestinal obstruction.

Patterson Urges Draft Property Bill's Passage

Assistant Secretary of War Patterson yesterday called on Congress to give the President power to draft materials as well as men, declaring the need to procure arms for troops in the field "is as urgent as if we were in war."

Patterson faced a round of criticism of the War Department's "draft property" bill before the Senate Military Affairs Committee. He said he held no brief for the present broad language of the bill but warned committeemen not to "limit too much."

"We are drafting men into the service," he said. "Are we to refuse to draft materials into the service? If one who owns a rifle, an airplane or a machine tool essential to our defense says that he would rather keep it for his own use than to receive the value of it, is his personal preference to override the Nation's need?"

Stalemated in the House Military Affairs Committee, the bill granting President Roosevelt plenary power to requisition facilities, raw materials and machines needed in defense ran a gantlet of criticism in the Senate group from Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, and others.

Downey charged the measure would destroy many small concerns in his State and called it "a long step toward military dictatorship."

Senator Kilgore (Democrat), of West Virginia, said he feared a monopoly of machine tools might be given to large corporations under the bill, pointing out that property requisitioned from one individual could be given to another.

Patterson recalled that critics of the lend-lease bill similarly charged the President would give away the entire Navy.

Following Patterson was a witness, James A. Emery, counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, opposed the bill in its present form and suggested that items to be requisitioned be particularized in the measure. He charged no comparable broad grant of authority has been given before "even when this Nation was in war."

Patterson cited recommendations by Bernard Baruch, who directed the industrial effort in the World War. In his book, "American Industry in the War," he quoted Baruch as saying the President should be given power "to commandeer in time of war any manufacturing facility or any supplies deemed by him to be necessary to the successful conduct of war."

"If the country were engaged in war," Patterson said, "the case for this bill would be plain that all in favor of vigorous prosecution of the war would support it."

He said in the World War there were 17 different requisition statutes, and urged enactment of a single broad statute before conditions become acute to avoid delays.

"The United States is in peril from the aggressive designs of the Axis powers," Patterson said. "The peril being what it is, no time should be lost, no effort spared in equipping our armed forces. . . . We have not depended on the volunteer system to recruit our Army."

Navy Issues Stand-by Orders To Reservists

The Navy yesterday issued "stand-by" orders to all reservists not heretofore called into active service and at the same time the recruiting service set out to enlist from 12,000 to 15,000 men a month instead of the present 8,000.

The Navy also announced that the Naval Air Station on Morgan and Tucker Islands, Bermuda, will be commissioned July 1 under command of Lieut. Comdr. R. F. Hickey. The new air base at Argentia, Newfoundland, will be commissioned July 15, under command of Commander Gail Morgan.

A total of 6,548 reserve officers and 14,313 reserve enlisted men are not yet in active service, it was said. Merchant marine naval reserve officers, who heretofore have been called on a voluntary basis, are now subject to call without their consent, it was said.

Zamzam Survivor Describes Transfer to Nazi Supply Ship

Passengers Spent Trying Days on Raider

The first account of life aboard a German raider by a survivor of a Nazi-sunk ship is recorded in the letters of James P. McKnight, of Allentown, Pa., a representative of the United Presbyterian Church, to his family. Mr. McKnight was aboard the Egyptian motorship Zamzam when it was attacked in the South Atlantic on April 17. In excerpts from his letters published yesterday Mr. McKnight described the sinking of the Zamzam and life aboard the raider. Today he tells of meeting the raider's supply ship and of the transfer of the survivors at sea.

By James P. McKnight

About 10:30 I suppose I slept, and slept soundly, until suddenly there was an electric gong sounding alarm. I sat straight up in bed and saw the armed guard standing in the one exit. When the alarm ceased, he closed an iron door and bolted it on the outside. All over the boat we heard running and noises, as if dragging guns into position on deck. Stanley Johnson finally got to talk to the guard and said it was an alarm and we had best be prepared.

Our thoughts were not very comforting, 218 persons locked in a hold below the water line and boat perhaps going into action. Soon the guard came again and said he was detailed to stand by the door with the key and would unlock us in case of emergency. We need not fear being trapped. Also lifebelts would be given out at the door to all who did not have one. A boat had been sighted. They thought it the boat they wanted to contact, but they must be on the alert until they made sure. Within an hour they reported again that it was their boat. At last we filed up and, to our surprise, off over our stern rode a big ship.

Before noon lunch was had again, and right afterward transfer of passengers began. First, three badly wounded persons wrapped in blankets and canvas and roped were moved. Three others more seriously wounded would have to remain on the raider. Then the women and children and their fathers, then the men, I was among the last. The sea was still smooth and the transfer was easy, stairways being used on both boats.

On board the new boat we were ushered across deck and right down a new wooden stairway one flight to a hold. Here was still more of an impression of a prison—a hold 51 by 51 by 8 feet. No bench or table, just some mattresses on the floor. Early afternoon, hot, and all kept here.

Then came the captain, Capt. Yager, and greeted us nicely in English and said we could go on deck if we sat on the hatch out of the way, for his men had lots of work to do. The crew brought out several bales of cotton and mattress bags made of unbleached muslin. And we all set to work making pads to sleep on, for the mattresses were not half enough. We fluffed the cotton by hand and made pads, which we added to day by day. At 4:30, Zamzam stewards came carrying dishpans of thick soup, brown bread, tea kettles of tea, porcelain bowls and aluminum cups. This we had in the hold, and fifteen minutes after sundown we were sent below and were not allowed up till fifteen minutes before sun-up.

Now began a new life and everything was routine. We rushed up at first opportunity, tired of 12 hours in the hold. We got 1½ pints of fresh water in a bucket for washing. Breakfast at 7—two dippers of gruel made up of starch. It looked like wallpaper and was known as paste. It contained a little sugar and I ate it without difficulty, but few did. With the gruel, two heavy slices of brown bread and a pint of tea. Lunch at 12:30 and supper at 4:30. Each kept and washed in salt water his own bowl, cup and spoon. We ate on deck or hatch, picnic fashion, three times a day.

That Saturday I got a needle and thread and sewed up my pajamas and trouser leg, which had been showing my knee for two days. There were things to fill in each day of which I have kept no record and of which I have only a hazy memory. Saturday afternoon there was a service on rear deck in which the ladies were allowed to join. They were reported to have good cabins, although they were crowded nine to a room and many in the lounge.

Every day a few were allowed to go to the baggage room to bring back a few much needed things. I thought of my nice clothes, cookies, life savers, books and toilet kit waiting my turn, which did not come 'til Wednesday, six days after the catastrophe. And then not an item of mine was to be found. My throat filled up and tears stood in my eyes. But it was no use. One shirt, one trouser, pajamas and one pair of socks and one hat were all my possessions; also my watch, which stopped two days after its wetting; two pocket knives, my wallet, with a tiny picture of my Minnie.

Every evening, as soon as we were ordered below, Mr. (Charles J. V.) Murphy, who was our committee chairman, would talk and we'd take up business and plans for living. Murphy thought that so much baggage was brought on the raider that the officials decided that we could do with less, and sometimes they were unable to get any baggage off and so they just kept a part of the lot for future needs. Anyway, he made a list of the destitute ones and those who turned in things. Then I received one set of underwear, two pairs of socks, one shirt, one trouser, and Dr. Smith gave me a polo short and another sweater. My towel was marked "Bremen." I still had no comb, razor or toothbrush, and there was no hope of getting them.

Capt. Yager appeared on deck each day and talked quite informally. The Egyptian crew occupied a hold like ours and they had one side of the deck and we the other. The captain announced that he would empty a little room at the front on both sides for each group. Also a bath would be built for showers. Latrines, too, were built on deck. And finally a swimming pool was built for us.

On one of his first visits he said we had to wait three or four days to meet the raider again. Those passed and he said we had to wait three or four days to meet the raider and then we would be off. Every day we sailed a bit and tied up, every night the same, and we went in all directions. We boarded this ship Friday, April 18, and by the end of the next week we had indications that a meeting with the raider was imminent. We prayed it wouldn't be at night and that the alarm might be avoided.

Thursday or Friday, the 24th or 25th, we prepared a petition signed by all Americans addressed to the two captains, asking to be transferred to a neutral boat or to be taken to an East African or South American port. Saturday morning, April 26, those who rushed up first were ordered below again. Then the order was "All up and wash and get below again," and lo, ahead of us was the raider again.

Each of the injured on the raider was allowed a visitor, and the captain had Murphy over for a conference. By this time everybody was jittery about being carried through the British blockade, about the difficulty of getting home from Europe, about concentration camp if the United States came into the war. But we had little hope for our petition.

Murphy returned in the late afternoon and called us together. "Good news and bad news," he said. We would head north, get in the trade lanes to try to contact an American, Japanese or Spanish boat to which we could be transferred, and failing that we would go to a truly neutral port and not through the blockade. The sad part was that British passengers of military age would be held prisoners. There turned out to be three with no claim to exemption and Capt. Smith and Chief Engineer Burns. That evening we headed north and on the following Saturday, May 3, everybody was speculating again, as no boats had been contacted. On Monday it was rumored and confirmed that the captain, visiting an injured lady, had admitted the Canary Islands as our destination and "within a fortnight." We think it might be done by May 10, or any time in that week, and we are impatient now (May 8).

We know that we go in constant danger and that we can do nothing. So we have been developing our faith in God. He has been very near, "a very present help in trouble." We read our Bible and pray together. I have begun committing Scripture as I cannot read books.

We have rediscovered many strength-giving promises. God has given grace and strength. I can truly say "I do not fear death" if it comes. But I hope it won't now and this way.

Tomorrow Mr. McKnight tells how the survivors organized a committee to seek concessions and privileges from the Nazi raider's supply ship during their 37 days at sea.

50% WPA Slash in District To Stand, Hunter Indicates that the increase in private business and industry is one of the major factors taken into account in allocating WPA jobs."

Young Disagrees

He continued:

"There certainly is little or no question but that employment and business conditions in the District of Columbia are very near the top in the Nation."

Still fearful, however, that District budget estimates already in the hands of Congress would be wrecked if the city is forced to accept the Federal edict, Commissioner John Russell Young disagreed with Hunter.

"Those persons who will lose jobs," he said, "face starvation. There are no positions for them in local defense programs and we have no industries here."

Young emphasized that the type of persons employed in WPA projects here are not equipped for national defense work and cannot get Government jobs. Many of them are old and some can do nothing but manual labor work, he added.

Concern in Congress

Further, Young declared, those classified as employable are not eligible for direct relief under District laws.

He said both Appropriation Committees of Congress had expressed grave concern over the situation and had asked him for suggestions as to a remedy.

Young said the Commissioners would postpone definite action until "officially" notified of the planned reduction by Federal WPA authorities.

All three Commissioners agree that if Federal plans go through, extensive changes in local budget estimates must be made because the city heads had counted on full asistance from WPA in certain projects.

Two Sought for Attack Attempt In Prince Georges

Two men were sought last night for questioning by Prince Georges County police in connection with a reported attempted criminal attack on a 20-year-old West Virginia girl.

The victim, who had been visiting friends here, was taken to Casualty Hospital early yesterday after she was found badly bruised and on the verge of hysteria in a wooded section surrounding the Prince Georges County Gas Corporation.

A guard and a station attendant, Steve Ager and Michael Giltrud, discovered the girl attempting to climb a barbed wire fence. She was hatless and shoeless.

At the hospital she told police she had hailed a cab near her home to go to Union Station. The driver took her to Sergeant and Chillum Roads near Queens Chapel Airport, where he was joined by another man, she said, and when the latter man attempted to attack her, she broke away and fled through the woods.

Kiwanis to Open Franconia Boys Camp Monday

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will open its summer camp for underprivileged children at Franconia, Va., Monday, when the first of four groups of boys will begin a two-week vacation, Chairman Charles Leef announced yesterday. Each group will include 19 youngsters, with 76 boys scheduled to be the club's guests over the summer season.

During the time the boys are in camp, they will be subject to regular physical examinations by physician members of the Kiwanis Club, and permanent records will be made to show any health gains, Leef said.

Boys attending the camp, Leef said, include those who otherwise would be afforded no form of vacation away from the city during the summer.

company to sign a "master contract" negotiated this spring between labor unions and shipbuilding companies on the West Coast and signed by 38 out of the 39 shipyards. Bethlehem was the only holdout, consistently refusing on the sole ground that the master contract called for the closed shop.

Bethlehem's failure to sign the contract led to the strike of the metal trades craftsmen at the same time that the machinists also struck at Bethlehem and ten other yards.

The Bethlehem case was certified to the board early in June. Shortly afterward, at the board's request, the metal trades council instructed its members to return to work. All but the machinists complied.

Conferences between union and company representatives before the board failed to result in agreement, but Board Chairman Clarence A. Dykstra declared yesterday he "assumed" both sides would accept the board's public recommendations. Company officials, apprised of the proposal in New York, declined comment.

In another case before the board, involving the Martin Rockwell Corporation, of Plainfield, Conn., the board yesterday recommended arbitration of the wage dispute which was the principal issue of a two-week strike called by C. I. O. United Auto Workers. It was learned that the union has accepted the recommendation to arbitrate while the company has asked that it be given until Monday to make its decision.

The union demands a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. The company has offered 10 cents an hour for the 950 men employed at the plant, but only 6 cents for the 150 women workers.

The company manufactures ball bearings for airplanes and propellers.

Another Mediation Board panel yesterday began consideration of the dispute between the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee and the Curtiss-Wright Corporation's propeller division.

The union had threatened a strike at the company's Neville Island, Pa., plant, but deferred action pending board negotiations. Issues in the dispute are union status, reclassification of jobs and wages.

The panel is comprised of Walter Stacy, representing the public; Eugene Meyer, representing employers, and Thomas J. Kennedy, representing labor.

Still another group of Mediation Board members continued conferences with C. I. O.-U. A. W. and management representatives of the North American Aviation Co.

The company's Inglewood, Calif., plant, still under Army occupation, was reported yesterday back to normal, turning out 10 planes a day. Meantime, 1,800 of the 4,000 troops which occupied the plant following a bitter strike two weeks ago, have been withdrawn.

British Quit Libya With Many Prisoners

By the United Press

Cairo, June 18.—Britain's North African army fell back today from a three-day desert blitzkrieg of tanks and planes in which the main objectives were reported achieved, several hundred German prisoners captured and great numbers of enemy tanks, guns and aircraft destroyed.

Imperial forces stabing across the Egyptian frontier into Libya withdrew to normal posts along the border after repulsing repeated attacks by Panzer units, thwarting maneuvers to trap British forward units and inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

[International News Service said a great battle was still raging east of Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass. Huge tanks were reported to be lumbering and roaring over the wreckage of machines already knocked out and left on the battlefield.]

20 Nazi Planes Destroyed

The Royal Air Force and South African Air Force swept the Axis lines and rear communications incessantly in supporting early phases of the ground operations. They destroyed 20 enemy planes over Libya on Tuesday alone, the third day of the battle, R. A. F. headquarters said. Twelve of these were Junkers 87's, notorious dive bombers.

"After we repulsed several attacks," a Middle East headquarters communique said, "the enemy brought up fresh forces and attempted an encircling movement against our forward troops.

"As we had accomplished our objectives in forcing him to disclose his strength and inflicting heavy casualties, we withdrew slowly to our forward positions."

Heavy bombers raided the harbor area of Bengasi Monday night, also bombing landing grounds at Derna and Gazala.

A number of fires were started at Bardia, the first major base across the Libyan frontier, where several motor transports and other vehicles were damaged.

Six British planes were reported missing from all the operations.

Petsamo Blockade May Starve Finns, Procope Says

Hjalmar Procope, Finnish Minister to the United States, declared yesterday that maintenance of the British blockade of Finland's port of Petsamo would tend to starve his country.

"I am sure it is not the intention of the Western democracies to starve Finland and to cause still greater suffering to her," the Minister said in a statement issued by the legation here.

He said Finland exports no food, depends on Petsamo for "almost 100 per cent" of its food supply from the outside world and uses all imported food for the needs of its own population.

Rep. Hebert Charges Attempt To 'Hamstring' Police Probe

District authorities were accused last night of trying to hamstring a proposed Congressional investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department by launching an inquiry of their own.

The charge was made by Representative F. Edward Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, who called "ridiculous" the plan of the Disrtict Commissoners to name an investigating board of three police officials and two civilians. Hebert, whose demand for a House investigating committee will be considered at a special meeting of the House District Committee at 10 a. m. today, declared.

"Having policemen investigate policemen is ridiculous. That's just like having a brother investigate a brother. All that does is to prove all the more that the investigation must be conducted by an agency outside the Police Department and the Commissioners."

Hebert said he believed the investigation should be conducted by a special subcommittee of the District Committee. Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, committee chairman, called today's meeting in response to Hebert's investigation demand.

Representative William Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the police and fire subcommittee, declined to indicate whether he favored an investigation. He said that problem would have to await committee determination today.

Hebert, whose constituent, Stanley Le Blanc, was the fiance of the slain girl, 23-year-old Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, of Des Moines, Ia., was irate about police conduct of the murder investigation.

He declared that Le Blanc was told that the police couldn't do anything for six hours when he notified them of the girl's disappearance for the first time Sunday afternoon.

"I realize that they can't start on an ordinary missing person case right away," Herbert said. "But from the very moment this girl disappeared it was obvious from the circumstances that there had been foul play.

"The way the police began on this case was stupid, that's all."

Hebert said that one person who was associated with the girl a few days before she disappeared has not been questioned by police.

Lack of "intelligent direction" is what is wrong with the police department, declared Senator Clyde L. Herring (Democrat) whose son was a schoolmate of the slain girl in Des Moines, Iowa. Herring referred to a letter he received from the Federation of Citizens Associations which asserted that, compared with cities of similar size Washington's police force needed from 465 to 651 additional men.

Asked if he would appear before the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, now considering the District appropriation bill, to ask funds for more policemen, Herring replied:

"It will take more than money to make this police department efficient."

Informed that the Department of Justice, to which he has appealed for FBI intervention in the case, yesterday reaffirmed its position that it lacks jurisdiction in local cases and can only make its crime laboratory available to Washington authorities, Herring declared:

"This is a Federal city, and if the department still persists in refusing to make a distinction between Washington and other cities, Congress will be asked to make the distinction through legislation."

Herring said he had received letters from Washington ministers praising his stand and has been promised the support of the War Department.

Mrs. Byron's Campaign Cost Put at $3,353

the way of scientific crime-fighting equipment in addition to making a detailed study of each unit and its membership.

Informed that a room is now available in the new Municipal Center building for a chemical crime laboratory, but that it lacks both equipment and personnel. Young stated:

"We should have the best equipment available. If this investigation uncovers the need for additional facilities, the Commissioners will see to it that we get them."

All crime analysis work of the Police Department is now done by the local Health Department and in instances where equipment is lacking, work is sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

John Reed, chief of the Health Department's chemical division, said he has thus far been able to handle all work sent to him by police, but indicated the city could well use additional equipment and trained laboratory technicians.

"From Top to Bottom"

In announcing the plans for the probe, Commissioner Young declared:

"Commissioner Hazen and I had decided in advance of this crime (the murder of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff) to have an investigation of the Police Department from top to bottom to see wherein it might be possible to improve the efficiency of the Police Department and thought it would be a good idea to have both police officers and civilians to conduct the investigation. It was my personal idea to have the committee headed by Inspector Kelly."

Young said he appreciated Congressional concern over the "gravity of the situation," adding:

"We wish to say, however, that this decision on our part was not prompted by any recent situation, but had previously been determined by us as the wise course to follow."

It was recalled that several weeks ago the Commissioners called for medical reports on all members of the Police Department over 55. The subsequent reports resulted in the retirement of three ranking officials —Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent; Inspector B. W. Thompson, chief of dectives and Inspector William G. Stott.

D. C. Police Hold Sex Slaying Suspect Whose Auto Is Stained With Blood

package the man carried, Adrian said, was as big as the reporter.

Lieut. George Darnall, chief of the homicide squad, groped his way through the cellar, which was so dark in places that he could hardly see his hand before him. He found stacks of newspapers and a pile of heavy cord. He cut off a length and took it to the police laboratory for testing.

Suit's Owner Sought

The autopsy performed on Miss Strieff after her raped and clawed body was found Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock in a garage showed that she had been strangled. Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said that the strangling could have been done with a piece of rope, a necktie or a rolled handkerchief.

A tourniquet made from a long piece of cheesecloth, knotted to a stick, was found in a gutter at Florida Avenue and Nineteenth Street Northwest. This is not far from where the girl was last seen alive by anybody known to the police.

The tourniquet was found by J. R. Franklin, of 2111 Nineteenth Street Northwest, a law student who said he had been distracted from his studies for a bar examination by his absorption in the Strieff murder case.

A tailor in the Mount Pleasant section told police yesterday that a man had left with him a gray suit the trouser leg of which was splattered with blood. Hhe said the owner of the suit explained that he had cut his finger and that the blood had dropped on the trouser leg. Police began a search for the man.

Four days after Miss Strieff disappeared, the super-squad of dectives assigned to the mystery had nothing tangible that promised a solution. The detectives knew that the man they were after was a fiend, one who doubtless would strike gasin, and they were workind around the clock in their hunt for him, conscious of the fact that all Washington from President Roosevelt down was following their efforts.

They were conscious of the fact, too, that the District Commissioners had announced a "top to bottom" investigation of the Police Department "to weed out the deadwood."

Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, stated frankly that his men had not unearthed anything of value. He conceded that they didn't even have a starting point because the clothes Miss Strieff was wearing were still missing. When her body was found at 9:15 Monday morning in a garage behind 1717 Q Street Northwest, she was nude except for a pair of wet shoes and sport socks.

Whether the story told yesterday by little Adrian Wiggins will lead to a solution of the revolting crime remains to be seen. But it does fit into the hypothesis that the police are assembling in their minds.

Miss Strieff, it seems clear to them, left her apartment on Nineteenth Street with one purpose in mind—to buy a stick of butter. This was needed for a lemon pie she and her roommate, Miss Christine Tankersley, were baking for dinner.

On her way to the delicatessen store of Peter Duncan, at 1810 Florida Avenue, she presumably walked south on Nineteenth Street past the Adams School, past the eastern wall turned east and headed for the reached Florida Avenue. Here she turned east and headed for the store.

Duncan said she came into the store just before the cloudburst came. Over her play suit she wore a transparent raincoat with the hood over her head, he said. She also carried a white umbrella. Duncan sold her a quarter of a pound of butter and then saw her leave the store.

Many Theories Advanced

Duncan said he saw a car parked double outside of his store at the time, but he was emphatic in saying that he did not see Miss Strieff get out of it or get into it.

What happened to her after she left the store? All kinds of theories have been advanced. It has been suggested that somebody offered her a ride, that she accepted, and that the good Samaritan then abducted her and set out to commit one of the most revolting crimes in the city's history.

The weakness of this theory, it has been pointed out, is that Miss Strieff, although a girl who loved adventure, was extremely wary about accepting rides from strangers. Besides, the distance from the store to her apartment was not great, being a little less than two blocks. The storm was threatening when she went out, but with both a raincoat and an umbrella she was prepared for it.

A better theory, in the opinion of the detectives, is that Miss Strieff was grabbed at the height of the cloudburst and dragged into a house or a cellar.

Alley a Likely Scene

The alley that leads from Florida Avenue to Nineteenth Street actually does not save much walking, but there was one good reason that Miss Strieff might have chosen to traverse it. A powerful wind was blowing from the west, the direction in which she was headed after she left the delicatessen store. If she walked through the alley, the tall buildings would have broken the force of the wind.

Looked at from any angle, the cloudburst and the semidarkness that accompanied it were a major factor in the girl's death.

If she walked through the alley, here assailant would have had three advantages. The alley in all likelihood would be dark and deserted, the roar of the storm would have drowned out the girl's cries, and there were basements into which to drag her.

After the deed was done, there would be the problem of disposing of the body. For this purpose an automobile would be needed, and there is every indication that one was used.

The police said at the outset that the crime was committed in some place other than the garage wherein the body was found.

Police Welcome Reports

Police discounted reports of a soda fountain clerk who said he sold sandwiches to a young woman resembling Miss Strieff Sunday evening. The autopsy on her body revealed her stomach was empty, they pointed out.

At the same time, they said they welcomed reports from anyone believing he had a clue to the case.

Citizens, anxious to help the investigation, have turned in nearly 200 yards of rope and many articles of clothing which have been picked up in various alleys. Police said none of the rope was used to strangle the girl and none of the clothing resembles that she wore.

The grief-racked mother, Mrs. David Strieff, hurried through Union Station yesterday at 5 p. m., accompanied by her son, David, jr., 20, en route home to Des Moines, with the body. Funeral services will be held there. Visitors to her train were barred admittance at the track gate.

Phil Plant Dies; Multimillionaire Big Game Hunter

New York, June 18 (AP).—Philip M. Plant, multimillionaire big game hunter who was often described as a Broadway playboy, died tonight of a heart condition.

Plant, 38, who inherited a $15,000,000 fortune from his stepfather, the late Commodore Morton F. Plant, yachtsman, was the former husband of Constance Bennett, the movie actress. She divorced him in Paris.

His second wife was Edna Dunham. That marriage ended in divorce. His third wife was Marjorie King.

Plant, who was a familiar figure in Broadway haunts for years, deserted New York about six years ago for chicken farming near New London, Conn.

Bill Reported to Senate Killing Maritime Labor Board in Year

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday struck at the powers of the Maritime Labor Board in a bill sharply limiting its mediation functions and winding up its duties in a year.

The committee deleted the board's power to mediate future maritime labor disputes and recommended only one more year of life "to enable it to complete correlation of data assembled by it."

Full powers extended by the House for two years would be drastically curtailed in the Senate report following charges by Pacific Coast ship operators that the board was a "hindrance" to peace in the industry and had created "distrust" among the operators.

Board Held Unnecessary

The committee's report said further efforts by the board "do not seem to be necessary." Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, committee chairman, told reporters he thought the agency's mediation work could be handled by the Labor Department's Conciliation Service and the National Defense Mediation Board.

The Senate bill would eliminate authority for the board under the Merchant Marine Act to be mediator in disputes between maritime employers and employes, except where its services had been requested and undertaken prior to passage of the bill.

The board's power to "encourage the making and maintenance of agreements and settlement of disputes was changed to make it the board's duty "to exert every reasonable effort" in this direction.

"It is believed," said the Senate report, "that the duty to encourage the making of collective agreements and the power of mediation are not complementary one to the other. The duty to advocate agreements appears to be in conflict with impartial mediation."

Leading witness against continuing the board was F. P. Foisie, of the Pacific American Steamship Association, who testified that the root cause of Pacific Coast labor disturbances has been "gaining by quickie-strikes on the job what was not secured at the conference table. He charged the board had done nothing to correct "this basic obstacle to maritime peace."

Bloch Answers Charges

Foisie further alleged that the Pacific Coast member of the board, Louis Bloch, "owes his appointment to the influence of Messrs. John L. Lewis and Harry Bridges."

Bloch filed a supplementary statement with the committee declaring that both employes and employers have availed themselves of the board's services, that serious strikes have been averted and labor conditions improved during its three years of operation, and that the board's powers should not be scrapped in an emergency when Congress is embarking on an unprecedented expansion of the merchant marine.

Other members of the board, Robert W. Bruere, chairman, and Claude E. Seeborn, strongly urged two-year extension of the board's powers, citing a 40.7 per cent reduction in strikes in the 1938-40 period and the need at this time of promoting stable labor relations in the maritime industry.

Nazi Ultimatum To Soviet Reported

but the interesting fact is that they are being spread."

Nazis Spread Rumors Throughout Balkans

By the Associated Press

Ankara, June 17 (Delayed).—A heavy force of German dive bombers and troop transport planes was reported to have been shifted to the Moldavian section of Rumania near the Russian border tonight as Nazi propagandists in southeastern Europe drummed up talk of an approaching blitzkrieg against the Soviet Union.

The German telephone system for the second successive day declined to put through calls to Berlin from Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, and Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, while rumors spread of huge preparations by the German army for an eastern campaign.

Nazi circles claimed that "all signs point to war with Russia," although at the same time they expressed optimism in the belief that large concessions might be won from the Soviet Union without actual conflict.

It was assumed that if war comes one big spearhead of German attack would be hurled from Rumania and aimed at cutting off the Caucasus oil fields and encircling the south Russian breadbasket—the Ukraine.

Mechanized Russian divisions, in the German view, would be unable to prolong the conflict provided the Nazis quickly occupied the Baku oil region on the Caucasus along with the refineries and pipe lines.

Red Troops Reported Evacuating Hanko

Helsinki, Finland, June 18 (AP).—A new indication that relations between the Soviet Union and Germany may be approaching the explosive stage was seen today in what appeared to be an exodus of Russian troops from the military base at Hanko.

The Soviets had a 31-year lease on Hanko, which was concluded at the end of the Soviet-Finnish war in 1940. Soviet troops trains were reported heading back from Hanko to Russia over Finnish territory and signs of evacuation also were reported over the sea lanes.

Finnish reserves have been called up for service.

An official announcement on the calling up of reserves, said, "Finland, to reinforce her security, has in the same way as other neutral states, taken steps to strengthen her defensive preparedness by calling up reserves for extraordinary maneuvers."

Germans Offer To Pay Ireland For Bombings

Dublin (Thursday), June 19 (U.P.).—The government of neutral Eire announced early today that Germany had admitted the possibility that a German plane dropped the bombs which killed 27 persons in Dublin on May 31 and has offered to pay compensation.

Germany's reply to an Eire protest said that instructions had been issued to prevent a recurrence of the bombing.

The Eire announcement said the German consul in Dublin had informed it that a single German plane flew over Eire by mistake.

Mrs. McCauley Dies In Silver Spring

Mrs. Rebecca McCauley, 99, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Miss Emma McCauley, 951 Sligo Avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. McCauley, friends said, often recalled Civil War days in Frankfort, Ky., where she was born. At the age of 14 she smuggled food to Confederate troops billeted near her home. Her mother attended the same school as Abraham Lincoln's wife, Mary Todd, in Lexington, Ky.

In 1891 she came to Washington with her late husband, John Robert McCauley, who died in 1909. Mrs. McCauley lived in Washington until 1930, when she moved to Silver Spring, Md.

She leaves two sisters, Miss Mabel and Miss Libbie Ellis, both of Washington, and two daughters, Mrs. George Walhstrom and Miss Emma McCauley, both of Silver Spring. Funeral services will be Saturday at 10 a. m. from the Lee funeral home, Fourth and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast. Burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Rizleys Mark 25 Years Of Marriage

Representative and Mrs. Ross Rizley, of Oklahoma, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary yesterday at their home at 2934 Glover Drive Northwest. Mrs. Rizley is the former Miss Ruby Seal, of Beaver, Okla.

The Rizleys are the parents of seven children—one of the largest, if not the largest Congressional family. Six of the children, Elaine, 24; Quentin, 21; Robert, 18; La Moyne, 16; Max, 13; and Jerry Wallace, 7, were at home yesterday, helping their parents to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary. A seventh child, Mrs. G. Paul Barrere, 23, who is married to a motion picture actor, is in Hollywood.

Only one of the children has any inclination, thus far, to follow in Representative Rizley's footsteps, as a lawyer, and perhaps later, into Congress. He is Robert, the second son, who will enter college next fall to study either law or journalism—he hasn't made up his mind yet which will be his calling.

Elaine is teaching piano back home in Oklahoma. Quentin, the eldest son, is studying business administration at Panhandle College, Oklahoma, and has just about decided to join the Navy next week. The other children, of course, are still a bit young to be thinking of careers, and right now are much more interested in cowboys and Indians and the like.

Representative Rizley is the newest member of the Oklahoma delegation in the House. He is a Republican, and was elected last November, as the Representative of the Eighth Congressional District, which includes the Oklahoma Panhandle and historic Cimarron County. Representative Rizley came to Congress by way of the legal profession, and local and State politics.

Brazil Bans Exports of Defense Materials To All Countries Except the United States

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, June 18.—Exporters said today that Brazil had banned exportation of certain important defense materials, including rubber and manganese ore, to all countries except the United States.

The other restricted materials include industrial diamonds, quartz, crystal, mica and other ores, in addition to manganese.

Previously it had been necessary to obtain export licenses for these materials, but until now licenses were readily available, except in cases where the intent was to re-export products imported from the United States.

Export circles said the new instructions were issued last week without public announcement. They reported that although Japan several months ago bought large quantities of Brazilian rubber, there still were large stocks in the hands of speculators who were holding in the rising market.

Trade observers said there had been recent reports of shipments of industrial diamonds, essential in certain machine manufacturing processes, to Europe by Italian planes in the transatlantic service.

The bulk of exportable quartz, crystal, mica and manganese ore has been going to the United States and Britain, due to virtual stoppage of Axis shipping.

Argentine Mission Urged

Copyright by New York Times

Buenos Aires, Argentina, June 18. A group of senators belonging to the Radical Party has taken the initiative in suggesting that Argentina should manifest her adhesion to the principle of continental solidarity by sending a special mission to the United States to return the visit paid to Argentina by President Roosevelt in 1936.

Acting President Ramon S. Castillo, a Conservative, has been approached on the matter and is thought to favor the plan. The radical senators proposed that the mission be entrusted to former President Marcelo T. de Alvear, head of the Radical Party. He has been very prominent recently in urging Argentina to range herself unequivocally on the side of the democracies.

Ten Italian Sailors Convicted Of Ship Sabotage

Newark, N. J., June 18 (AP).—Ten Italian seamen were convicted tonight of sabotaging their ship in Newark harbor, causing a court-room stir later as they exchanged Fascist salutes with Italo Verando, general counsel for the Italian owners of the vessel.

The salutes came after the jury, which had deliberated the case almost six hours, announced its verdict and Federal Judge William F. Smith left the bench.

what LaGuardia termed a "patient, careful hearing."

Impetus of yesterday's action was Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum June 12 to Knudsen and Hillman saying that "our Government cannot countenance continued discrimination against American citizens in defense production."

He ordered the OPM to take "immediate" steps to remedy the situation, citing the fact that he had "repeatedly" received complaints of discrimination.

LaGuardia also announced yesterday the appointment of three divisional heads of the civilian defense program.

Dean James M. Landis, of Harvard Law School, was named director for the First Corps Area, with headquarters at Boston. Frank D'Olier, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., was named director for the Second Corps Area, comprising New York, New Jersey and Delaware. Raymond J. Kelly, of Detroit, past national commander of the American Legion, was selected as directed for the Sixth Corps Area, with headquarters at Chicago.

Six other regional directors, including the director for the Washington area, remain to be named.

Youths Arrive for 4-H Encampment

STRIDE INTO CAMP—Among the first members to arrive for the fifteenth encampment of the 4-H Clubs were Irving Newhouse and Dean Lindley, Washington State College students, and Virginia Bell and Julia Beth Dykes, both from Alabama. The camp has been set up on the banks of the Tidal Basin

4-H Youths Open Conclave Here in Tent City

A town of tents, boasting a population of 173 young citizens, its own newspaper, wooden sidewalks and complete facilities for a week of busy existence, was born yesterday on the banks of the Tidal Basin. It was the fifteenth encampment of the 4-H Clubs, and probably the most important in the history of the farm youths' organization.

For the next week the 173 young rural Americans will mingle, visit historic buildings, exchange notes on farming problems, and ponder the roles they will play in the near future, when America's plows are turned over to them. From 43 States and Alaska the farm boys and girls have come. They represent 1,500,000 4-H members in continental America and the Territories.

Most of the delegates are in their teens, ranging around high school age and older. They appear to be the personification of the club's aims: to develop the heart, head, hands and health. The young men, clad in white ducks and shirts, are bronzed and sturdy from living in the open; the girls, wearing clover-green uniforms and white hats, are equally healthy looking, and quite easy on the eye.

Each delegate has won his or her trip to Washington through some outstanding work on farms, be it cotton raising in Louisiana, canning in New England, wheat production in Iowa, animal husbandry in Wyoming or dressmaking in South Carolina. They are a serious lot, with thoughts that go a lot farther than the R. F. D. or next winter's wheat crop. They mean to go back to the farms with some definite ideas on how they can help in national defense.

Highlights in the week's program are: Today—Panel discussions, appointment of committees, visits to the Beltsville Experimental Farm and the Washington Monument, speech by Agriculture Secretary Wickard. Tomorrow—Assemblies and conferences, visit to the White House, ball game at Griffith Stadium. Saturday—Assembly and conferences, visit to the Folger Shakespeare Library, Pan-American garden party and carnival at the camp. Sunday—Church services, wreath-laying exercises at Arlington, concert at the camp. Monday—Visit to the National Art Gallery, entertainment by Washington youth. Tuesday—Citizenship program at the Lincoln Memorial for 4-H members who are 21 or over, visit to Washington Cathedral. Wednesday—Final assemblies and conferences, trip to Mount Vernon, camp fire program, formal closing of the 1941 camp.

The encampment was officially opened last night before a camp fire kindled by fagots from each represented State and Territory. Reuben Brigham, assistant director of the Agriculture Department's extension service, which operates the National 4-H Clubs, and chairman of the camp committee, extended greetings to the members, discussed the traditions of the 4-H Clubs, and announced plans for the coming week. The delegates were formally introduced and spent the rest of the evening getting acquainted. By 10 p. m. they were snug in their tents, ready for reveille and a big day today.

IT TOOK A WAR
to give this fine Argentine Vermouth its place in the sun!

Full Quart

What! Vermouth from Argentine? Yes, and the world's finest...both dry and sweet! For Argentines have been the leading connoisseurs of vermouth for more than a century, a fact little known in the United States, due to the greater exploitations of European products. Now that the war has cut off the importation of vermouths from Europe, these fine Argentine beverages have, at last, found their place in the sun!

That Argentines "know their vermouth" is attested by the fact that, with only 15 million population, Argentine consumes four times as much vermouth as does the United States with 130 million population.

Come on! Drive a Car with "Second Wind"!

PAYS YOUR GAS TAX FOR YOU
At present Federal tax rates, the mileage on gasoline affected by Compound Carburetion are equally worth more than enough to pay Federal taxes on the gas you buy.

YOU say a racehorse has "heart" when he can turn on the drive coming into the stretch and bring the crowd to its feet with an all-out finish.

Okeh — come try a car that can turn on extra wallop like water from a tap — and see what you would say about Compound Carburetion!†

For this stunning Buick straight-eight swings you along sweetly on only half-carburetion as long as you're taking it easy in everyday sort of travel.

Only one of its two thrift-size carburetors works then, because that's all that's needed.

But step down on the gas treadle — and things happen.

A second carburetor opens up. Air supply as well as gas supply is increased. Power rises instanter. You get your "stretch drive" any time you give the word.

But — and note carefully! — this isn't only for thrill.

This engine's actually more efficient because it has this "second wind."

It gives you a car that has the life and lift you like — and still delivers (on owners' say-so) as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon than previous Buicks did.

So in Buick you get a car not only bigger, roomier, smarter, more comfortable and greater in value than others, but one that is basically more able.

That would be important any time; it's all the more important now—at the low delivered prices your Buick dealer is asking.

†Available on Buick SPECIAL models at slight extra cost, standard on all other Series.

Decisive Action

The President's moves are now becoming as decisive as his stirring words. Up till a week ago columnists and editorial writers were berating him for allowing his speeches to go stale. But the procrastination may have been more apparent than real. In the absence of war the initiative which the President wishes to assume can be no stronger and no swifter than public opinion will allow. Mr. Roosevelt knows his public opinion. He likewise has known far more than any other person in this country how much leeway he has had in British endurance while he has been waiting for a clear-cut crystallization of public opinion.

There can be now no question left in his mind as to the body of support that is back of his anti-Hitler policies. Opinion has hardened intelligently. This was shown in the case of the outrageous sinking of the Robin Moor. There was no outpouring of emotion, but there was something far more significant upon which the President could act. The people, with the common sense which Theodore Roosevelt used to say must always be a President's reliance, seemed to see in the act a deliberate test of our recently announced policy to defend the freedom of the seas. There may also have been other motives in Hitler's mind. Mr. Lippmann suggests that in Nazi estimation the time had come to bring down our prestige in Europe and in Latin America. Be this as it may, the sinking has proved a boomerang to Nazi Germany, with the President engaged almost daily in calling Hitler's bluffs, and finding the American people solidly behind him in doing so.

The ban on the exit of Germans from the United States is the latest of the President's retorts. It must be regarded as the companion piece to the closing of the Nazi consulates and propaganda organizations. There can be no faith reposed in Hitler's word. And till our own people are safely out of Hitler's Europe, or safeguards have been assured for their safe exit, it would have been too risky to allow Hitler's compatriots to leave. The President's actions are thus guided by prudence as well as a firm determination to live up to every pledge he has made that we shall defend our historic rights in the Atlantic.

Slashing The WPA

Both the District Commissioners and WPA Director Hunter are partly right in their controversy over the 50 per cent slash in WPA funds for Washington. Certainly Mr. Hunter has good reason to demand curtailment of work-relief projects in a city that is bringing in thousands of employes from other parts of the country each month. When the Government is spending vast sums for defense, creating jobs by the thousands and encountering a shortage of many strategic materials, it doesn't make sense to continue expensive work-creating projects not related to defense. The paring of nondefense expenditures, as The Post has pointed out many times, is imperative in this national crisis. And it is only reasonable that the paring should be most severe in cities where boom-town conditions exist.

However, local officials have a legitimate complaint over the inconsiderate manner in which this curtailment is being put into effect. A 50 per cent slash in work-relief funds would be drastic in any circumstances. Individuals become dependent upon benefits of this sort, and when they are suddenly withdrawn there is certain to be suffering. Many WPA workers are not likely to be absorbed into the defense program. Of course, that is only another way of saying that they are not really employable. In the end it will be better to recognize the fact and make provision for their relief through local agencies. But that scarcely minimizes the cruelty of a sudden and sweeping withdrawal of aid.

The effect of this drastic slash on the District budget must also be considered. The city has come to rely upon the WPA to make up many deficiencies in its municipal service. The sudden dismissal of WPA workers from Gallinger Hospital, from various health and highway projects, will work havoc. This does not, however, alter the fact that necessary activities of this sort should be financed through the regular District budget. It is patently absurd, for example, to have the WPA furnishing employes for Gallinger Hospital on the theory that we can't afford to maintain an adequate staff unless their salaries are classified as emergency relief. Useful municipal projects conducted by the WPA should be taken over by the District; defense projects might well be taken over by the War and Navy Departments or the Federal Works Administration. In every case, however, the transition should be made as nearly painless as possible. The WPA order is harsh and unwise only in so far as it seems to contemplate sweeping changes on short notice.

Separate Air Force

The McCarran bill providing for a separate Air Corps under a Secretary of Military Aviation seems bound to arouse bitter controversy when hearings begin before the Senate Military Affairs Committee. For there is scarcely a "hotter" subject from the standpoint of Army and Navy officials. The Navy, particularly, is dead set against any transfer of the command of its air arm from the fleet. Secretary Knox recently said as much, and his point that such a move would reduce naval efficiency was well taken. We have today a fleet air arm that is probably the highest trained, and best coordinated unit of its kind anywhere. Its personnel is accustomed to unique and extremely complicated flying operations in conjunction with surface maneuvers of the fleet. To separate its administration from the fleet command at this late date would accomplish little and might prove catastrophic.

The situation in the Army Air Corps is different. Its functions are largely controlled by the General Staff, but the operating part of the corps and the procurement and training sections are under different commands. Thus the air services of the Army are split, or at least lack the unified command which some regard as an organizational necessity. In fact, so much pressure has been exerted upon the Air Corps to remedy this situation that the War Department is reportedly considering a new plan by which all Army air activities would be grouped under a single head. In a sense the plan partially answers the contentions of separate air force partisans, since the Air Corps would form an autonomous unit within the War Department, much as does the Marine Corps within the Navy Department. Moreover, the Air Corps would be united under the command of a flying officer and there would probably be an Air General Staff. This would unquestionably provide greater centralization of authority and more freedom of action.

There are those who call in evidence the success of the R. A. F. in pleading for a separate air force. Yet, lest we be swept off our feet by the many triumphs of the R. A. F. in operating as an independent force, it should be recalled that there have also been disadvantages. Last week Prime Minister Churchill emphasized that there would have to be much closer coordination between the R. A. F. and land troops. He stressed that every division, especially every armored division, should train in close relationship with the particular number of aircraft that it knows and that it can call on at will. Presumably this decision arose from British experience in Crete. Should the creation of a separate air force, as contemplated by the McCarran bill, render more difficult such coordination of air and land forces—though obviously it is not so intended—it would indeed be flying in the face of one of the most bitter object lessons of the war.

Egypt And Syria

The Germans and Italians report that they have won a "complete and overwhelming" victory over the British in the desert around Solum, Egypt. Pending confirmation of this report (and that is so far lacking), such sweeping claims must be discounted as a matter of course. But the British themselves admit that after having taken the offensive and penetrated 40 miles into Libya, they have been forced to withdraw to "forward positions." In other words, if the purpose of Gen. Wavell's move was to launch a full-fledged British drive across Cyrenaica, his plans have temporarily miscarried. However, the operation may have been intended only as a "reconnaissance in force" to test out the enemy's strength and smash or retard his preparations for an offensive. If that was the case, there may be some point in the British claim that they have "accomplished their object."

Regardless of their failure to remain on the offensive for more than three days, it is significant than in existing circumstances the British were able to take the offensive at all. It suggests that the war in Syria has not made necessary such serious diversion of men and materiel as occurred at the time of the Greek campaign when the Aarmy of the Nile was so seriously depleted as to make possible an Axis drive across Cyrenaica. Yet the British at this moment cannot find any great comfort in their relatively improved position in Egypt. After 18 days fighting in Syria neither Damascus nor Beirut has as yet been captured. On the contrary, some towns previously taken have been lost by the British as a result of a vigorous counteroffensive by Gen. Dentz's forces, and the fighting, instead of easing up, has shown signs of intensifying.

This success testifies to the fact that Vichy is apparently determined to make good its pledge to Hitler to fight the British in Syria. Hitler, indeed, is content to let his French allies do his fighting for him. French air reinforcements, with Hitler's consent, have been sent to Syria, thus compelling a greater concentration of British air power in that sector than they possibly contemplated when the operations there began. There is a strong possibility that in Syria as at Dakar earlier the British and their Free French allies have miscalculated the nature and degree of resistance they would encounter from the Vichy garrison. At any rate, the slow pace and obvious hesitation of their move into Syria and Lebanon suggest that they expected an early capitulation. In the case of Dakar, that led to a humiliating withdrawal and a grave loss of prestige. The Allies cannot afford a similar debacle in Syria. It is very likely, therefore, that reinforcements, men and planes, will now be sent to the Syrian front now that it threatens to become a major war front, and this possibility must be giving Hitler real satisfaction.

Mr. Murray's Leadership

It is disheartening to note Philip Murray's indignantly negative response to the public demand upon union leaders to clean house. The whole future of the labor movement is menaced by the "wildcat" strikes. That they are fomented by elements which are interested neither in the cause of labor nor in the defense of our country has been proved beyond a shadow of a doubt. The Administration is so convinced, and so is Congress where the Representatives are all set for repressive legislation. Yet Mr. Murray, putting a telescope to a blind eye, calls the clamor "a slander campaign," the call for a "house-cleaning," a demand for "witch hunting," and the appeal for an end to the factionalism between "Commis" and "anti-Commis" an incitement to factionalism. Mr. Murray knows that he is simply blinking at the evidence, and why he should make such an extraordinary statement in the face of it is for him to answer in his heart. All that need be said here is that the statement shows up another disturbing feature of the strike situation. The penetration of the labor movement by the "Commis" is bad enough, but equally trying is the lack of readiness to pull together in combating this menace on the part of the titular leaders of the labor movement. There are, of course, shining exceptions—men, for instance, like Daniel J. Tobin, head of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, a telegram from whom appears in our correspondence columns. Mr. Tobin wires us out of an abundance of knowledge. And when he says that the "Commis" are termites seeking to undermine our Government as well as the labor movement, we know he is speaking the truth. Mr. Murray merely avoids the truth behind a lot of high-sounding words. Yet he and his organization will eventually be the losers if he not only tolerates these subversive elements in his own organization but also acquiesces (against the President's counsel) in the admittance of more of the same breed from the unions which do see the need in their own and their country's interests of a house cleaning.

Tokyo Thinks Twice

Japan's second thoughts on the breakdown of her trade negotiations with the Dutch East Indies appear to be much less belligerent than her first. On the eve of the Batavia government's rejection of Japan's excessive demands on the colony for trade and other concessions, it was darkly hinted in Tokyo that a failure to comply with the wishes of the island empire would lead to drastic action. The Dutch refused to be intimidated, however. Instead they agreed only to permit a normal flow to Japan of oil, rubber, tin and other commodities produced in the Netherlands Indies. For they knew that to meet Japan's demands for a sharp increase in such exports would simply mean to permit the island empire to send quantities of these vital commodities to Japan's German ally. The result of this stand by the Batavia authorities was like a cold douche on the hot heads of the Tokyo bureaucrats. While Japan has decided that no good can be served at this time by continuing the negotiations with the Netherlands Indies, she has also let it be known through an official spokesman that "normal relations between Japan and the Indies will by no means be affected by discontinuance of the negotiations." This is obviously in much better temper than the earlier outpourings by Nippon's spokesmen and suggests the easing of the crisis in Japanese-Dutch relations which loomed so menacingly a little while ago.

Now praise these things unmalleable:

The stubborn undissolving stone
Whereon not even grass has grown,

The proud black panther hunting high
While hunger keeps him company,

The sleet's undeviating rain
Heedless of wind that shakes the pane,

A dried leaf's closed, mysterious heart
That turns to dust ere it pulls apart,

And most, that look in honest eyes
Of quiet, unexpectant scorn
From one who could have lived, forsworn,
But, silent, dies.

"United We Stand"

(By Telegraph.)

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—Thanks very much for your truthful statement contained in your editorial "United We Stand . . ." of June 16, relative to our action in dealing with subversive organizations. It is not a question of losing a few members here and there. It is a question of those wrongdoers who are endeavoring to destroy the freedom for which we stand being welcomed and admitted into some other organizations. The International Brotherhood of Teamsters is powerful enough to take care of its own membership and it will. In doing so, however, because of such actions, serious inconvenience may be brought about in business and in Government. Subversive organizations, and there are many of them in our country—some of them hidden under cover—are determined to inconvenience our Government and our defense program in every way possible and to find an acceptable avenue in fulfilling their desires by creating secession and disturbance within the labor movement. This trouble is only beginning and the press of the Nation should give publicity and aid both to States and Nation as to the danger that might obtain unless this program is checked now. We have reason to believe that because of the strong declaration made by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in support of our Government and its defense program we brought down on our heads the enmity and hatred of all those elements that are endeavoring to destroy our form of Government. All labor officers who aid in such a program are equally guilty.

D. J. TOBIN,
President International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

"Negroes And Defense"

I wish to thank you for your splendid editorial, "Negroes and Defense," of June 12. As one who is sorely concerned about the present situation of my people, and greatly distressed about the future of the thousands of young people who are turned out of our schools each year with no open door, no opportunity for making a living, I am anxious to extend my heartfelt gratitude for the sentiments expressed in it.

The plight of the Negro in this country is by far more serious now than it has been within the last 25 years. Even in the most menial positions there is the rankest discrimination against the Negro. Read the "Want-Ads" in our daily papers and see how few jobs are open to colored people.

The Negroes of this country, 13,000,000—one in every ten persons—know no other country. They are ready and anxious (as in the past) to serve our country. They are loyal; there are no Fifth Columnists among them.

We are importuned to register for defense, conservation, and to buy Defense Bonds. What incentive is there for loyal patriotism when our Government, through its high officials, closes the avenues for a livelihood to these selfsame citizens? Industry has taken its cue from these officials and refuses to hire Negroes in their plants. How does America stand with those countries which Hitler has subdued, when they learn, as surely they know, how America is treating one-tenth of its population in this gigantic struggle to save democracy. I have long since prayed that there would arise in these troublous times someone courageous enough to call attention to this inhuman treatment of the Negro.

All we ask is that we may have the privilege of living under the true democratic way of life of which our country boasts. Again, thank you for your courageous and just editorial.

AMADA V. GRAY HILYER.
Washington, June 13.

World Pools

Freedom from want can come only by sharing abundance on a world scale. That we know. We know also that this present war arose largely because we had found no way to share raw materials and markets, which are essential to freedom from want, with the have-not nations. The way toward a more permanent world peace will be found when we find a method of implementing equal access to raw materials and markets.

The first step toward sharing abundance is to set up world pools of raw materials. There should be a wheat pool, a cotton pool, a coffee pool, a sugar pool, a rubber pool, an oil pool, an iron pool, a copper pool, a tin pool, etc.; each pool administered by an International board made up of representatives from each nation contributing to the pool as well as representatives of the principal countries that are consumers of the product in the pool. The world price of the product in each pool could be fixed by the board of governors of each pool.

If this were done, then each nation, as a nation and not as individuals within the nation, would put its products within the various pools, that is, that part of the produce in excess of its domestic needs, and thus establish credits with which to buy the things its wants, but does not produce. For example, Cuba would put her excess sugar in the world pool and establish a credit to buy wheat, machinery, etc. Brazil would put her coffee in the coffee pool and establish credits for oil, wool, etc. The Dutch would put their rubber in the rubber pool and establish credit for the things they need, etc. We in the United States would put in our cotton, wheat, meat products and pig iron and establish credits for the purchase of coffee, sugar, tin and rubber. In this way each nation would produce all it could at a world price and buy all it needed at a world price. Encouragement or discouragement of production in any field would be by price changes by the board of governors.

Diet Deficiencies

In reference to a letter commending the war for bringing the people to a realization of the deficiencies in their diet, I do not believe that we should rely on a war as cure-all for the people's "lethargy." It would be more intelligent to fathom the reasons for our starvation than to sentimentalize about the glory of war in awaking the soul of man to his empty stomach in the midst of plenty. The reasons for malnutrition are: first, that the wage earner does not make enough to buy sufficient food for himself and family; secondly, that to meet this sad state of affairs the resulting surplus of agricultural products must be sold in the foreign market and cream given to the cows rather than give it away free to the American worker whose average salary is less than $10 a week; thirdly, in order to keep our foreign markets, and the cows, from having acute indigestion, we must go to war to protect those markets and starving humanity.

Income Tax Proposal

There are 48,000,000 persons registered on Social Security pay rolls, who at a wage of $10 per week, have incomes of at least $500 per year, but 45,000,000 of whom are paying no income tax. This information, however, is the exclusive property of the Social Security Board, which means that neither Congress, the Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, nor the experts of the Treasury have any right to consider the information, much less to use it in the formulation of a new personal income tax law.

But if Congress had the Constitutional power and comprehension required to do so, these 48,000,000 incomes could all be put on the Government tax rolls by the application of this rule to each income to wit: Multiply the square of the income in dollars by four and point off the product to the sixth decimal place to get the dollars and cents in the tax, discarding the last four decimal figures for fractions of a cent. This rule applied to the whole income in each case produces for an income of $500 a tax of $1, for $1,000 a tax of $4, for $2,000 a tax of $16, for $3,000 a tax of $36, for $4,000 a tax of $64, for $5,000 a tax of $100 and for $125,000 a tax of $62,500 or 50 per cent with all incomes greater than $125,000 to be taxed at 50 per cent of the whole income.

Certainly a person with $5,000 a year can pay a tax of $100 to the Government even if he does have a mortgage and a mother-in-law on his hands, and the man who pays a dollar tax on $500 annual pay in giving but little more than half a day's pay to the Government in the form of a personal tax.

This all indicates that under this rule income taxes may be computed on a uniform geometrically progressive basis by a uniform formula to be applied without brackets, deductions, exemptions, allowances, distinctions or credits of any character and that a tabulation of the tax on all incomes from $500 to $5,000 can be printed on a single-sheet four-page folder by reference to which more than 45,000,000 persons with annual incomes of less than $5,000 may ascertain the tax without the difficulty required for computation under the existing law and regulations.

Tragedy Strikes

And so one more tragedy is added to our shameful list in the Nation's Capital, in the garage murder of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, and some wonder why. I live in this same neighborhood, which is now almost devoid of private homes and has become one of the most congested residential sections of the city. But whole weeks go by, as I come and go, without my catching even a glimpse of a policeman. The policemen, limited in number as they are, are too busy standing around in front of embassies, the White House and Government buildings, where Federal soldiers ought to be. The House has just voted a $52,000,000 appropriation for the District. What provision has it made for increasing the police force? What we need in these regions are policemen who are thoroughly acquainted with their beats and who "walk" their beats.

I live hard by one alley arrangement which is an invitation to crime but I have never seen a policeman there except when I have called the traffic squad to come and remove some car that is parked in the alley.

Let this tragedy kindle a flame of popular demand in this city for adequate police protection. What we need is not better policemen but more policemen. Let's get them.

The Post Impressionist

Class Book

Betsy came home from school the other day with a book that she proceeded to devour with more single-hearted devotion than she had displayed toward any of the volumes she had toted back and forth from school for six years. It was a publication that, next to textbooks and the Bible, is at certain seasons America's best seller. It was her senior class book.

Probably one reason this kind of book is virtuall never reviewed in print, nor put on the summer book lists of light and easy reading, is that, as any parent knows, it will inevitably be brought to their attention anyway. What most parents fail to realize, however, is that there are a lot of persons, especially in Washington, who are not parents. And without some effort occasionally to review such books, the latter might remain perpetually in ignorance of them.

Even those who have reveled in such a publication themselves may have let it slip from mind, and have forgotten what a relentless fountain of young hope and glittering illusions it was. Besides, to let the limitless stream of class books that is pouring currently from Washington's t n high schools go unacknowledged by anyone would be grievous. Hence the following critique.

As with most popular literature, there is a certain amount of romancing in these volumes. Human nature is revealed in them as a little better, a little more beautiful, a little more intellectual, heroic, full of genius and physical exc llence, than we find it in common life. For this reason they add to the satisfaction in living experienced by their readers.

The books have the added advantage of stamping at least one character in their story with the owner's very own name, and some, at least, of his or her biography. It is not necessary for the owner to put himself in the place of the hero; he has that place already. And at the time the volume is issued, and with an authentic first edition in his hand, he knows that shortly every merit ascribed to him in it will be attested by the words of commencement orators and the bestowing of certificates.

It is to some the most wonderful book they will ever know. And it will find its interest and value, its wisdom, and above all its humor, augmented with the years. If it ends up as an archeological curiosity, that also has been foreseen by its authors. But there is little doubt that it will continue even to be a servant of youth.

Betsy, for example, will never get so old or so crabbed that she will fail to get refreshment from opening the book to the right page—indeed it almost opens to that page now of itself—and reading this comment about herself:

Betsy, the girl with the lively laughter, is an attractive brunette She is always in the best of spirits, flitting around with some prank in mind. When in a more serious mood, she hopes to become . . .

It doesn't matter so much what she hopes to become. She may become something entirely other than the inscription indicates, but even at 80, when careers and achievements seem of little moment, it is certain that she will treasure this early evidence that once she "flitted," that her laughter was "lively," and that her vitality was so electric that she was always charged with a prank. At any rate she cherishes it so today, and is intent upon seeing that the rest of her family cherishes it too.

The book is still redolent of the print-shop. It may be 24 or 48 hours more before it acquires the autographs and epigrams that make it, besides a first edition, an "association copy." The book of Betsy's sister, has been full of such notations by her classmates for the past two years, and she has made annotations of her own, tracing down marriages and "careers."

Betsy's public, and that of her book, is now waiting to see whether she will find, as did Emmy upon her graduation, and through the evidence of such penciled or penned mementos, that George is "Glad to see you are still alive after trying to teach me to dance"; that Dimples wishes her "Best of luck in business"; that Dot was curious to know "Aren't you glad it's all over?"; that Virginia desired to know whether she did "Remember our bus ride home from Washington"; that Loretta thought she was "a sweet little bit of Heaven"; that 28 others decided sagely that she was "a swell girl"; that 33 wished her "the best of luck"; that seven wondered if she remembered "Sophomore French"; and that as for the rest, none had seemed to find anything at all wrong with her.

Besides the printer's ink and the paper, the binding and the covers, and the engrav'ng, the amount of scratching with pen nd pencil that is in such books is marvelous to contemplate. It makes a rustling that can be heard down the years, and is perhaps, taking one year's book with another, one of the chief means of proving how much everything remains the same, no matter how it changes.

But no one can make fun of the class book sincerely, or of class book fever. For nearly everyone, if he thinks hard enough, can remember when at least one such volume seemed to him for a little while the cleverest and most interesting book ever published, and the one most full of insight and imagination.

As evidence that there 's something in this, nearly the entire issue of every such publication is sold out well in advance of its ever going to press. And none of them ever is degraded, as are dictionaries and tomes like Boswell's Life of Johnson (required reading in English IV), to the extent of being used as a mere door-stopper.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Our Unused Reserves

A QUESTION of very general importance came up before the House committee on Tuesday when Secretary Stimson was testifying in favor of the agreement with Canada to develop the St. Lawrence Seaway. This is a project which, besides developing a considerable amount of hydro-electric power in a region where it is badly needed, would open a channel for shipping from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean. Whatever regional and other objections there may have been to the project in the past, it is fair to say that on the merits it would be an immense advantage to us today if it had been completed years ago. Who can seriously deny the value of being able to develop American sea power in the heart of the North American continent, and of being able to provide the great inland industrial and agricultural centers with access to the sea? We must wish we had had the foresight to carry out this project in the years when we were spending so much money on less valuable things.

LIPPMANN

The only real question now is whether, since it will require several years to complete it, we ought to regard the Seaway as a genuine defense project. Secretary Stimson, who surely has as vivid a knowledge of the urgency of the defense program as anyone and certainly is not remotely interested in boondoggling, has now urged Congress to approve. That ought just about to settle the matter for those who have kept an open mind, and particularly in view of Mr. Stimson's argument that he regards this long-range undertaking as necessary preparation "for a very long emergency."

THIS POSES the question which appears again and again in planning the defense program—how to combine quick results as soon as possible with greater results in the long run? For looked at one way—that of stopping Hitler this year—we must sprint; looked at the other way—that of insuring Hitler's defeat, we must prepare for a long-distance run. The correct planning of the total effort requires a sound and bold judgment as to when to sprint, when to get ready for the long run, and how if possible to do both.

It is in fact necessary to do both. Obviously Hitler has to be stopped so he cannot win, and no less obviously he will be defeated more quickly if, when he has been stopped, the preparations are well advanced for an overwhelming production in the long run. There is no paradox in saying that the more fully we are prepared for a long war, the shorter the war is likely to be.

NOW FOR THE United States there is, speaking broadly, no reason why we cannot combine the sprint with the long-distance effort. We can do both better than any other nation in the world because we have incomparably the greatest reserves of industrial power. Our immediate emergency effort, considerable though it is, uses a much smaller proportion of our much greater industrial power than the war effort of Germany or Britain. Therefore, there can be no question of our being able to push the emergency program and also to supplement it with a longer-range program. We have an unused reserve—it consists of civilian goods that can without any real loss of efficiency or essential comfort be cut down.

Thus there has been a somewhat heated controversy in Washington about whether to expand the steel industry and to contract the automobile industry. There have been steel men who did not wish to expand, fearing over-expansion when the war is over. They have argued for saving steel now by contracting the automobile industry and other such manufactures for civilian use. There have been New Dealers who wanted to expand this steel industry in order, as a writer in The New Republic put it, that "the needs of defense" would "not demand the serious slashing of civilian standards." But, as a matter of fact, it will transpire that we shall both expand the steel industry and contract the automobile and similar industries.

The production of automobiles will certainly be cut drastically. But not in order to avoid the need to prepare an expansion of the steel industry; on the contrary, the contraction in automobiles will not only save steel at once but reduce the general demand upon the industrial machinery of the country so that steel and transportation and material and labor will be available for expanding steel capacity as well as that of other defense industries.

GENERALLY speaking, this illustrates the principle which we can and should adopt. Our choice in general should not be whether we shall put our effort into the short program or the long one. We should choose both because the reserves of our industrial power—now devoted to civilian consumption—have scarcely been tapped.

Be it short or long, we should regard no program to match and surpass Hitler as impossible. For the resources of the North American continent and of the British Empire are immeasurably greater than those of Hitler's empire. We are, for example, now producing automobiles at the rate of over 5,000,000 a year though there are already so many automobiles that one can scarcely find a place to park. It is evident that we have scarcely begun to do what we are capable of doing toward winning the mechanized war.

IF THERE ARE any manufacturers or working men who hesitate about turning over our vast civilian reserves to war production, let them stop to think where they would be if perchance the war were lost. Do they imagine for one moment that in the vast economic chaos which would result there would be much of a market for pleasure automobiles and other mechanical conveniences? If the worst happened in this war abroad, the one kind of business conceivable for them will be war work. Therefore, on any calculation—to win the war or to counteract the effect of losing it—the sooner the managers, technicians, workers, get themselves adjusted to the war economy, the better for them and for everyone else. There is no future for the luxuries if we lose and we cannot win if we do not cut them down in order to win.

Knox Backs Waterway

'Will Aid Defense'

SECRETARY of the Navy Knox yesterday told a Congressional committee that completion of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway would bolster America's defenses in a world where "sea power is going to be of immense importance for the next 25 or 50 years at the least."

The Cabinet officer testified before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee in support of legislation providing for a 27-foot channel through the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence and construction of a huge hydro-electric power development on the New York-Ontario border.

Opening of the Great Lakes to ocean-going shipping would be of "tremendous military value," Knox asserted, since the seaway "would enable us to build many of the ships for our two-ocean Navy in an area virtually safe from attack."

Construction of 10,000-ton cruisers and smaller vessels in Great Lakes shipyards would relieve part of the strain on coastal shipbuilding facilities, he added.

ANOTHER APPEAL for Congressional approval of the St. Lawrence project was addressed to the committee yesterday by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, who charged that those opposing the waterway because of alleged injury to sectional interests are "trifling" with the national defense.

Gov. Lehman said he was convinced there was no basis for claims that completion of the 27-foot waterway would be harmful to New York City or Buffalo or to existing transportation facilities.

"But even if these false and exaggerated fears were in any degree justified," he added, "we could not afford to trifle with our country's security by obstruction, on such narrow grounds, of a project which promises to contribute so much to the safety and well-bing of the entire Nation."

Lehman insisted that the waterway and power development should be considered as a single project, under questioning by several committee members who indicated they would have no objection to the International Rapids power development, if divorced from the seaway.

When Representative Beiter (Democrat), of New York, asserted that every recent Governor of New York has opposed the seaway while running for office and then advocated it after election, Lehman replied:

"I know something about the business of running for Governor and I have always favored the waterway."

A SURVEY of shipbuilding capacity on the Great Lakes was given the committee by Rear Admiral George H. Rock, retired, former chief constructor for the Navy and now head of the Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in New York City.

Admiral Rock, who recently inspected the Great Lakes yards at the request of the Commerce Department, emphasized that these shipyards "are well organized, well equipped, well staffed plants, going concerns able to draw on a large supply of mechanics."

"There is a great tendency to stress the thought that we won't need this additional shipbuilding capacity after this crisis is over," he said. "Nothing could be more short-sighted."

In the Spanish-American war, in the World War "and now in this war that we're well into," he continued, "the dominant cry of this country has been for more ships."

Words For Our Time

Bundists Turn Over A New Leaf

THE FEW, the unhappy few, who preach disunity in an hour of national danger, who travel up and down the country to the delight of Hitler, his bundists, and other misguided people, seeking to drown out the trumpet notes of the President with the screeching of their penny whistles, have in one respect at least turned over a new leaf. They no longer misquote George Washington in the Senate or elsewhere; they no longer assert that if the First President were still with us, or if a Pilot who followed his charts were in the White House, there would be no danger of war. It is possible that this change of tune has resulted from a belated reading of Washington's writings and of the solemn warning which he addressed to Congress not to hope to escape the storms of this war-racked world. Our exceedingly fortunate geographical position was not in those days, when the Western Ocean was a spacious sheet of water, to be regarded as a perpetual safeguard, he argued, a bulwark in which we could have every confidence. On December 3, 1793, he aroused Congress with these weighty words:

"The United States ought not to indulge a persuasion that, contrary to the order of human events, they will forever keep at a distance those painful appeals to arms with which the history of every other nation abounds. There is a rank due to the United States among nations which will be withheld, if not absolutely lost, by the reputation of weakness. If we desire to secure peace, one of the most powerful instruments of our rising prosperity it must be known that we are at all times ready for war."

DISAPPOINTED, then, in Washington, or for some other reason, the disunionists have turned to Jefferson for support. Overlooking the fact that he was the first President to protect our flag and our interests in the Mediterranean, and was also the avowed expansionist who brought us into the Pacific world, they praise him as "our stay-at-home - and - mind-your-own-business President." They add that they wish his successor were of the same way of thinking. They call him an isolationist, the founder of not only the Democratic Party but a charter member of America First and by inference the precursor of Wheeler, Wood and Lindbergh.

This is a fair challenge, and it is to be hoped that many will accept it and examine carefully the record of our third President during a time of great international danger which bears much similarity to the situation we now confront. For they will be surprised by these words of his as long ago as 1809, when the sea that protected us took ten weeks to cross, and not ten days:

We see with great concern the position in which Great Britain is placed, and should be sincerely afflicted were any disaster to deprive mankind of such a bulwark against the torrent which has for some time been bearing down all before it.

JEFFERSON, too, perhaps more than any man in the Colonies, would have been justified in great animosity toward the British, for they had in a ruthless manner invaded his State, chased him from his home and despoiled much of his property. It is therefore a pleasure and a duty to note that, while he did not deny these unhappy incidents, he almost immediately, rising above personal considerations, advocated most eloquently the policy which he held would best safeguard the future of democracies on both sides of the Atlantic. Writing to his friend, John Adams, he said he was:

. . . sure that the British government and constitution would soon be reformed. Were they once under a government which should treat us with justice and equity I should myself feel with great strength the ties which bind us together—of origin, language, laws and manners; and I am persuaded the two peoples would become in future, as it was with the ancient Greeks, among whom it was reproachful for Greek to be found fighting against Greek in a foreign army.

JUST AS the foregoing paragraphs clearly demonstrate how deaf Jefferson was to the promptings of those who cherished the "ancient grudge" and how sympathetic to the endangered democracies of Europe, so he is equally explicit in his statements as to the menace to the American hemisphere from the designs of the European dictators and in his suggestions by which their planned encroachments could be brought to naught. These views were finally embodied in the great state paper which seems to justify the claim of those who maintain that Jefferson should be honored not only as the author of the Declaration of Independence but also as coauthor of the Monroe Doctrine. In his last great paper, sent to President Monroe on October 24, 1823, Jefferson denounced the "lawless alliance calling itself holy" and outlined the policy which, as the danger became more pressing, developed into the pallium of the American republics. It reads:

America, North and South, has a set of interests distinct from those of Europe and peculiarly her own. While the last is laboring to become the domicile of despotism, our endeavor should surely be to make our hemisphere that of freedom. One nation, most of all, could disturb us in this pursuit; she (the England of Canning) now offers to lead, aid and accompany us in it. By acceding to her proposition, we detach her from the band of despots, bring her mighty weight into the scale of free government and emancipate a continent at one stroke, which might otherwise linger long in doubt and difficulty. Great Britain is the nation which can do us the most harm of any one, or all on earth; and with her on our side we need not fear the whole world. With her then we should most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship; and nothing would tend more to knit our affections than to be fighting once more, side by side, in the same cause. But the war in which the present proposition (antagonism to the "Unholy Alliance") might engage us is not her war, but ours. Its object is to introduce and establish the American system of keeping out of our land all foreign powers, of never permitting those of Europe to intermeddle with the affairs of our nations. It is to maintain our own principle, not to depart from it. And if to facilitate this we can effect a division in the body of the European powers and draw over to our side its most powerful member, surely we should do it . . . Nor is the occasion to be slighted which this proposition offers, of declaring our protest against the atrocious violations of the rights of nations, by the interference of anyone in the internal affairs of another, so flagitiously begun by Buonaparte, and now continued by the equally lawless alliance, calling itself holy.

Only a few weeks later, on December 2, 1823, President Monroe gave notice to the world in a message to Congress that the United States would consider any attempt on the part of European powers "to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

TODAY it is the duty of the Government and the people of the United States, in cooperation with their friends of the American republics, to prove that these were not idle words, but the announcement of a carefully considered policy that has survived the vicissitudes of more than a century, that today we are as firmly resolved as we were in the days of Jefferson, Adams and Monroe that, in the words of the man who penned our Declaration of Independence, "Despotism shall not be domiciled on our shores" and that "our hemisphere shall remain that of freedom."

Degrees For 1941

Muffle, Chidsey K. (night club proprietor): To you we are happy to award your choice of any degree in the house for an outstanding act of the year. When a blowsy entertainer at your club concluded his coarse, cheap and leering routine and was about to go into a grand finale in which, standing before a huge American flag, he sang "God Bless America," you leaped into action, tossed him into the alley and announced to the disgusted customers that there was a limit to everything, even in a night club. Pick your degree, Mr. Muffle, and have a cigar. You acted just in time. The customers would have done it shortly.

Crockett, Thaddeus P. (druggist, slide trombone addict and pinochle expert)—You are beyond question one of the great Americans of the year. You established this by one act, when, in response to a customer's inquiry about vitamins, you drew yourself up to your full height of 5 feet 4 inches and said honestly, "After all there must be something they are not good for!" We hand you the degree of Master of Candor and hope you will stay to lunch.

Sputter, Lucius M. (radio commentator, poker player and excavation kibitzer).—You are the Radio Commentator of the Year. Realizing that nothing annoys the public more than to have a commentator abruptly interrupt his remarks on war news to swing into a sales talk on a hair oil you suddenly screamed, "I won't do it. If I'm a war commentator I'll talk about the war. If I'm a patent medicine barker I'll talk about patent medicine. But I won't do both." On second thought, we desire to give you an extra degree, a case of gin and four dozen golf balls. Wottaman!

Doodlebug, Gideon G. (plain everyday citizen).—It has come to our attention that during the last two years you refused to be drawn into any argument on America's duty in the war crisis unless you understood the subject. This makes you Citizen No. 1. Step over to the wholesale department and take a basket of honorary degrees. You deserve more.

Gassemore, Emory W. (newspaper columnist).—Although you held many opinions on the duties of American citizens you at no time in 1940 or 1941 thought yourself infallible and there were times when you frankly admitted you weren't positive. On numerous occasions you tore up a prepared column, exclaiming "This is too opinionated. After all, I can get in over my head." We hand you the degree of Bachelor of Intellectual Honesty and put you at the head of the line for the buffet lunch in the blue room.

Swoddunk, Peter D. (labor leader, horse shoe pitcher and radio fan).—In a position of influence in the American labor movement you at no time compromised with Communists, you openly denounced Moscow influences wherever you saw them and you put the American way first at all times, even under the egg barrage and despite the threats of the hoodlums and gangsters. There is no degree too good for you. And help yourself to some shortcake.

Glook, Artemus S. (public officeholder and politician).—Once your country's future was seen to be plainly at stake in the world war developments, you forgot all about votes, and let your conscience be your guide. Nothing more need be said, Artemus. Will you take a degree or the money?

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

This Man Hitler

BOTH GROUPS in our country, the isolationists and the war party, seem agreed on two points, namely, that Hitlerism is not nice and that it is urgently necessary to arm this Nation. It appears that Charles Lindbergh, Burt Wheeler and Gerald Nye disapprove Hitlerism in a rather perfunctory way, and more out of respect for the record than out of their hearts. But, anyway, they do not indorse this thing, so we are all together on that. They also believe in arming and, inasmuch as Britain can't fight us now certainly couldn't fight us if beaten in this war, except as a Vichyfied and half-hearted vassal of the Nazis, it is obvious that they believe in arming against a victorious Germany. Possibly they believe in arming against the Soviets and Japan, too, but, if so, that makes no difference. The rest of the people have in mind the possibility of trouble with Russia and Japan. However, these two nations were not dangerous until their combination with the German menace—a fact which the isolationists recognize.

SO, TAKING all of us at our word, it all boils down to the fact that the United States has been compelled to drop everything, to spend billions to create an Army and the weapons therefor, to pull the national economy out of joint and to sweat and fuss and whisper darkly among ourselves, because one nation, under one man, has threatened not merely our peace but our existence.

Not even Lindbergh would be preaching rearmament for national defense if Hitler had not taken the German nation off on another rampage. But for Hitler there would be no such fever of preparation against Japan and Russia. Italy, of course, is a silly thing in this situation. Cowards though Mussolini said they were after the defeat in northern France, the British, far from home, needed only a few divisions of their cringing contemptibles to slap his invincibles out of what they called their African Empire with the back of their hand while holding off the Germans in England. And the little Greek nation not only gave Mussolini a free first punch but mauled his invincibles so badly that the punishment and humiliation had driven his people almost to the point of revolution when Hitler came to his rescue.

SO HERE we are, in a terrible dither for no reason on earth except that the German nation under Adolf Hitler deliberately and wantonly made this war. Lindbergh denies this in so many words, but then destroys his denial in admitting that the Nation must arm mightily for defense. Defense against what other warmaker than Hitler? Lindbergh wasn't preaching defense before Hitler took the field. He cannot show you in the record an occasion before Hitler began this war when he took to the air to arouse the people to defense. His record pins him down to the fact that defense was just something that could be attended to any time until Hitler's war and his anti-American conspiracy with Japan made it urgent.

And thus all of us, even Lindbergh, Wheeler, and Nye, arrive at the fact that Hitler is the one who has made it necessary for hundreds of thousands of young Americans to drop out of civilian life to train as soldiers. Hitler has made it necessary to spend the billions and disrupt industrial, economic and personal life in the United States. But for Hitler the world would still be at peace, the conquered nations would still be free, the French would not be hungry, the beautiful edifices of London would be whole and, probably, Franklin D. Roosevelt would not now be President of the United States for a third term.

ONE OF THE top isolationists recently expounded the theory that the hatreds of the beaten peoples of continental Europe would long outlive Hitler, that the German nation, given a military victory and peace, would grow careless with wealth and easy living and that in a short time, as measured by history, Germany would go the way of Austria-Hungary.

It is a tempting proposition. But meanwhile, of course, we must arm tremendously and stay armed for God knows how long, so as to stand off Germany and Japan and possibly Russia.

So we complete the circle and come back to the fact that this Nation has been placed on a military, economic and political war footing by one man leading one nation and must sleep with one eye open and a gun by the bed in readiness to fight that man and that nation for whom Lindbergh bespeaks a victory on the off-chance that history will polish him off in the sweet by and by.

Text of Turkish-Nazi Treaty

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 18.—The text of the German-Turkish friendship treaty follows:

The German Reich and the Turkish Republic, animated by a wish to place relations of the two countries on a foundation of mutual trust and honest friendship, have agreed to conclude a treaty, without prejudice to mutual obligations of the two lands

For this purpose the German Reichs Chancellor has named as plenipotentiary Ambassador Franz Von Papen, the president of the Turkish Republic, Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, who on the basis of their powers have agreed on the following stipulations:

Article 1. Germany and Turkey obligate themselves mutually to respect the integrity and inviolability of their state territories and not to undertake any measures aimed either directly or indirectly at the other treaty partner.

Article 2. Germany and Turkey obligate themselves in the future to contact one another in a friendly way on all questions touching their common interests in order to reach an understanding regarding the handling of such questions.

Article 3. The above treaty will be ratified and ratification documents are to be exchanged immediately in Berlin. The treaty becomes effective on the day of signing and becomes valid for a period of ten years.

The parties concluding the treaty will agree at the proper time regarding the question of extending the treaty.

Drawn up in duplicate in the original, in the German and Turkish languages, in Ankara on June 18, 1941.

Following is the text of the economic note exchanged between Von Papen and Saracoglu:

With reference to the happily concluded German-Turkish treaty of this date, I take the honor to inform your excellency that my government is ready, insofar as it is possible, to promote economic relations between Germany and Turkey with consideration for the possibilities under the economic structures of the two nations, taking as a basis experiences gained in the war, for the mutual benefit of the two nations.

The two governments will enter negotiations immediately in order as soon as possible to create treaty principles for carrying out the terms of this agreement.

Ickes Acts to Send U. S. Oil To Britain, Fill East's Needs

By the Associated Press

A new arrangement giving the United States refineries opportunity to supply "not less than 50 per cent of the petroleum products" purchased for Great Britain under American contracts was announced last night by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Defense Petroleum Coordinator.

The action followed an appeal in this country that domestic refineries be allowed to share in the British oil business. They said that virtually all the American contracts for such petroleum were being supplied from wells in Venezuela.

This was one of a series of fast-moving developments preceding an emergency conference of representatives of America's $12,000,000,000 oil industry, called for today to develop plans for easing the threatened oil shortage in the East.

The coordinator took the first positive step yesterday to supply more oil to the Atlantic Seaboard, announcing that three huge tankers now on routes between California and East Coast ports would be switched to service from Gulf ports to the East, delivering 210,000,000 more gallons of gasoline annually because of the shorter haul.

Ickes emphasized, however, that this increase in the East Coast supply did not greatly lessen the dangers of a prospective shortage in that populous area, where he has said restrictions on civilian use of automobiles appeared "inevitable."

"Many additional steps must be taken," Ickes said, "if a serious East Coast shortage is to be averted."

Darlan's Talk To 'Prodigals'

By the Associated Press

Vichy, June 18.—The text of Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan's broadcast today to Free French troops in Syria follows:

Today I address prodigal Frenchmen who, in Syria, in the De Gaullist ranks, are fighting against their brothers.

You are almost all young men, full of faith and courage. Among you there are young officers whom I have known personally and for whom I feel more pity than bitterness.

You have, like ourselves and with us, felt cruelly the misfortune of our country. The day after the armistice you asked yourselves what was your duty. Badly informed, you thought it necessary to continue the fight. If you had been better informed, if you had better known the history of France, you children of a great race would have understood that it is necessary above all to save the unity of the fatherland, that your duty was to follow the marshal when a year ago he asked all Frenchmen "to gather around him and listen only to his own faith in the fatherland's destiny."

But others, who—and I cry it aloud—had not your disinterestedness, and had not your rectitude, betrayed you. Their crime is unpardonable.

They told you "it is necessary to continue the fight beside England" and that they would give you arms to continue fighting against the Germans and Italians.

I ask you, have you ever had before you other adversaries than your French brethern? At Dakar, at Gabon or today in Syria have you seen a single German or Italian?

You were promise din your enlistment that you never would be sent against Frenchmen. It is against them alone that you have been sent.

I want you to think well about what is being said to you today by the chief, who cannot be turned by insults from what he knows to be his duty. It is not too late to recognize your mistake. Even as prodigals you remain sons of France. In the name of the marshal, who is ready to pardon you, I ask you to join your brothers and your only flag on the other side of the firing line.

Your chiefs, they have no excuse. They will be punished."

Christian Science Churches In Berlin Closed by Gestapo

The Christian Science Board of Directors in Boston, Mass., has received further information on the action of the German government closing the Christian Science Churches in Germany. A report from Berlin reads as follows:

"A descent upon the Christian Science churches was made in Berlin on June 10 by the Gestapo. In that city, there are nine of these churches. Each one is directly affiliated with the Mother Church in Massachusetts at Boston. In each of these churches, the halls and reading rooms were closed by the Gestapo and their religious literature and other property was seized. The Gestapo took the responsible heads of the churches to headquarters and made them sign a declaration dissolving the churches which are registered under the German law. Accordingly it is understood that Berlin has suppressed the whole organization and activity of the Christian Science Church. With respect to the hundred or more Christian Science centers in other parts of Germany, it is reported that the same action has been taken or will be taken. This arbitrary action of the secret police has received no local publicity."

The Christian Science Board of Directors state that insofar as they are aware there is no justifiable reason for this drastic action on the part of the German government. The authorities of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, as well as its branches in Germany, have exercised great care in conforming to all the regulations laid down by the German officials for conducting church services and carrying on Christian Science activities.

The boy said he saw a big sedan parked beside the double door on right and a tall colored man come out of it carrying a heavy bundle. The man, Adrian said, stuffed it into the sedan and drove away. The doorway leads to the cellar of an apartment house. The alley is known by residents of the neighborhood to be a short cut to Nineteenth Street. The murdered Jessie Elizabeth Strieff may have walked through the alley after leaving a delicatessen on Florida Avenue to get home through the storm as quickly as possible. Need for Police Chemist Seen In Failure to Solve Murder

Whether Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23, was poisoned before she was strangled—considered one of the most important questions in the investigation—had not been determined last night because the District Commissioners contend the local police didn't need a staff chemist.

Their statement was made about six months ago when at a conference with police officials they refused to include in a budget for furnishing the "million-dollar Police Headquarters" funds to equip a laboratory already installed.

THIS TOURNIQUET, found in the gutter yesterday at Florida Avenue and Nineteenth Street, is being tested by police to determine whether or not it was the weapon with which Miss Strieff was strangled

The Commissioners argued that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the District Health Department and the Bureau of Standards had elaborate facilities and could handle any scientific laboratory processes necessary to the solution of crimes.

Still three days have elapsed since Miss Strieff's ravaged body was found, and a comparatively simple question of whether she was poisoned or drugged has not been answered.

Health Department toxicologists have specimens from the girl's stomach—included in the tests with the hundreds of others which crowd their daily routine.

John Reed, chief of the Health Department's chemical division, said his facilities were available to the police, and that thus far he had been able to handle all work sent to him by the department, but he indicated the District could well use additional equipment and trained technicians.

Most of Washington's criminological laboratory work is done by two physicians, Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg and Dr. Oscar Hunter, who make the studies in their own laboratories at their own expense and charge the District nothing for their service.

Dr. Rosenberg is a deputy coroner with the title of autopsist. His job is to find out and report to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald the causes of death in suspicious cases.

Yet he goes further—between post-mortems and the duties of a large private practice—to micro-analyze blood, fingernail scrapings, bits of dust and powder, all of which are important to investigators coping with modern criminal minds.

He has assisted in solving several crime mysteries with the microscope and laboratory equipment which he purchased with personal funds, and he does the work because it interests him.

Dr. Hunter, who operates a private laboratory, does pathological examinations for the District police and he also works without remuneration.

DID YOU SEE A GIRL WHO LOOKED LIKE THIS?

One dark blue semitransparent raincoat with a hood attached.

Bill Cunningham's Column: U. S. Citizens Appear Ready to Fight If Aroused . . .

By Bill Cunningham

New York—Having burned rubber and shoe leather through most of this nation east of the Mississippi River these past three weeks, interviewing everybody from car-hops to the presidents of corporations, this Richard Harding Davis of the road maps has a much clearer picture of what this nation is really doing and thinking about the possibilities and probabilities of war.

There definitely is a common denominator to it all. There are differing local colorations. Comments come in varied dialects. There is a percentage of confusion. There are a few individual balks. But the following general sentiments are held in common in all sections, and I don't care who cites what poll to the contrary.

This nation is not yet emotionally ready to fight, but it wouldn't take a great deal to put it there. A couple more Robin Moors, with the subsequent sneering comment from Berlin, would, in most cases, bring the requisite anger. The average American will fight more quickly over a personal insult than he will over a piece of coldly schemed damage. Challenge his honor or his courage, and you have him to contend with. That applies to his national honor as well.

Slug or Ignore Hitler?

This nation, from what I interviewed of it, could never be aroused to a shooting frame of mind by even a masterful technical presentation of how and why a Nazi victory over the British would jeopardize our foreign trade and our general standard of living.

President Roosevelt hasn't made the sale yet with his fireside chats. They've been too generalized, too academic, too unsupported with specific incidents.

The best you can say for that type of attention-calling, is that it has prepared the way. Most of the common folks talked with seem to think the President knows more than he's telling. Some of the upper crust say he doesn't know what he's doing. But all agree we want no part of Hitler. The difference comes over whether to slug him or ignore him.

Many stated they are prepared to believe the worst of the Nazis and to make war to the hilt if Hitler or what he represents, really threatens this nation's security, but before committing themselves unreservedly, they said, they'd like more definite proof. Words, they said, aren't enough—not even the President's words.

Loyal to Democracy

The nation is loyal, for all I could find to the contrary. I couldn't discover anybody who didn't say, and with apparent sincerity, that a Democracy is the only form of government, he cares to subscribe to. Opinions about internal policies differed considerably, but the over-all conception of Democracy was solid.

The average American citizen is approximately the same no matter where his residence. He's generally reconciled to the fact that we're closer to war than to peace and it wouldn't amaze him much to hear of shooting at any minute, probably in the Atlantic, but possibly in the far Pacific.

He's prepared to accept the mammoth taxes as unavoidable necessity. He's worried about production and isn't going to stand for much more of this striking in the plants working on defense orders. This is especially true in the South, which is open shop country.

Criticism of C. I. O. defense strikes is truly belligerent down that way.

When you get the composite picture you'll discover it's a capable and sincere sort of citizen, loyal to his nation and its way of doing business, about 70 per cent sure that, however, we got there, we're going to have an argument with somebody, and in about the same per centum sure that the so-called Axis powers are definitely asking for a licking and somebody ought to give them one for the general peace and security of both present and future.

Meat Organs, Vitamin Sources; Should Be Eaten Twice Weekly

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT was a culinary economy for the expert cooks of a decade or so ago is good nutrition to the modern homemaker. Research has shown all the meat organs to be such rich sources of vitamins, as well as protein, that it is an excellent idea to include them in the menus once or twice a week.

Except for calf's liver—which seems to have risen steadily in popularity and price—the organs are fairly low on the butcher's price list. Oddly enough, beef liver, which is less expensive than calf's liver, is nutritionally more valuable. The liver, heart, kidneys and brains are much richer in vitamins than some of the more expensive muscle meats.

The organs are particularly high in the vitamin B complex—riboflavin, thiamin and nicotinic acid. If you have made a study of the new requirement standards, you have probably encountered some difficulty in planning menus that are up to the standards in thiamin, or B1, and riboflavin, or B2, which are furnished in such liberal amounts in the organs.

Pair of Brains Enough for Two

Don't let lack of experience in marketing for these meats deter you. There are a few simple rules by which you can easily gauge their quality when at your butcher. A pair of brains is enough for two persons. The brains should be pinkish in color and the two lobes should be firm and intact. Do not buy brains that are broken into bits. Avoid flat kidneys and flabby hearts. The texture of the liver should be fine.

Unless they are frozen, the organs will spoil quickly. They should be used immediately after thawing. Tender organs should be cooked at a moderate temperature and the less tender organs, such as beef kidneys and hearts, should be cooked slowly for a long time to make the connective tissue tender. Care should be taken, however, not to overcook the organs, or they will toughen and lose their flavor.

Method Important

As far as reducing goes, the method of cooking meats is the main thing to be watched. On a low-calorie menu it is not possible to include much cooking fat and meats, or meat organs, should be broiled, boiled or baked rather than fried. To save you a search for recipes, here are three easy but very tasty ones:

CALF'S BRAINS—Place brains in collander under cold water tap and turn on water gently. Wash brains thoroughly, removing all extraneous substances, and let drain. Remove transparent casing, salt, cover and let cook for about 12 minutes. Drain again, then return to top of double boiler, add two beaten eggs and two teaspoons of butter and scramble. Serve with halved broiled tomato.

KIDNEYS—Parboil the kidneys, dice and boil slowly with diced carrots, potatoes, celery and a bit of onion.

HEART—Pour scalding water over the heart and let it remain for a few minutes. Remove arteries and veins. Slice, place strip of bacon on top and broil.

White Cliffs of Dover

The white cliffs of Dover, about which we all feel particularly sentimental during these hard days, supply the whiting that is so important in paint manufacture—this is the same sort of chalky substance that was used by the ancient Egyptians and by the old Romans in their painted decorations.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Engaged to Wed Chap Whose Society Bores Her, And Charmed by Company of Long-Time Man Friend, Girl Asks, 'Which of the Two Means Most to Me?'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Because of your wonderful understanding of human nature, I am coming to you for advice. My problem involves two men. I am engaged to one of these men,—whom I shall call Dick. The other, whom I shall call Tom, has been my friend for a number of years. I would like you to tell me, if you can (and I realize it is a large order) which of the two means most to me.

Tom has always been very popular with women, and I felt I was "one of many" to him, although he said (and I believed) that he cared more for me than for any other woman. Dick is the "one-woman" type; more sincere, I believe, and would perhaps make the better husband. He has no bad habits and would be a husband any girl could be proud of;—although he doesn't talk much and has little pep. Both men make a fair salary; and it is hard to say which man will make the greater success in life.

Tom isn't ready to settle down yet; but Dick looks forward to a quiet home life, and is anxious to marry me. Although I am engaged to him, I feel lonely most of the time when I am with him. I need others around to fill in the tedium. Alone with him, I get sleepy and tired. Things seem dull, unless we are making love. Sometimes I think I kiss him just to keep from being bored, and this strikes me as being somehow amiss. (Yet I like his kisses, which suggests that we could be physically compatible in marriage.)

However, I am very "alive" and interested when I am with Tom. The hours seem to fly by. He is well versed in women, their idiosyncracies, etc., and is readily interested, sympathetic, tender, etc., whereas Dick is dense and blundering; often making me feel hurt by his stupidity in saying and doing some cold sort of thing. He doesn't know how to make me feel "protected," while Tom takes charge of situations and makes me want to become inferior and dependent.

I like Tom's kisses, but I am just as happy in his company without them. In fact, sometimes I wish he would be less demonstrative and more talkative. But I love to be with him. When I am, others aren't necessary. Lately, he has told me that he loves me, and has asked me to marry him. However, he says he doubts that I know what I want. I want to be married and have children; but I want to marry the man best suited to me. Which of these two "affections" would you say is the real article? I don't believe in story book, romantic love. Rather, I think one has to build love. Am actually repugnant to you.

NEW ENGLANDER.

Fiance Obviously Means Very Little

DEAR N. E.: You are not in the least in love with Dick, your fiance. He is simply your guarantee against spinsterhood. You are dutifully fond of him, as one is apt to be fond of a faithful friend—but also (and as you frankly admit), rather consistently bored by him, as one is apt to be bored by any friend who takes up most of one's time, in a "take-you-for-granted" way. Your enjoyment of his kisses has little significance—except to indicate that he isn't actually repugnant of you.

Of one thing you may be sure: If you were really in love with him; or felt any form of deep emotional loyalty to him, you could not encourage or enjoy the other man's lovemaking. On the contrary, you would either prohibit such intimacy altogether, in your relationship with your old friend Tom; or, supposing you permitted it, would suffer in consequence a constant vague sense of cheapening yourself, betraying Dick's trust, inviting Tom's light regard, and generally destroying by imperceptible degrees your ability to enter into a fine, sensitive, exclusive, profoundly satisfying love relationship with any man.

The fact that you can play the role of sweetheart to both men interchangeably, without a sense of injuring either or being spiritually soiled yourself, is accountable as follows, in my opinion: The conventional bond of "being engaged" to Dick seems, to you, somehow to justify, to condone, even to make "right," your affectional unreserve with him. And because you are essentially in love with Tom, it seems wholesome and honest (an expression of integrity), to act upon, or to acknowledge, this special feeling in your dealings with him.

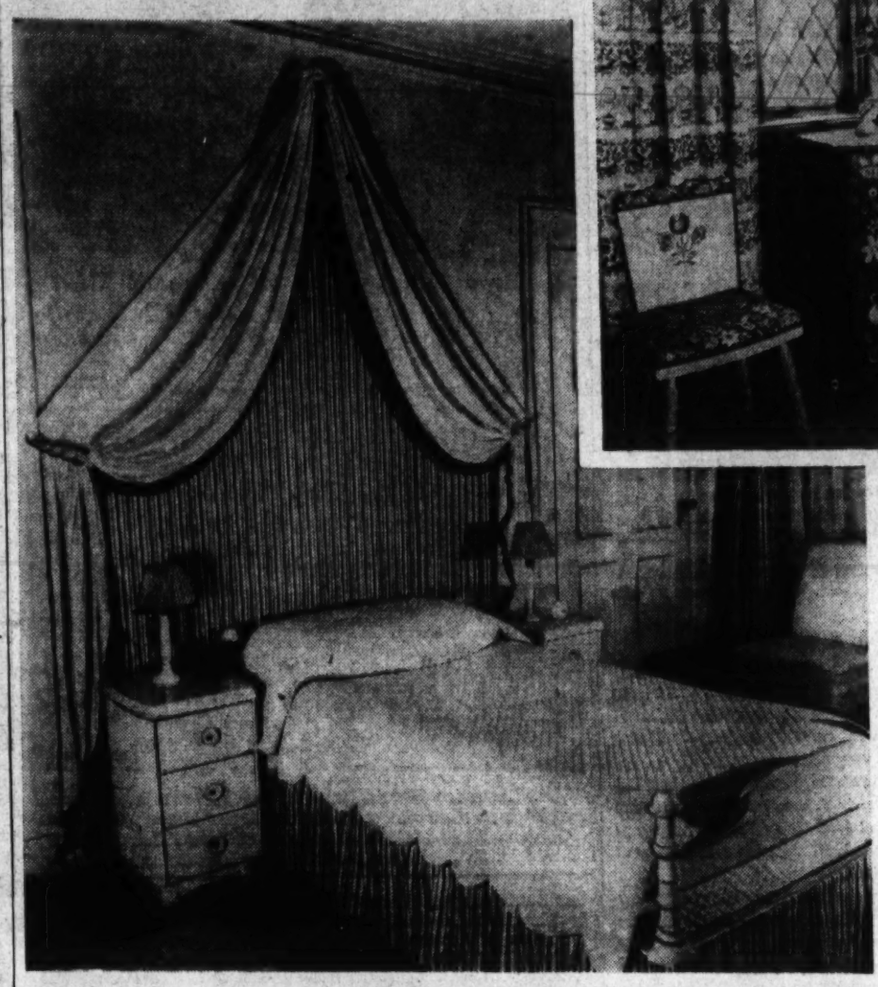
I am not saying this is an admirable philosophy of conduct; but I am convinced it is the explanation of your rather self centered, "two-timing" behavior. If you have a sense of being false to anybody in the set-up,—it is a sense of being false to yourself and your feeling for Tom, in fretfully continuing as Dick's fiancee; when the latter's principal appeal to you is merely that of "sure thing;" of available, dependable "provider," (if you want him). So, to recapitulate,—you are in love with Tom; and mildly appreciative of, but bored by, Dick's devotion to you.

Are you right in thinking "one has to build love?" Not exactly. One works to preserve love—as one would carefully tend a rare and sensitive plant. Or one takes the materials which love supplies and builds of them, say, an enduring edifice of love: a house of marriage. But you can't conjure love into existence by an act of the will; nor by making believe that certain other human sentiments (of constructive import) are the equivalent, or even an acceptable substitute for, love—of the "mate love" variety. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

For That Casual Summer Look

Summer is the time to work out charming decorative notes for the home. Curtains, drapes, bedspreads and dressing table skirts, all amenable to soap and water, should be the rule. On a moderate budget, perky cool-looking accessories may be fashioned from a variety of cotton fabrics. The quilted cotton bedspread with striped cotton ruffle creates a restful atmosphere in the bedroom shown below.



Furnishing ideas are now being borrowed from our nearby neighbors, the Pennsylvania Dutch. Many of their utilitarian pieces of furniture are now being used by decorators. Curtains and slipcovers used with this type of furniture may be printed calicos, checked and striped ginghams or other cotton materials ornamented with the favorite motifs of these thrifty people. In the dining room above, the curtains and chair seats are of a printed cotton material now being shown in local shops

Pique Invades Home Decoration Field

By Martha Ellyn
Post Household Editor

TIME was when a certain fabric had almost a singular purpose. Pique, a heavy cotton fabric with corded or figured surface, has long been a favorite material for summer dresses and suits, collars and cuffs, and pipings and trimmings on clothing.

Martha Ellyn,

But pique—especially white pique—has invaded the interior decoration field, for decorators are now dressing up windows, tables and the like with this inexpensive cotton material. Picture the windows of a room hung with white pique, edged with white cotton ball trimming, and you see a room that looks fresh, cool and dashing. Such material also has its advantages, in that it can be readily laundered.

I saw such a room recently in a lovely home. It was a dining room that was on the formal side of decoration. The piqué was of the thinnest weave, and a profusion of it had been used in fashioning the drapes. Blush pink pique is also effective in creating a quaint charm. It is equally effective in a boudoir or an informal living room furnished in maple or pine paneled.

Part of the Curtain

One point to keep in mind when selecting trimming for informal summer curtains, drapes and other furnishings is to have it a part of the curtain and not let it stand out like a sore thumb. Cotton brushed fringe used in a matching color or off-white is usually the best selection.

Tiny checked gingham, too, has crossed from the dressmaker's domain into the interior decoration field and is now being used for drapes, curtains, bedspreads and in a number of ways all through the house. Bright yellow and white checked tissue gingham edged with yellow rickrack braid put new life into one living room I saw recently. The housekeeper does not need to be concerned about the windows being raised and the sun fading or the dust cutting the curtains when they are of this washable variety.

Striped materials, too, like gay-striped stick candy, also bring color and cleanliness to the home for the summer months. These striped materials that are being shown in the yardage divisions of the department stores inspire homemakers to try their hand at making simple drapes. The materials may be bought in blue and white, rose and white, green and white, yellow and white, and most any color that would be needed in carrying out a pleasant color scheme.

Pennsylvania Dutch

The Pennsylvania Dutch influence has also come into the decorating field. If it is a cheery bit of gay-colored drapes or slip covers you are wanting to perk up the house with, the new cotton prints of Dutch design, on creamy background, printed with Dutch figures picturing their family life, will do the trick. Each time you look at the prints you discover a new interest. The colors are for the most part vivid—blue, yellow, red and green predominating.

Decorating materials seem to have no confines. In the yardage departments you find the popular glo-sheen material being suggested for beach and play wear, evening dresses, garden frocks, as well as for curtains, slipcovers and other decorative notes. This fabric is being offered in plaids and checks, small attractive motifs as well as the sprightly floral patterns.

Dame Fashion usually decrees the trend in household fabric, but there is a right-about-face movement now, for clothing designers are taking their cue in many instances from the interior decoration field.

New Tea Pots

If you take your tea seriously, you will be interested in a tea-ball tea pot that comes to the table on its own little stove. It's of porcelain and chromium and has a little compartment beneath the lid which is lowered by the ball and chain into the boiling water to brew, then pulled up like a bucket from the well—the chain held in place in a groove. The tea ball dangles over the chromium lid.

Booklet Offers Fifty Hymns

A BOND that draws the family closer—that peaceful hour when you gather around the piano for your favorite hymns. "Lead, Kindly Light" appeals unfailingly to children and grown-ups alike.

"Lead, Kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on;
The night is dark, and I am far from home,
Lead Thou me on!
Keep Thou my feet; I do not wish to see
The distanct scene; one step enough for me."

From earliest Sunday school days every one remembers "Jesus Calls Us," a hymn that rings with a heartfelt faith:

"Jesus calls us; o'er the tumult
Of our life's wild, restless sea,
Day by day His sweet voice soundeth,
Saying, 'Christian, follow Me.'"

Then there's "Blest Be the Tie That Binds"—a hymn that's always a favorite:

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love:
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above."

Crown Princess of Netherlands And Consort Receive the Press

Prince Bernhard Proves Himself Past Master of Interview Technique; Predicts General Revolt Against Nazis

By Hope Ridings Miller

PRINCE BERNHARD du Lippe Biesterfeld, German-born husband of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, proved himself a past master at coping with a Washington press corps yesterday in an hour's interview at the Netherlands Legation.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Speaking perfect English ("I learned it from my governess five years before I learned German"), the Prince weighed his words carefully but managed to deliver himself of more opinions than the average titled visitor to Washington. Now and then he conferred briefly with Princess Juliana before answering a question, but more often he came across with a reply entirely on his own hook.

The conference took place in the second-floor reception hall of the Legation, while the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon, Willem Van Tets, secretary to the prince, and Mme. Van Tets, lady-in-waiting to the princess looked on. Trimly turned out in a dark gray suit, white shirt and brown suede shoes, Prince Barnhard stood by the sofa where his wife, who may one day be Queen of the Netherlands, was seated.

Not missing a single trick during the entire time her husband was answering questions, the Crown Princess watched first him, and then the group of reporters. Occasionally, she nodded hearty approval of his replies. For example, when he was asked if, in his opinion, the Nazis eventually would be conquered, and he said, "Yes, yes, of course," she echoed his answer with a vigorous nod.

Evades Question About Possible A. E. F.

Did the prince believe the Allies could win without an American expeditionary force? He hesitated, looked at the princess. Then back at the reporter. That, he said, was "a leading question." He preferred not to answer it. "But I will say," he went on, "that the help Americans are giving now is very important, and very much appreciated."

Conditions in Holland? Well, he hadn't been there for some time; but according to the information he had received, the Nazis had placed the Dutch under rigid rationing of food and fuel. The press obviously was entirely Nazi controlled, and in general all repressive measures of other occupied lands had befallen Holland.

He was convinced that when the proper time comes the people now dominated by the Nazi regime would rise in revolt. He hoped that would not be too soon, because it might result in "a massacre, a slaughter, but later. . . ." He nodded significantly, and so did Princess Juliana.

The former feeling of antipathy toward the British on the part of the Dutch has disappeared completely, Prince Bernhard averred. "Before the invasion, the people were neither pro-British nor pro-Nazi," he continued. "Just afterward, there was strong resentment because the British hadn't done more to help us, and because of the blockade. Soon, however, the Dutch realized the British had nothing to send us at the time; and in a month, the Nazis managed to make virtually all the Dutch anti-German."

Believes Successful Invasion Impossible

Nazi invasion of Great Britain? Well, that was what the British were waiting for, he said; but he was inclined to doubt that the Nazis would ever attempt that. If, and when, they do, he is confident the British can repel it.

At the conclusion of the conference, the Netherlands Minister took over the spotlight briefly to pay tribute to Prince Bernhard. "It is true that he was born in Germany," said the Minister, "but he is 100 per cent Dutchman. I could say 1,000 per cent. We are proud of him, and I might add that he would well serve as a model for some Dutch."

The Crown Princess and her husband, who were overnight guests at the White House, were feted at a luncheon given yesterday at the Netherlands Legation. Guests included several members of the State Department and of the legation staff. In the afternoon the visitors left Washington en route to Canada, where the Crown Princess and their two children have been living for several months. Prince Bernhard, who made a surprise flight to Canada recently to visit his wife and children, hopes to stay on this side of the Atlantic until after his thirtieth birthday, June 29; but shortly thereafter, he will return to England, where he has been serving as aide to Queen Wilhelmina.

Miss Matejka, Lieut. Sheetz Are Married

Although he was unable to be present at the wedding of his daughter yesterday, Col. Jerry V. Matejka, United States Army, cabled his best wishes from London, where he is stationed as military observer. Fort Myer Chapel was the scene of the simple wedding of Miss Gardina Anne Matejka and Lieut Lawrence Cutwright Sheetz, United States Army, at 5 o'clock. It was attended by members of the two families and a few intimate friends. A reception followed at the Army War College club.

White lilies and carnations adorned the altar for the ceremony, at which Chaplain Speer Strahan officiated. The bride, who walked down the aisle unescorted, wore a white lace and marquisette gown which floated into a graceful train. Her veil fell from a halo of tucked tulle and was caught with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of white gladioli and larkspur.

Sister Serves As Attendant

Miss Katherine Matejka served as maid of honor for her sister. She wore a blue marquisette frock with puffed sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Her bonnett was of a matching shade and she carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

Quite unexpectedly, Lieut. William Buck found he was able to fly from Newfoundland to serve as best man. Ushers included Lieut. John C. Liggett, of Fort Monmouth, N. J.; Lieut. William B. Latta, Lieut. Thomas Riley, Lieut. Gordon Cauble, Lieut. James Althouse and Lieut. Lawrence Forbes.

It was a military ceremony and the couple left the church under a gleaming arch of swords. The bride cut the heart-shaped wedding cake with her husband's sword—true to Army tradition. White and blue flowers were used throughout the spacious room in the officers club for the reception which followed. Mrs. Matejka, who received with the young couple, wore a dusty rose lace and marquisette gown. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sheetz, of Uniontown, Pa., came here for the ceremony. She wore a blue lace gown.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

MRS. ARTHUR WOODS is among the many Washingtonians who plan to take their summer vacations right in their own back yards. Mrs. Woods recently acquired a full time job as assistant to the Director of Information for the campaign to sell Defense Bonds. She has a desk in the Treasury Department and puts in a full eight hours a day.

MRS. WOODS

A niece of Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Woods headed the Washington Committee for Friends of France last year. She always has been interested in business and several years ago she and her husband started a boys' school in the West, which has proved a great success. She applied the same energy to doing over the beautiful old Robert Todd Lincoln place in Georgetown, part of which she rents out.

• • • •

ANOTHER business-minded Washingtonian is Anne Perin, who will spend the summer here hard at work in a real estate office. What with the present demand, this should be the quickest possible way of getting rich quickly. Anne is now vacationing briefly in Aiken, S. C., before taking up her new duties.

• • • •

FEWER YOUNG people than usual seem to want to be idle this summer. Lewis MacCracken, son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, has a job in upper New York State and his mother will take a house to be near him.

Leaving next month for the West is Mrs. Pearsons Rust, who will motor across the continent with her young daughter, Rosalind. They will visit a San Francisco friend at Lake Tahoe and do not plan to return here until September.

• • • •

SEVERAL COCKTAIL parties are proving that there are still many people left in town. The other afternoon Simon Whitney entertained at the house which he shares with Gordon Tweedy and Shirley Ewing. Miss Eunice MacIntosh, an attractive visitor from Chicago, was among the guests. Others were Belle Johnson, who will be off the middle of July to join her mother at Jamestown, R. I.; Evelyn Walker, Mrs. Walter Louchheim, Barbara Korff and Lilita Dawson. Mr. Whitney lived here in the early New Deal days and is now back with a defense job.

• • • •

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Merrill entertained for a group of friends at their home on Foxhall Road.

Guests gathered on the terrace of their home on Forty-fourth Street, from which the Potomac and the Virginia hills can be seen in the distance.

Mrs. Merrill, who wore a summer print on a white background, said she would be here until August 1. At that time she will take her children and join her parents in Eastampton, Long Island. Mr. Merrill, like many others in the State Department, is not getting leave this summer.

Among those who dropped by were Miss Diana Rowland, who has a new social secretarial job; Mrs. Philip Bonsal, wife of the acting chief of the Division of American Republics; the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Wennerberg; Mrs. William T. Mann, wearing a little flowered hat with her dark dress; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Downs, Robert Coe, and Mrs. Sims Snow.

Breckinridge, Smith Troth

Of interest to Washington is the announcement by Mrs. George C. Breckinridge, of St. Louis, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Virginia Castleman Breckinridge, to John Upshur Smith, of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Upshur Smith, of St. Paul, Minn.

The prospective bride is a cousin of Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long. Her father was the late George Castleman Breckinridge and she is a granddaughter of the late Judge and Mrs. Samuel Miller Breckinridge, of St. Louis, and a direct descendant of John Cabell Breckinridge, brigadier general in the Confederate Army, Vice President of the United States from 1856 to 1860 and candidate for the Presidency in 1860. Miss Breckinridge has traveled extensively in Europe and China. She taught English at the University of Tomsk, in Russia, and has done work toward her master's degree at Columbia University in New York. She was educated at the Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio, and at the University of California and Occidental College. One of her brothers, John Breckinridge, lives in Washington.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of the Breck School in St. Paul, Carleton College, in Northfield, Minn., and the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. He is a member of the Harvard Club of Washington and is with the Social Security Board.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 28, at Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, in St. Louis.

Underwoods Return From Graduation

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Underwood have returned from a visit to Westport, Conn., and Poughkeepsie, N. Y. They attended the graduation of their daughter, Miss Anne Underwood, from Vassar College.

The Underwoods have as their houseguest, Miss Katherine Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schaefer of Pittsburgh and Wianno, Cape Cod.

Mrs. Pepper To Start New Radio Program

"Personality plus"—a new radio program featuring Capital celebrities—promises to enliven the summer season. Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida, will lead off this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock over a local station with an account of the dramatic highlights in her life as a Senator's wife.

Next Monday, at the same hour, Mrs. Charles McNary, wife of Senator McNary, will interview Mother Steed of the soldiers, sailors and Marines club. During the same week Mrs. Paul V. McNutt will interview a soldier, sailor and Marine on their opportunities for recreation in Washington.

The ladies have promised not to stand too much on their dignity—for it would defeat the purpose of the program if only dull, trite questions are asked. The interview with Mrs. Lawrence Wood (Chip) Robert and Mrs. Lionel Atwill on June 26 can be depended upon to be gay and witty.

The interview with Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, who has led an unusually colorful life, is sure to be interesting. Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor has traveled to many strange corners of the world and the interview with her will take place before she leaves for Nova Scotia or shortly after her return. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers has promised "Personality Plus" a bombshell in about two weeks, when a bill she has introduced in Congress will have arrived at a climax.

Mrs. Clarence Cannon will recount the trials of a Congressman's wife. A party at Clovercroft—the home of 15 British refugees—will be covered at 3:15 on Saturday. Miss Beatrice Pinckney Jones will play "Imitations of a Piano" that she played for the children.

Women To Combat Propaganda

More Than Score Of Groups Plan Information Program Series

By Lucia Giddens

The United Women's Organizations of the District of Columbia yesterday voted to conduct a series of information programs "to combat subversive propaganda."

Members of more than a score of women's organizations met at Junior League headquarters to plan joint action for national defense. The movement was given its unified name yesterday.

Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, who was elected chairman of the movement at the first meeting two weeks ago, presided. Other officers elected yesterday were:

Vice president, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, president of the League of Republican Women; recording secretary, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, chairman of the Far East Lecture Series; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arthur Neuman, of the District section, National Council of Jewish Women.

The officers will immediately confer on plans for the series of information programs at which prominent speakers will be invited to give facts about progress in national defense and related questions.

Discussion at yesterday's meeting indicated that the series, to be held once a month in a large hall, will begin in the fall. The participating organizations will urge their membership to attend, and the programs will also be open to the public.

Mrs. Shears announced that representatives of 15 organizations had been authorized by their governing boards to take part in the discussions, but that leaders of a total of 32 organizations representing approximately 45,000 women had expressed definite interest in the movement.

Mrs. Gladys Middlemiss, president of the Women's City Club, suggested that the joint action be extended beyond sponsorship of a speaking program, and that it perhaps include a movement for conservation of materials necessary to defense.

Mrs. Preston Delano of the Washington unit, American Women's Voluntary Services, suggested that it might be feasible to begin the speaking programs this Summer at the Watergate. But later discussion indicated that it would be fall before the series could be organized.

With some representing their organizations, but others attending merely as individual observers, the following were included among those present yesterday: Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, retiring president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. William Van Vleck, of the Washington branch, American Association of University Women; Mrs. Laura Waters, Business and Professional Women's Club; Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Eugene Callahan, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., Junior League; Mrs. W. W. Sloan, Political Study Club; Mrs. P. C. Ellett, District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. George Ross, Washington Council of Church Women; Mrs. Charles McLean Murray, Democratic Women's National Council; Mrs. Jerome J. Wilber, Daughters of the Loyal Legion; Mrs. Carl H. Giroux, Children of the American Revolution; Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Armistead Nelson and Miss Ruth M. McClelland, Washington unit, Women's Overseas Service League; Mrs. Livingston Vann, United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, Wheel of Progress.

Latin-American Social Workers Confer Here

Fourteen leaders in social work from nine American Republics conferred on inter-American cooperation here yesterday and finished off the day by sipping tea with Government officials.

The group, representing schools of social work, took part in a conference at the Children' Bureau, with the bureau's advisory committee on inter-American cooperation and the executive committee of the American Association of Schools of Social Work.

From a discussion on the possibilities in exchanging students and instructors of social work among the United States and other American republics, the visitors went to a tea given by Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the Childrens Bureau, at the Kennedy-Warren, yesterday afternoon.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, who was an honor guest at the tea, stood next to Miss Lenroot. In the line with them were the visiting social work leaders: Miss Marta Escurra and Miss Estela Meguira, of Argentina; Mrs. Stella de Faro and Miss Helena Iracy Junqueira, of Brazil; Mrs. Luz Tocornal de Romera and Miss Rebecca Yzquierdo, of Chile; Mrs. Maria A. Carulla de Vergara, of Columbia; Dr. Emilia Uscategui, of Ecuador; Dr. Julia Nava de Ruisanchez, of Mexico; Miss Francisca Paz Soldan, of Peru; Miss Hortensia de Salterain, of Urguay; Mrs. Luisa A. de Vegas, of Venezuela; Miss Ruth Brocellos and Mrs. Porto da Silveira, of Brazil.

Among guests who thronged to the party between 5 and 7 were Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Parran, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Altmeyer.

Among guests from the Diplomatic Corps were Senor and Senora Dr. Don Julian R. Caceres, of Honduras, and Senor and Senora Dr. Don Luis Fernando Gauchalla.

Flags of the Amreican republics were arranged fan-wise behind the tea table.

The visiting social workers, who are on a month's tour in this country, wil continue conferences at the Children's Bureau today. Two discussion groups will make recommendations on the most effective methods of inter-American cooperation in scholarships, development of professional literature and other points.

Walter Pettit, director of the New York School of Social Work and chairman of the Children's Bureau Advisory Committee on Inter-American Cooperation in Social Welfare Work, will preside at the afternoon session.

Jennings to Be Honored as D. C.'s No. 1 Christian Layman

Coleman Jennings, who was designated last year as the District's No. 1 citizen by the Cosmopolitan Club, today will be honored by the Washington Federation of Churches as the city's No. 1 Christian laymen.

In ceremonies during the Federation's board meeting and luncheon at 12:30 p. m. at the Federation Building, 1749 N Street Northwest, he will receive the plaque annually awarded to the person considered having made the greatest laymen's contribution to Washington's religious life in 1940.

Previous recipients of the award were Major Ernest W. Brown, Chief of Metropolitan Police, 1940; District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws, 1939, and Wilbur J. LaRoe, jr., of the District Parole Board, 1938.

Leading the presentation exercises will be Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, federation president and pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church.

Since retiring from the banking business in 1928, Coleman Jennings has made his name synonymous with "good works," expressed through his presidency of the Community Chest; his founding of youth clubs in America and foreign lands; his interest in the District Workhouse at Occoquan and the National Training School for Girls, his anonymous charities, and in many other ways.

Native of Johannesburg, South Africa, Jennings is a member of the National Council of the Washington Cathedral and the National Council of the Episcopal Church.

COLEMAN JENNINGS

He is chairman of the parish committee of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, for the Forward in Service Movement, and member of its national commission. He is also a vestryman at St. John's.

Jennings is a director of the Riggs Bank, the Y. M. C. A., the Northeast Boys Club, the Family Service organization and many other bodies. He is affiliated with the Chevy Chase University, Metropolitan, Harvard and other clubs. A bachelor, he lives at 1910 Twenty-fourth Street Northwest.

Nickel Milk Barred to Depot Operator

sons who live more than a half mile from the station.

Conversely, clients living only one, two or three blocks away are steady customers.

The Post reported next visited No. 4, which is in the basement of Montgomery School, on Twenty-seventh Street between K and L Northwest. This is a busier depot. Last month it sold 6,282 nickel quarts.

Sales have nearly doubled since E. G. Welch, an elderly WPA clerk, took over the stand three months ago. A merchant himself in better days, he employs the tricks of the trade to good advantage . . . joshing the customers good naturedly . . . calling 6-year-old tikes "Mr." . . . asking about the family's health.

His big worry is that the little depot which he proudly administers is handling about 280 quarts a day when it could be doing 600, if all the eligibles participated and bought the limit to which they are entitled.

"But some of these people have to come so far," he moaned.

Just then a young woman came in and ordered two quarts. Welch noticed that her card showed she had not been in for 10 days. He solicitously inquired the reason.

"Been sick," the woman replied. "And if I don't go for it, there's no milk in the house."

"See how it is?" the clerk said, when she had left. "Eight blocks each way is quite a distance to go for milk even if you're well. (The woman lived on Nineteenth Street)."

An elderly Negro who was another customer, reveals that he shares his milk with two small children. Their parents are not eligible for the nickel quarts.

"But just the same those kids don't get much to eat," the man said as he departed.

Priest Indorses Project

Efforts to obtain liberalization of the eligibility regulations drew new impetus yesterday when the Very Rev. Msgr. Lawrence J. Shehan, rector of St. Patrick's Church and director of the Catholic Charities, heartily recommended that this step be taken. He also indorsed establishment of a surplus milk project in the elementary schools, both public and parochial, which would enable needy children to drink half-pint bottles that would cost only 1 cent.

Both programs are being studied by the Surplus Marketing Administration.

Ordinance Barring Angle Parking Is Opposed

Opposition to the new ordinance banning angle parking in Silver Spring was expressed last night at a meeting of the Silver Spring Board of Trade, at Indian Spring Country Club.

Chairman Wright of the Traffic Committee said that he would appeal, on behalf of the board, to the State Roads Commission, for the return of angle parking "in some form. Another recommendation would have the grass plot "islands" in Silver Spring narrowed.

Deserted Calf Lives 5 Days Without Food

Emporia, Va., June 18 (AP).—J. K. Ligon told the story today of a newborn calf that lived five days without food.

He said he found his cow with one calf, not suspecting that twins had been born until he found the other calf, deserted by its mother, five days later. After several days' feeding from a bottle, the calf is doing nicely.

Three Present Musical Skit At Zonta Meeting

A musical skit, "Behind the Scenes in a Piano Studio," was presented by three members at the Zonta Club luncheon yesterday at the Y. W. C. A.

Frances Gutelius Smith played the role of music teacher, with Irene Neikirk as her pupil and Alice Fay as the mother. After the pupil took her first lesson and progressed to a duet with the teacher, Mrs. Smith climaxed the program by playing a Mexican dance composition.

Dr. Frances Marshall, vice president of the club, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ethel J. Hess, who is attending the Zonta International convention in Memphis.

Women Hear Mary Haworth

"I wonder if the social anesthetic for personal pain isn't to be found in thinking of others and forgetting yourself?" Mary Haworth, Washington Post columnist, asked in her address on "The Public and the Personal Columnist" at the assembly of the Rural Women's Short Course yesterday at the University of Maryland.

She offered that bit of philosophy as an explanation of the fact that her mail on personal problems was never as heavy just before Christmas.

As a columnist, she said she attempted, to the best of her ability, to "solve problems by specific suggestion when possible, to relieve worry and to impart a philosophy of life that is at once optimistic, self-sustaining, ongoing and unpreaching."

As a problem columnist, "you try to help people to face facts realistically, and try to persuade them to live idealistically," she added.

As to the people who write to problem columnists, she said: "I believe they are just everyday sort of persons like myself, who sometimes find themselves unable to see the forest for the trees, who feel they must confide in somebody, must have friendly advice and help, and whose pride or reticence won't permit them to make a confessor of a family associate."

Miss Haworth spoke to approximately 1,000 women who gathered in the gymnasium for the morning program.

Guests of honor will be Mrs. Moe Offenberg, past president of Senior Hadassah; Mrs. Isadore Breslau, president, Senior Hadassah; Mrs. Harry Ostrow and Mrs. I. S. Turover, senior-junior relations chairman, and Irving Levitas, national cultural director of Aleph Zadik Aleph.

50 Expected On D.A.R. Trip

Approximately 50 members of the Daughters of the American Revolution are expected to join in the goodwill pilgrimage to Mexico, sponsored by the District D. A. R., which is scheduled to leave here July 19, Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent, said yesterday.

The Mexican government is arranging a special reception and other entertainment for the group, she said. Among the points touched by the 23-day tour will be Mexico City, Taxco, Guadalupe Shrine, Pyramids of the Sun, Temple of the Quetzalcopal, Floating Gardens and several southwestern cities of the United States.

Mrs. Oberholser, who is also general transportation chairman for the tour, said that D. A. R. members from other parts of the country are being included in the reservations.

Mrs. Hubert E. Paddock, of the Army and Navy Chapter, will head the District D. A. R. Regents' Club for the coming year.

Other new officers are Mrs. W. H. O. McGehee, Mary Washington Chapter, vice president; Mrs. R. H. Lyle Seaton, Columbia Chapter, recording secretary; Miss Helen R. Manion, Continental Chapter, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Wayne Birdsell, Col. James McCall Chapter, treasurer.

Miss Luella P. Chase, past regent of Susan Riviere Hetzel Chapter and first president of the Regents' Club, was elected an honorary member at the recent meeting of the club.

Dean Briggs Speaks To Soroptimist Club

Dean W. Paul Briggs of the George Washington Pharmacy College traced "The History of the Pure Food and Drug Act" at the luncheon of the Soroptomist Club yesterday at the Willard Hotel. Ethel Eyres was in charge of the program.

Guests of the club included Mrs. Briggs, Dr. A. C. Taylor, Dr. Malcolm Gibbs, John Bourke and Mrs. Maude Dulany, of Tampa, Fla. Jesta Richards won the attendance prize.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

MRS. ERNEST W. BROWN is happily tabulating dozens of sheets, pillow cases and towels which have been donated to the camp committee of the Woman's Auxiliary, Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, in preparation for the July 1 opening of the boys' camp at Scotland, Md.

A harvest of linens and cash donations came in at the garden party held earlier this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Allan Councilor, with more contributions filtering in to postpone the reckoning of the total.

Although demands for supplies are heavier this year, because the camp is being enlarged by the construction of four new cabins, Mrs. Brown announced this week that the meeting of this season's needs is assured.

Mrs. Brown is chairman of the auxiliary's committee for the camp, which is named for her husband, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police.

With the cash donations which came in at the party, woolen blankets, bathing suits for boys who cannot afford them and a supply of toothbrushes will be included in the purchases.

The committee will take a jaunt to look things over at the camp early in July, Mrs. Brown said.

GARDEN CLUB PRIZES—As a final flourish of its season, the Silver Spring Garden Club held a competition in flower arrangement this week. Mrs. Theodore Rains, with the best arrangement of hydrangeas, won the prize, a rambler rose bush donated by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Smith.

Mrs. J. Myron Jones' arrangement of rhododendron was judged most artistic and she was rewarded with a forsythia bush, also donated by the Smiths.

The club held this final meeting at Takoma-Silver Spring High School. J. Morton Franklin, of Falls Church, Va., spoke on "Planting and Care of Ornamental Shrubs," and he was rewarded with an honorary membership in the club.

REVEALING FACTS—Many talents that have heretofore been hidden under a bushel promise to come to light with the general registration for volunteer service in the home defense program.

The other day a prominent member of the Parent-Teacher Congress questioned her teen-age son as to services for which he had signed up. They were numerous. Among them were amateur mechanic and electrician, in which she knew the boy could qualify; there were several others, which also were no surprise to her, but the prize in the list was "short order cook." He admitted he never had shown any particular leaning toward culinary art at home, but insisted he could make a sandwich and fry an egg as well as anyone, and he was ready to do his bit over the cookstove if the need arose.

Great British Air Offensive Enters 8th Day

By the United Press

London (Thursday) June 19.—Britain's greatest aerial offensive of the war, which has heaped more than 4,530,000 pounds of explosives on Germany and German-occupied territory, was carried into its eighth day late yesterday when Royal Air Force fighters attacked German shipping in the English Channel and bombed a military camp in northern France.

The Air Ministry said nine German planes were destroyed in the late afternoon raid while the British lost four fighters.

The R. A. F. appeared determined to carry on its destructive work despite heavy British losses, officially admitted to be 49 planes in the eight-day campaign. Germany was said to have lost 55 planes in the same period.

Squadrons of fighters and bombers swept inland behind Boulogne yesterday while other fighter groups patrolled the channel and French coast, the air ministry said.

Military Camp Bombed

"The bombers attacked a military camp, destroying a number of huts," the ministry said. "All returned safely, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

"Some fighter opposition also was encountered and successfully overcome."

Earlier in the day a coastal command plane hit an enemy supply ship of about 1,500 tons with two bombs.

Shortly after 6 p. m. watchers on the Kent coast heard heavy anti-aircraft fire from the German-occupied French coast, punctuated by the explosions of heavy bombs which rocked the English cliffs. A short time earlier there were three or four muffled explosions in quick succession, as if German channel shipping was being attacked.

Industrial Areas Pounded

It was estimated authoritatively that R. A. F. planes have been attacking the heart of German war production during the past seven nights in armadas averaging 200 a night. They have dropped tens of thousands of incendiaries in addition to the great load of explosives.

Bombers Tuesday night blasted at Cologne and Dusseldorf and the surrounding industrial region, dropping explosives and incendiaries on factories, railroad yards, storage depots, docks and airdromes.

The Air Ministry said subsidiary raids were made on Rotterdam, Holland, where large oil supplies are stored, and Ostend, on the Belgian coast.

Veto Seen Forcing County Tax Boost

A recent veto by Gov. O'Conor of a bill passed by the last session of the Legislature which would have provided an engineer for Prince Georges County, will force a tax increase in the county, William A. Carson, chairman of the Prince Georges commissioners, stated yesterday.

He said residents of the metropolitan area of Prince Georges County will probably have to pay additional taxes to meet $16,000 to $24,000 in engineering costs required by an $800,000 improvement program now underway in the county.

Vichy Claims 'Successes' In Syria War

By the Associated Press

Vichy, June 18.—The French high command reported "important successess" in Syria tonight and French military commentators declared Britain had launched the Syrian campaign, "as everywhere else," with too small a force.

The counteroffensive in Syria which started Sunday, the French said, had driven through the British lines so far it had reached the Palestine frontier. British communications were said to be threatened everywhere by the advancing Vichy forces.

Vice Premier Admiral Darlan picked this moment to broadcast an appeal to Free French forces fighting "against their brothers" in Syria to cross over to the Vichy side. He offered them a full pardon.

Admiral Darlan pictured De Gaullist leaders as having betrayed the rank and file and said they would be punished. He had nothing but praise, however, for young De Gaullist officers "full of faith and courage" for whom he felt "more pity than bitterness."

One French communique said that Kuneitra and Merdjayoun, some 40 miles southeast and east southeast of Damascus have been retaken by the French.

The French counterattacks were declared to have endangered British supply lines on all fronts. The entire road between Kuneitra and Damascus was said to be held by the French and British columns which had been attacking in the Kissque sector for a week were described as "definitely stopped."

Bill Gives Mount Vernon Regular Postmaster

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to make possible appointment of a regular postmaster at Mount Vernon, Va., and similar postoffices where no one is able to qualify under the requirement of residence for one year within the area served.

Allies Reported In Damascus

counterattacks behind the main Allied lines occurred when Syrian and Senegalese native troops captained by French officers swept down out of the Jebel Ed Druz country and pushed lighter British units out of Kuneitra, Ezraa and other points.

British Confident

The main Allied advance had swept by these villages a week ago.

British sources tonight however expressed belief that the French had shot their bolt in the area and that Allied reinforcements were sufficient to cope with their threat.

French dispatches said British bombers again raided Beirut last night, and British naval units still cruised up and down the Lebanese coast to support Allied ground forces.

French Ships in Action

Beirut, June 18 (INS).—French naval units, an unofficial announcement said tonight, blasted British coastal positions in the Sidon area in a heavy bombardment.

Simultaneously, Vichy officials in Beirut announced that French motorized units had captured an Allied colonel, 170 officers and 500 men in an undisclosed sector.

Beirut was attacked three times by enemy planes during Tuesday night. Six persons were killed and seven wounded.

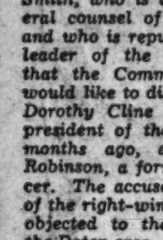
The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Wallace May Head New Defense Agency

President Roosevelt may break another precedent by making Henry A. Wallace a working Vice President.



There's no law that prevents the Vice President from working and Wallace is understood to be the President's compromise choice to head the proposed new agency of economic warfare unless the departments concerned can agree on a single person and how the agency should be operated. A scrap has been fought for weeks over the makeup of the agency and who shall head it. Jesse Jones is back of Will Clayton for the job. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau is understood to be behind Herbert Gaston and Dean Acheson is ably supported by Secretary Hull.

The Dana Doten case has been settled after a month of hearings at USHA, but the memory lingers on. The furlough of Doten was upheld by the administrator's committee and Administrator Nathan Straus concurred with its decision. The UFWA local that has been fighting the Doten case has ordered its "purge" trial held tomorrow night despite, it's reliably reported, the opposition of C. I. O. leaders who demanded the charges be dropped.

On trial and faced with expulsion from the union will be Anya Smith, wife of Tony Smith, who is assistant general counsel of the C. I. O. and who is reputed to be the leader of the right-wingers that the Communist faction would like to discredit. Also, Dorothy Cline who ran for president of the local a few months ago, and Corienne Robinson, a former local officer. The accused are leaders of the right-wing faction that objected to the handling of the Doten case.

Census Opposes Shift

Officials at the Census and HOLC have objected to the suggested transfer of their agencies to other cities. Census is a service agency and it's the belief of officials there that it couldn't perform efficient service if it were sent elsewhere. The agency recently set up a new division to gather statistics for OPM. Officials admitted that the possible transfer of Census was discussed but they don't believe anything will come of it. Census was suggested because it's in the midst of laying off thousands of temporary employes. HOLC already is decentralized, as only 12 per cent of its 7,500 employes are here, but it's possible that the 12 per cent will be transferred as HOLC is a liquidating agency.

The Senate Appropriations Committee knocked out all funds for newspapers in the Labor-Federal Security bill . . . NLRB was treated roughly by the committee. It was slashed $128,500 under the amount approved by the House and the committee disallowed $128,000 the board wanted to use for pay raises. The board's work is up 40 per cent and its employes will be reduced if the committee figure stands.

Commerce employes have been warned not to eat breakfast in the cafeteria after 8:30, the time they are supposed to be at work . . . The average salary paid WPA administrative employes is $1,694 according to WPA . . . Civil Service exams: deputy game management agents, Fish and Wildlife Service, $2,000; multilith cameraman and platemaker, $1,620; multilith press operator, $1,440; naval ordnance materials inspectors, $1,620 to $2,600; attendant, St. Elizabeths Hospital and trainee and helper, $4.96 to $5.92 a day, Washington Navy Yard.

AFGE's Internal Revenue lodge has instructed its delegates to the St. Paul convention to work for the reelection of all national officers . . . A delegation of 30 representatives of UFWA locals in Navy yards yesterday asked Navy officials for an immediate raise to $1.40 an hour for mechanics. The delegation also asked fair trials for its members recently suspended from the Philadelphia yard.

The uniform promotion bill, passed in the House, may be stymied in the Senate as Chairman Bulow of the Senate Civil Service Committee plans to go home in a few days for an indefinite period. However, House leaders of the Appropriations Committee are anxious that the bill pass before July 1, so that 1942 funds available then will be limited for promotions. Otherwise, a limitation will be written in the deficiency bill.

Not a Pleasure Trip

Defense Chief William S. Knudsen yesterday revealed that he was once branded as a slacker in World War I and received a rotten tomato barrage for driving his car on a "gasless" Sunday.

The explanation, he told a press conference, was the fact that he drove his car 14 miles to work each day at the Ford shipyards—and he worked seven days a week.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 18 (UP).—Walter Stanford, 42-year-old draftsman, today hauled a davenport and chair out of his house and relaxed comfortably in a one-man sitdown strike against his wife's relatives.

A patriotic theme also was stressed in the exercises of the Alice Deal Junior High School which were held yesterday afternoon in the school auditorium, Fort Drive and Nebraska Avenue Northwest. The valedictory was delivered by Gene Plummer.

Principal Bertie Backus gave a short talk, taking as her subject the feature appearing in last Sunday's Post, "100 Years Ago Today." She told the children of the gag rule of that time and how the freedom of the press must be preserved today. Letters for service to the school were presented to 65 of the 389 students graduating from the school.

Powell Junior High

Safecrackers escaped with "at least $200 early yesterday after forcing open a safe in Rector's Cafe, 1345 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

The robbery was discovered by Mike E. Vlakos, proprietor. He said the yeggmen entered by breaking a bolt on a basement door.

Watergate Season Opens With Opera Tonight

The first stage of the 1941 season at the Watergate will take place tonight at 8:30 with the presentation of Rudolph Friml's light opera, "Katinka."

318 Graduates Get Diplomas At Franklin U.

John T. Kennedy, president of Benjamin Franklin University, addressing the 318 graduating students of that school last night in the Mayflower Hotel, reminded them that "every gloomy foreboding over the present crisis has been made concerning at least four other crises in our Nation's history."

The present emergency has its bright spots, Kennedy said. He added that circumstances may now force us to suppress communism, to clean up racketeering, to inculcate a deeper respect for law and order, to practice thrift, and thereby to restore self-discipline.

Degrees were conferred by Edwin C. Bosworth, dean of the faculty. Candidates were presented by Joseph I. Zucker, of the accounting faculty, and Samuel A. Syme, of the law faculty. Belford E. Hunsinger, treasurer of the university, presided.

Delia E. Walsh, honor student of the class, delivered the valedictory. United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, dean of the law faculty, presented engraved gold watches to the eight with highest scholastic averages.

Defense Savings Bonds were presented to the eight members of the post-graduate class with highest academic standing.

Winners of the watches were Delia E. Walsh, Robert F. Bartlett, Christopher J. Moran, Frances S. Osheroff, James M. Quinlivan, Bertram W. Sacks, Gladys E. Sanford and Robert W. Smith.

Winners of the Defense Bonds were Elton L. Bennett, Julian L. Blincoe, Maxwell Johnson, John W. Linthicum, John W. Parsons, Bernard L. Payne, Alec A. Pelkin and Hester V. Sias.

Mother Appeals To Central High Student to Return

Don Irvine, 18, a student at Central High School, disappeared from his home, 1650 Harvard Street Northwest, Wednesday afternoon, his mother, Mrs. Laura L. Irvine, revealed yesterday through a radio appeal asking the boy to return.

DON IRVINE

When he left home Wednesday afternoon, Don told the maid that he was going to a Maryland beach, and would return Thursday, but when Mrs. Irvine discovered that he had taken his clothes and money, she knew he had run away. The boy is about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighs 125 pounds. He has sandy hair and light complexion, and was wearing a brown tweed coat with light gray trousers. He has light blue-gray eyes and black brows, his mother said, and these are his most striking features.

Miss Sibley Tries to Depict Rush as Killer

Mary Elizabeth Sibley, 26, yesterday tried to depict Oscar Rush, 42, for whose murder she is on trial, as a murderer himself who burned the body of his victim.

Miss Sibley started to tell what she had heard about Rush while describing an occasion when she claimed he kept her out all night and threatened to beat her brains out with a wrench.

Defense Counsel Charles E. Ford stopped her story and Justice Jesse C. Adkins ordered it stricken from the record.

Miss Sibley was married to Rush in Alabama in 1938, when she was the wife of Wallace Pruitt, jr., Navy Department employe who once ran for Congress in Alabama. For two years, she told the jurors, Rush pursued her, alternately promising eternal devotion and beating her in drunken rages.

Finally, on September 16, 1940, she shot Rush at a parking lot at 1234 Good Hope Road Southeast after they had quarreled all night. He died the next day.

Miss Sibley told the 1 woman and 11 men jurors that she did not hear the shot that wounded Rush. She had loaded the gun during the quarrel, she said, but she later unloaded it because she did not wish to kill him.

Miss Sibley said she took her pistol out of her handbag because Rush asked her to show it to some friends. The next thing she knew, she said, was that Rush clutched at his breast and moaned.

Asserting that she planned the killing, Assistant District Attorney John L. Laskey will ask for the death penalty.

The case probably will go to the jury today.

Arlington Passes 111th Day With No Auto Death

Arlington County's record of no traffic fatalities has reached a mark of 111 days, it was revealed yesterday in Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard's report for the first two weeks in June.

During the period, there were 27 traffic accidents with seven persons injured. Arrests totaled 357, of which 309 were for traffic violations and 49 miscellaneous. There were 102 $2 parking tickets issued.

Senate Group to Get D. C. Defense Budget

An emergency defense budget will be submitted to the District Appropriations Subcommittee in the Senate today.

The budget will be confined to estimates for capital improvements and will be limited to those projects which the District Commissioners believe must be financed in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Total of the estimates will be revealed when the subcommittee continues at 10:30 a. m. consideration of the record $52,500,000 District appropriation bill passed by the House Monday. It is certain, however, that they will run into the millions of dollars, with the possibility that they may be added to the bill before it is reported to the Senate in the next few days.

Preparation of the budget was started yesterday after Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, subcommittee chairman, asked the Commissioners at the hearing for a list of needed projects. Commissioner John R. Young read to the subcommittee a list of projects involving expenditure of $6,144,703 from the general fund and $1,638,000 from the highway fund.

Increased Revenues

Overton told Young he believed some of the improvements could be delayed until another fiscal year and that if additions are to be made to the bill for capital expenditures he wanted them limited to projects which must be launched during 1942.

Additions to the appropriation bill will call for increased revenues, either higher taxes, a Federal payment larger than the $6,000,000 approved by the House, or both, it was made clear.

The list of projects submitted by the Commissioners was the same as that turned over to Chairman George H. Mahon of the House Appropriations Subcommittee, just before the bill was reported to the House last week.

At yesterday's hearing, Commissioners Young and Charles Kutz asked the subcommittee to restore $650,230 of the $1,510,500 cut from their estimates of 1942 needs by the House subcommittee. When Overton observed that restoration of this amount would leave the city officials with a $400,000 "cushion" to meet unanticipated expenditure demands, Young replied:

"We will need a lot more than that."

Five-Year Plan

Young said the list of projects already submitted was prepared on the basis of a five-year plan envisioning the city's normal capital expansion and took no account of what it would cost the District to participate in the Nation-wide civilian defense program in charge of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia. Young estimated the cost at $3,000,000.

The defense budget to be submitted today will propose expenditures for schools, police facilities, sewer and water extensions and other items of capital improvements. It is likely, however, in view of the expected slash in WPA allotments for the District, that it may be necessary to add funds for personnel to perform work now done by relief workers.

Young told the subcommittee news that WPA is to be cut 30 per cent here came as a "very severe blow," but that he preferred to discuss the problem after he has received written notice of the slash order.

Brief Vacations Fortify Stars Against Next Year

Lawrence, Lunts and Skinner Take Time Out; Wanger Acquires "Sensation" and Lubitsch; Tag-Ends and Bobtails Abqut the Theater

TRUE TO INTIMATIONS that appeared here some days ago, Cornelia Otis Skinner, distinguished daughter of Otis Skinner, dean of American actors, will journey to Hollywood in mid-July to make a series of two-reel screen subjects based on her original short stories and sketches . . . The films will supply the cinema with something on the order of a "feminine Robert Benchley" . . . And Miss Skinner is precisely the artiste to do it . . . In the meantime, she is enjoying the first real vacation she has had away from the theater in almost 5 years . . . Out in Colorado she is, reveling in the majesty of the Rockies . . . But in early September she will be back in New York to go into rehearsals of John Golden's production of Guy Bolton's dramatization of W. Somerset Maugham's novel of "Theatre" . . . It was here in the spring, at the National, remember?

CORNELIA O. SKINNER

And speaking of vacations Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne had better be making the most of theirs. The 1941-42 tour of Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play, "There Shall Be No Night," will begin in Montreal on October 20, with Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne again costarred. Before that, Mr. Lunt will have directed "Candle in the Wind," the new Maxwell Anderson play, starring Helen Hayes, for the Theater Guild-Playwrights Company combination.

Mr. Harris Flaunts a Fetish

Producer Sam H. Harris evidently holds with this department that there come times when it is not imperative that "the show must go on" . . . So last week he temporarily closed the engagement of Gertrude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark," at the Alvin Theater, New York, at the height of a run that had played to anywhere from 30 to upwards of 100 standees at every performance since opening night last January . . . The reason was to conserve the health of Miss Lawrence and insure her continuance in the Moss Hart play throughout next season . . . Her nerves were beginning to show the wear and tear of the heavy stresses of the title role . . . She is at Dennis, on Cape Cod, where her husband, Richard Aldrich, is operating a de luxe summer stock company and the ocean breezes are tonic . . . Back to the races on Labor Day . . . It is in "Shining Victory," opening tomorrow on the screen at the Metropolitan, that Bette Davis, first femme of the flickers, plays a "bit" part for the first time in years . . . Felt she owed it to Irving Rapper, who had coached her through miles of dialogue while she was on the way up . . . It was his first assignment as a full-fledged director . . . The bigger they are, the bigger they are," as the man said.

When you go out to the Cross Roads to see "George Washington Slept Here"—as everybody should—better get set for a few sharp shocks. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman pulled none of their punches when they wrote this one—especially in fashioning some of the lines spoken by that 10-year-old miniature Mephistopheles, "Raymond." Or perhaps it is merely that they belt you a little harder coming from a kid who shouldn't know about such things.

The Penalties Might Be Steep

Ralph Edwards, who has been engineering that "Truth or Consequences" business on the Earle stage all this week, is tossing a luncheon today at 2 for the guys and gals of the press . . . It might be a ticklish occasion for those who can make it on a review day so busy as to preclude this desk . . . How would you feel if, on muffing one of Mr. Edwards' casual queries, you had to eat your bouillon with your fingers and sing that "Hut-Zut" song at the same time? . . . That's how we feel about it, too . . . But we'd take the chance if we could.

Hurry-Hurry-Hurry Note

very much in the swim in Hollywood these days, takes advantage of a few days' leave from Universal for some fun with her wire-haired terrier. Army Not Alone Hard on Feet, Says Hollywood Studio Prowler

By Frederick C. Othman
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, June 18.—The sign out front of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio says it's the biggest movie factory in the world, and the way our feet are complaining this afternoon we guess that's no lie. The experts are making movies all over the place, as if there never had been any box office slump, and we hoofed from the first stage to the last, watching handsome people make love, and fight, and crack wise for the talkie cameras.

Another tourist whose feet weren't any too happy was a United States Army corporal, name of J. Stewart. He had the day off from learning to defend his country and he was using it to show his mother, his father, and his two sisters around the studio that used to pay him $2,000 a week. The Stewarts got a kick out of the proceedings and so, in fact, did we:

On stage 19 was that gambler of the Wild West, Clark Gable, with a belt full of bullets and a gold nugget on his watch chain, trying to get in good with Marjorie Main, the only God-fearing citizen in the whole city of Yellow Creek, Colo. Mr. G., who said he'd spent the previous day digging in the earth in his own back yard, looked chipper, while Miss Main looked like Miss Main. In production was "Honky Tonk," a movie in which Gable makes violent love to that dance hall queen, Lana Turner.

Director Jack Conway said it looked like a first-rate show—the kind of old-fashioned, rip-snorting Western that never fails to make a hit with the customers. Conway had in operation a new kind of camera boom, from which the cameraman hangs down, as from a parachute. He can run his camera all over the place without ever losing sight of the actors. This gadget, only one of its kind in Hollywood, takes five men to operate. They earn $10 a day each, or a total of $50. Some of the studio bookkeepers are complaining about that.

"They forget," reported Conway, "that with this boom, our shooting costs are running at around $8,000 a day. Without it, we'd lose enough time to bring the costs to $10,000 every eight hours."

And that would seem to indicate that movie making is a wild-eyed business, even when you look at it from the viewpoint of a bookkeeper. So we walked to stage 28, where Miss Jeanette MacDonald, her husband, Gene Raymond, and a couple of hundred other well-dressed people were dancing in an English garden, where petunias and hydrangeas bordered the walks. They were genuine flowers, too; the Technicolor cameras show up the fakes. The actors all waltzed to the tune of a mechanical orchestra, and from where we stood they looked pretty sweaty. This dampness, said Director Frank Borzage, will not show in the finished product, indicating that the more fun a movie performer seems to be having, the more he's suffering for his art.

About 500 giant lollypops, some 6 feet in diameter, decorated stage 27, where Roy Del Ruth was preparing to direct Nelson Eddy in a movie version of that musical comedy favorite, "The Chocolate Soldier." Candyman Eddy had not yet arrived, but the man who provided the settings, Merrill Pye, was busily on the job. Young Pye builds all the fantastic sets for Metro musicals. The lollypop job was an easy one. Next door he's got a better one. It consists of the heavens, reaching from the earth straight up nearly eight stories and backed with 250,000 stars. Each star consists of a Christmas tree light and each light has had to be wired to a switch, and the electrical job is enough, looks like, to make Pye wake up of a night, shuddering at the bother he's caused.

The Andrews Sisters have an anniversary. Ten years ago they scraped up $9 with which they rented three "formals" to sing at the Kiwanis Club. Now they're getting the same amount per word singing. "Sing, Ye Sinners, Sing!"—say they.

HEDDA HOPPER

The Bride's Career Comes First

Hollywood, Calif., June 18. As you know, Gene Tierney is madly in love with her husband, but that didn't prevent their using great common sense when Walter Wanger offered to take Count Cassini along on the location for "Sundown."

BETTE DAVIS

He refused, saying, "Marriage is one thing—Gene's career is another, and I'll never interfere with it."

And in case there are those unkind enough to believe that he's going to profit by that career, I'd like you to know that the day after they were married he got a lawyer and signed a release on any community property rights.

When and if Fanny Brice marries John Conti, handsome m. c. of the Maxwell show, in a week or so, it will be the third time at the altar for Fanny. You may remember her first was Nicky Arnstein, and parts of their life were woven into the film, "Rose of Washington Square." Then she was Mrs. Billy Rose. "But," says Fanny, "three was always my lucky number. I've been a two-time loser, but this next will be a life sentence."

The tops are never too busy. It's easier to see our President than some little pipsqueak who's just let his new-found success go to his head. I thought of this when, after a hard day's work on "Little Foxes," Bette Davis not only entertained the theater owners at the Goldwyn Studio, but came over and did likewise at Warners'. She was also at the barbecue, along with Mickey Rooney, Edgar Bergen, Gracie Fields, Desi Arnaz, Olsen and Johnson, Harry Carey and many others.

One of Gary Cooper's coming pictures will be "The Singing and the Gold," taken from an old play and woven around the lives of the old Dutch settlers in a small village along the Hudson River.

Don't know why somebody doesn't grab Mitzi Green. She's pretty, she's got a name and can act . . . Happy to hear Adele Rowland, who made the song, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" famous during the war, has her chance in "The Blonde From Singapore" at Columbia . . . Now that Bob Benchley is working there, Harry Cohn would like him to remain for several more pictures.

After Joan Bennett's performance in "Man Hunt," she's had an offer from every studio in town. She played a part few people thought she'd be able to tackle. The girl who helped her with that Cockney dialect was Queenie Leonard, of the English music halls . . . That handsome Ken Alexander, protege of Joe Schenck, finally gets the second lead in "Riders of the Purple Sage," with George Montgomery.

"The Man Who Came to Dinner" hasn't got here yet. Even handsome David Cowles, a non-professional socialite from the East, was tested. But take it from me, the part will go to Monty Woolley, who played it on the stage. The studio's decided not to water down a sparkling farce with a sloppy romance.

Little

Tragedy in peacetime, comedy in war—and both stories laid in England—from the paradoxical contrast apparent in the Little's current bill, "George Takes the Air," continuing from last week, and "Of Human Bondage," the Leslie Howard-Bette Davis film added to the bill to placate revival fans.

Of all his craftsmanly writing, Somerset Maugham is most proud of his story of the medical student and that despicable waitress, Mildred. To his art of story-teller Maugham added a situation universally true and moving. It has been exactly seven years since Bette Davis first appeared as the cruel Mildred, the role which still is admired as her finest. And Leslie Howard never was better than he is here, playing the sensitive student whose peacetime was upset by tragedy.

The continuing "George Takes the Air" finds often riotous slapstick in the present war. George Formby is the chap of the title, a rawboned English comedian "with the face of a horse and teeth like a graveyard." Broad comedy, a "uke" and three applicable ditties are the devices he uses to make the comedy his own. The busy R. A. F. cooperated in the filming.

Columbia

That a woman's face is her fortune is dramatically, if not always convincingly, detailed in the Joan Crawford-Melvyn Douglas film reopening on F Street this morning at the Columbia. Titled, aptly enough, "A Woman's Face," it is a frequently heart-stopping melodrama and offers Miss Crawford her meatiest role since "The Women."

She plays a young woman whose scarred face has warped her outlook on life. Her disfigurement (received as a child in a fire) denies her the normal pleasures of life and she turns to blackmail and any form of skullduggery for great material success. The only man to ignore her misfortune is the evil offspring of a wealthy family. By chance, a skilled surgeon removes her scars, making her a beautiful partner for her scheming admirer, whose only way to the family fortune is the death of his 4-year-old nephew. In the mountains of Scandinavia such a death would be simple for a governess to encompass. The girl's attempts to find a moral life along with her "new" face seesaws with the child's tragic fate.

Like so many of the current films, "A Woman's Face" employs the "flash-back" technique, which means you'll avoid confusion by seeing it from the beginning. Actually, the method is a fascinating one, though it is too bad more care was not given to the opening sequence. There are a couple of clews there.

Miss Crawford, Douglas and Conrad Veidt are exceptionally able in the leading roles.

Writer Finds Carol Robust, Bright Eyed

This is the fourth article in a series about former King Carol of Rumania and Mme. Lupescu in exile.

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

Havana, June 18.—The Cubans are a witty race, with a gay and malicious talent for ticketing the right party with the right nickname.

King Carol and Mme. Lupescu had not been in Havana 24 hours until even the Cubans had outdone themselves with the sheer brilliance of their choice of monikers for his majesty and madame. Instantly, they christened Mme. Lupescu as Mme. Lo Pesco. This Spanish phrase literally translated, means "She fished him." In Americanese it boils down to "She hooked him!"

Genius alone inspired the Cubans to christen his majesty "Caracoles." Literally, this means "snail shell." But it has long since lost this meaning and is a favorite South American exclamation meaning, "Zam."

Certainly this nickname for his majesty is a pretty piece of wit. At one time he was most assuredly the Zam princeling of the Old World. If my pre-conception of Mme. Lupescu was a painted hussy, my vision of King Carol was even less charitable.

Consequently, when I met his majesty at the official residence of Gov. George Harwood of the Virgin Islands, my jaw dropped.

Pink Cheeked, Bright Eyed

This pink-cheeked, bright-eyed man whom Gov. Harwood was introducing as "his majesty, King Carol" and who was giving my hand a quick, firm shake was neither monster nor clown.

Before me stood a man of 47, obviously in the pink and looking years younger. Neither his alleged riotous living nor the actual and constant hazards of ruling a Balkan kingdom for ten years had put a single gray thread into his heavy, bright brown hair and moustache. Nor a single wrinkle or line into his smooth, rather chubby face. His blue eyes are bright and uncloudied.

In only one respect does Carol betray his middle-age. Unless his majesty is careful, he is bound to lose the battle of the bulge. He is suffering from both incipient bay-window and stenographer's spread.

Altogether, Carol looks amazingly like his English cousin once removed, the Duke of Gloucester. Both he and Gloucester are great-grandsons of England's Queen Victoria.

For ten years previous to last September, Carol, for better or for worse, ruled his kingdom with an iron hand. Historians say he worked hard at the job. A 15 to 18-hour day was not unusual. Then he had at his command a number of royal residences and reigned over a multitudinous court.

Court Reduced to Two

Today, the hours must seem strangely empty. The court is reduced to two: Mme. Lupescu and Col. Urdarianu. And the royal residence is a five-room suite on the seventh floor of Havana's super-luxury hotel, the Nacional.

His majesty and madame share a small, delightfully furnished drawing room. Its handsome bleached Cuban mahogany furniture, its green tile floor and matching rug, and its English hand-blocked linen drapes in coral and aquamarine make it a gay and charming room.

The two bedrooms, which open directly off the drawing room and occupied by the King and Mme. Lupescu, are equally innocent of gilt and red plush. Polished dark Cuban mahogany furniture fills both rooms. Mme. Lupescu's room is done in pale yellow, ochre and green.

His majesty's room is done in oyster white and blue. Col. Urdarianu occupies an adjoining bedroom and sitting room.

Tri-State Farm Credit Associations to Meet

Ocean City, Md., June 18 (AP).—Officers and directors of five production credit associations in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia will meet here June 24, 25 and 26. The East Central Fruit Growers Association of Hagerstown also will be represented.

The purpose of the conference, according to Victor Dean, secretary-treasurer of the Denton Produce Credit Association, is to discuss problems concerning membership education, public relations and business development.

Mapmakers Name Randall to Head National Group

Surveyors and mapmakers from all over the country concluded a three-day session here yesterday after setting up a permanent organization, to be called the National Congress on Surveying and Mapping.

Elected to one-year terms were the following: R. H. Randall, of the Bureau of the Budget, president; Maj. George H. Harding, executive secretary, and Thomas G. Adams, consultant to the National Resources Planning Board, treasurer.

These officers will work with ten vice presidents and more than 50 regional directors to develop more uniform methods of making maps and geographical surveys.

Cosponsoring the new national congress are the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, the Committee on Surveying and Geodesy.

Rule Changes To Bring Chaos, Says NBC Head

By the Associated Press

Niles Trammell, president of the National Broadcasting Co., predicted yesterday that the Federal Communication Commission's regulations for networks would place the radio industry under the "domination" of the commission, a small group of stations "and a few large national advertisers."

Trammell said the regulations would bring "chaos" to the radio business and result eventually in noncompetitive, Government-controlled broadcasting.

Trammell testified at a Senate Interstate Commerce Committee hearing on a resolution by Senator White (Republican), of Maine, to prevent the FCC from enforcing its sweeping regulations for radio chains. The FCC has said the rules are aimed at "monopoly."

Trammell said the FCC order directing the N. B. C. to dispose of one of its two networks was "brutal" and "a forced sale" that would compel the company to abandon many noncommercial programs now carried "as a public service."

Among the programs which may have to be dropped if N. B. C. is compelled to give up its blue network, Trammell said, are the Metropolitan opera broadcasts, the Arturo Toscanini New York Philharmonic concerts, Dr. Walter Damrosch's musical appreciation series, the National Farm and Home Hour, the Town Meeting of the Air "and many others." Columbia Broadcasting System may be forced to follow suit in abandoning similar features, he added.

The regulations, he said, would force the networks to give up requirements applied to advertisers to insure certain standards in broadcasting and to protect the interests of small stations.

London Announces Sinking of Eight More Axis Ships

London, June 18 (AP).—The admiralty announced tonight that British submarines, credited only Saturday with a series of heavy blows against Axis shipping, had sunk eight additional vessels under German-Italian control, including a schooner "carrying troops, ammunition and stores" to an Aegean island.

The other sunken craft were listed as the Italian tanker Guiseppina Gharardi, 3,319 tons; "a south bound enemy supply ship of about 4,000 tons," another supply ship of about 2,500 tons, a 500-ton auxiliary sailing vessel, and three caiques, Greek fishing boats

"When Ladies Meet"

Last week the Marquis de la Falaise and his wife—the daughter of a Colombian diplomat—arrived in New York. The Marquis' former wife, screen star Gloria Swanson, invited both of them to tea, and later they all went to Fefe's Monte Carlo . . . When the Marquis and his wife came to Miss Swanson's apartment, their greetings were most effusive . . . And after these long years—during which Constance Bennett had married and then divorced the titled Frenchman—Miss Swanson took the new Marquise aside and presented her with a ring. It was the family ring the Marquis had given Gloria Swanson when she became his bride.

GLORIA SWANSON

When Al Smith visited the White House last week—the first time since Roosevelt's inaugural in 1933—it was at the President's invitation. Smith received a phone call from Steve Early, informing that the President wanted to see him. When he arrived, they shook hands, each commented how well the other looked, Roosevelt thanked him for his recent broadcast suporting the President, and then Smith departed . . . The American Committee sponsoring "France Forever" phoned a distributor of foreign films, told him of a benefit show being arranged, and asked for the right to exhibit a French movie, "Champs Elysees." The distributor refused, reminding "France Forever" that the star of that movie was Sascha Guitry, who now is a Nazi favorite in Paris. And so "Mayerling," instead, will be shown.

Allyn Joslyn's mother came to Forty-sixth Street to see her son perform as the drama critic who wins young Helen Brooks, in "Arsenic and Old Lace" . . . She went backstage later, and expressed her admiration for the play, for the performance given by the cast—especially those by Josephine Hull and Jean Adair, who play the roles of the two spinster ladies . . . "Don't you wish you could be an understudy for the show?" Boris Karloff asked her . . . "Yes, if wishes come true," she sighed, "I'd like understudying in this play" . . . "Which role would you like to understudy?" asked Karloff, "Hull's or Adair's?" . . . "Neither," replied the 72-year-old Mrs. Joslyn. "Because as long as I'm making wishes, I'd wish to be the understudy for Miss Brooks—the ingenue."

John Golden, the producer of "Claudia," was interested in the dramatization of Jerome Weidman's book, "I Can Get It For You Wholesale." He asked Weidman to send him the script, then read it—and finally invited the author to his office . . . The young author seated himself in front of Golden's desk—while the producer stared at him. "Do you see that diploma?" asked Golden—pointing to a framed document on the wall. "Do you know what that's for" . . . "High-school?" Weidman suggested . . . "No, not high-school," Golden informed, returning the manuscript. "That was given to me for having produced clean plays . . . Good afternoon."

Tom Stewart, jr., son of the Senator from Tennessee, has been working as a $4,000-a-year secretary for his father. Young Stewart quit that job last week and enlisted as a private in the Army . . . George Meaney, the A. F. of L. leader, will make a broadcast on the subject "Labor's Responsibility in the Present Crisis" . . . The horse-race scene in Damon Runyon's "Tight Shoes" is the funniest film episode of the season. Leonard Spigelgass and Art Arthur have done a remarkable screen-writing job in adapting the rich humor of Runyon's story . . . El Morocco will close for the season, after tonight, so that the entire staff can be transferred to the Westchester Bath Club in time for the June 20 opening.

The British film industry will be nationalized shortly. All movie operations will come under the supervision of the Ministry of Information . . . Sam Levene, who wanted to relinquish his acting career—after his long, successful run in "Margin for Error"—and hoped to become a director, has abandoned that plan. Levene will leave for Hollywood this week, to appear in the M-G-M movie, "Married Bachelor" . . . An extreme Rightist pocket magazine is having difficulty in obtaining big-time manuscripts. Literary agents are being offered bonuses if they can get nationally known authors to submit material . . . Attorney General Bob Jackson was in the President's office, before it was announced that Stone would become chief justice. Jackson assured the President that Stone was the ideal man for the job.

Before Mayor LaGuardia's home-defense broadcast last night, he saw two sailors stroll into the studio. "You're in the wrong place, fellers," His Honor informed them. "What do you want to listen to me for? You want to go next door—where Eddie Cantor is broadcasting. That's real entertainment. Come on—I'll see that you get in. The sailors thanked him, but as much as they admired Cantor, they had come from Birmingham only to see the Mayor of New York. They sat next to him throughout the entire broadcast . . . Henny Youngman, who appeared in the recent tour of "Meet the People," will be rewarded by the Shuberts with a role in the "Ziegfeld Follies" . . . The confirmations of the Federal judges and the United States Marshal for this district have been held up, pending a deal for the confirmation of United States Attorney Matt Correa.

50,000 See Pittsburgher Give Champ Real Battle

Challenger Leads On Points When Joe Lands Punch On Jaw in 13th

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

Polo Grounds, New York, June 18. Joe Louis held onto his world heavyweight championship tonight—but he never came closer to losing it.

For two full rounds, Billy Conn, the "fresh kid" from Pittsburgh who wasn't supposed to have a "prayer" the good little man who was laughed at as a challenger gave the Brown Bomber more than he sent. Then Joe found the range and with a fearful bombardment that lasted less than a minute and a half, he chopped Conn down in the thirteenth.

The greatest crowd to see a fight since 72,000 turned out for the second Louis-Schmeling tussle three years ago, was on its feet and howling at the finish. A total of 54,487 cash customers contributed to an approximate gross gate of $450,000.

The curly-haired Irish kid was literally beaten to the floor, and, helpless, remained there as Referee Eddie Josephs counted him out. He made an effort to get up at "ten," but he couldn't make it.

Record Stretched

Thus, Louis stretched his all-time record run as "king of the ring" to 18 straight defenses, but, as the fight ended, a roaring crowd that jammed this big National League ball park wondered if two seconds might not have meant the difference between the old boss or a cry for "the king is dead, long live the king."

For Billy was counted out at 2:58 of the thirteenth after the most rousing heavyweight title fight since Tony Galento and the Bomber put on their old-fashioned slugfest two years ago. And, had he been able to make those two seconds to the fourteenth, he might have stayed out of harm's way for two more rounds, to win on a decision. For the 12 completed rounds, he was master. On the Associated Press' score card he led eight rounds to four at that point, making it an absolute "must" for Joe to put the crusher on to keep his crown.

But win or lose for Conn, brother, this was a scrap. Joe started out just as he had indicated in his training camp. He had Billy boy hanging on by the end of the second. Then something happened. Mostly, it was Billy's "Irish" coming out. Through the third and fourth he started to tag Joe, with no more concern for the destroyer's dynamite than if Louis' hands were feather dusters.

Conn Banged Away

Starting with the sixth and going right on through hte twelfth, with the possible exception of the tenth, when Joe opened up, Billy banged away at the head man as though he held a lease on him. He waded in, particularly in the eighth and ninth, and Joe must have got the idea there was a whole machine gun company in the ring with him.

Two swinging left hooks right on the whiskers in the twelfth round staggered Joe, and for a few minutes the crowd, which packed the upper and lower stands and filled every one of the 14,000 infield seats, went absolutely wild. The fans jumped on chairs, tossed hats or anything else handy, and let out a roar like the sound of the Times Square subway station at rush hour as Joe fell back into the ropes and came out covering up and trying to hold on.

But came the thirteenth, and with the unlucky number all the black cats in the world must have trotted

ROUND ONE

Louis rushed across the ring trying to hook Conn into a corner. Joe jabbed to the forehead as Billy hooked away. Conn nabbed Hitler with a left to the face. The challenger again tossed a short straight left and then Billy slipped to the seat of his pants, but was up with no count. In a half clinch, Joe hooked hard to the head. Conn fired a left to the body, but took left and right to the head as Joe caught him against the ropes. Conn hooked twice to the head, but took two hard rights and a left to the ear in return. He was dancing and feinted Louis. Billy poked a left into Joe's nose as he went into a clinch. Louis jabbed a hard left to the eye at the bell. Louis' round.

ROUND TWO

Billy continued to dance around Joe as the champion stalked him. Conn bounced a job off the nose as Louis was wild with a right swing. Twice more Billy jabbed and hooked off. Billy poked a left to the eye and received the same treatment.

Scored on Gamble, Says Champion Louis

Polo Grounds, New York, June 18.—Joseph Louis Barrow is still the world's heavyweight champion because he's a gambler at heart. He said so himself just five minutes after he had knocked out Billy Conn in the thirteenth round of the greatest fight in his career.

Until Joe hammered Billy to the floor with a barrage that sent exactly 11 dynamite-laden punches to the handsome Irishman's face and body, Louis was losing the fight, and what's more he knew it. And despite the fact that he injured his right hand in the seventh round, he was willing to gamble on getting across one punch that would make Winsome Willie go a bit off the beam.

"Yeah, ah knew he was ahead of me, but I was willing to gamble that I would catch him befo' it was over," Louis told reporters in his dressing room. "I think it was when I hit him with mah right hand in the thirteenth that I knew I had him. He tried to start slugging and I let him have it."

Lewis Hurt Once

Louis said he was hurt by Conn just once, although Conn had him staggering around the ring on rubbery legs in the eleventh and twelfth rounds, and in serious trouble in the eighth and ninth rounds.

"He hurt me in the twelfth with a lef' hook, but I was all right," Joe insisted. "I don5t know why everybody keep asking me was I all right."

Louis, as a matter of fact, would have fallen flat on his face if Conn had not caught him in his arms in that twelfth round. Conn had backed the champion into the ropes with an attack which can only be described as a blitzkrieg when he nailed Joe with a terrific left on the point of the chin. It was only Louis' amazing recuperative powers and the fact that Conn's follow-up fizzled that saved Joe at that point.

"What a Hitter"

Conn said he lost because he was "just trying too hard."

"Cripes, what a hitter that guy is," Billy said. "I decided to gamble and try to punch it out with him. I guess I was just trying too hard. But I know I can beat him when we meet again."

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who was glowing over the largest fight gate since the second Louis-Schmeling affair in 1938, asked Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, if he would be ready with Billy for a September return match.

"You can imagine what I said, because if that happens then we'll be boss," Ray explained.

Louis finished the fight almost unmarked. He had a small mouse under his left eye and he said his left ear was giving him pain. It

'Proud of Him,' Says Critically Ill Mrs. Conn

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 18.—"I am very proud of him," whispered the critically ill mother of Billy Conn tonight, when news of her boy's defeat by Joe Louis was taken to her by a sister, Mrs. Rose Shook.

Mary Jane Conn, 20, "Sis" to Billy and boss of the household, collapsed beside a radio as her brother was being counted out.

Peggy Ann, 11-year-old red-haired sister of the boxer, kept a stiff upper lip.

"Aw, he'll get another match and he'll beat that Joe Louis, I'll bet you," said the youngster.

D. C Selectees In Richmond Hear Bout by Request

Richmond, June 18.—A group of 99 selectees from the District of Columbia heard tonight's Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight over a special radio hook-up in the Broad Street railroad station.

Ordered to remain in the radioless station by military authorities, Jimmy Black, former employe in the Redskins' ticket office, and his companions arranged with Station WMBG of Richmond to have special facilities set up at their point of confinement.

Giants, Bucs Tie, 2-2; Game Called in 11th

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 18.—In a game interrupted for a 56-minute broadcast of the Billy Conn-Joe Louis fight, the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates tonight battled 11 innings to a 2-to-2 tie before 24,000 fans. Mel Ott got his seventeenth home run of the year for the visitors and Bob Elliott drove in both Pirate runs in the first inning with a triple.

A National League rule prohibiting the start of an inning after 11:50 p. m., E. S. T. caused the game to be called.

Archie Is Shifted To 3d Base After Nats' Defeat

George Archie has shelved his first baseman's mitt and is now the regular third baseman on the Washington Club. That was the announcement made by Manager Bucky Harris after last night's defeat for the Browns.

Archie was inserted at third base in the ninth inning of last night's game and came up with a sensational stop and throw on his only fielding chance.

Harris will move Buddy Lewis back to the outfield and bench Outfielder Johnny Welaj in the hope that Archie will lend some punch to the Nats' batting attack

Archie was voted the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League as Seattle's first baseman last fall, but previously he had third base experience in the American Association. He welcomes his job at third base with the Nats. "I don't care where I play as long as I'm in the ball game," he said.

Bob Feller Wins 14th, Beats Athletics, 14-2

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 18.—Rapid Robert Feller won his fourteenth game of the season today as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Athletics, 14 to 2, and increased their American League lead to three games.

Feller gave the A's just four hits—the same number as last week when he shut out the Mackmen 2 to 0 for his thirteenth victory—while his tribal mates slammed out 17 safeties, including five home runs and four doubles.

Eight of their hits and seven of their runs, including Lou Boudreau's two-run homer, came in the second inning and drove Les McCrabb out of the box to be replaced by Chubby Dean.

First Baseman Hal Trosky connected for home runs on successive times at bat and Ken Keltner and Ray Mack each clouted one four-bagger.

Everyone in the Cleveland line-up made at least on blow except Feller, who fanned twice.

In winning his fourteenth against three defeats, the young right-hander gave only two walks and struck out eight Mackmen to boost his strikeout total to 119 for the campaign.

The Athletics' two runs came singly, the first in the second when Bob Johnson and Eddie Collins walked and Pete Suder singled, and the other in the fourth when Johnso tripled and came home on Frankie Hayes' long fly.

The largest weekday crowd of the season, 10,507, watched the slugfest.

Javery Hurls Braves to 4-2 Night Victory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 18. — Rookie Alva Javery outpitched Johnny Vander Meer tonight to give the Boston Braves a 4 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and an even break in the two-game series.

The young right-hander weathered several strong threats by the Reds, who tried their best to put on one of their classic ninth-inning rallies.

The Braves went to work on Vandy at the start, scoring two runs in the first on a walk and successive singles by Johnny Cooney, Gremp, and Chet Ross. They put in the winning run in the fifth on one of Frank McCormick's rare errors, a juggled throw, an infield play, and Cooney's second single.

In the sixth the Reds started blasting but quit too soon. Bill Werber opened with a double and Lonnie Frey followed with a triple and scored himself on Seb Sisti's fumble of Ernie Koy's grounder, but the next two men went out easily.

Snead, Back Ailing, Quits Tournaments

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 18.—Sam Snead, the Hot Springs, Va., slammer, has decided to give up tournament golf until he can get some relief for that now famous back ailment.

One specialist has advised a major operation, but, says Sam, "I want to be certain there is no other way out before I let them cut into my back."

The operation would keep him off the golf courses from three to six months.

There have been several versions of the origin of the trouble—which, specifically, is centered in the lumbar vertebra—but Sam expressed belief today that it came from "turning on the pressure" with his potent driver.

In any event, the Alleghany Mountain native, probably will be missing from the National P. G. A. Tournament and the proposed match between the Ryder Cup team, of which Snead is a member, and Bobby Jones' all-stars in August.

Snead tried using straps on his back the other day and went out and set a new record of 82, nine strokes under par, for the Homestead course at Hot Springs.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Blow me down if Washington hasn't come up with a young heavyweight who can fight. On some not too remote evening our town may have a deep personal interest in the fellow who is in there against the heavyweight champion, because his name is very apt to be Jimmy DeChard, the slickest article we've seen with a Washington background.

POVICH

There was a gleam in the eye of the fight mob at Griffith Stadium the other night when young DeChard punched out a decision over rugged Italo Colonello in the semifinal of the Bob Pastor-Buddy Scott fight. The impression DeChard gave was that he was the best heavyweight in the stadium that night, not excluding the main bout principals.

Jimmy Johnston, manager of Pastor, soft shoed about the premises making discreet inquiries about DeChard. Who owned him? Could a fellow get a piece of him? Was it really only the third professional fight for DeChard? The possessive urge toward DeChard was strong with a hundred other guys of the fight mob. They knew a piece of rare fighting flesh when they saw it, and the lad looked like dough in the bank the way he was dispatching Colonello.

It seems that Frankie Mann has done a job on DeChard. The 21-year-old 189-pounder looked like anything but an inept tyro out of the amateurs. Down in Mann's old converted barn in Southeast Washington, where Mann groomed him for four years, the fellow has learned to fight. It has been a rare show of patience by Mann, who refused to rush DeChard along despite the ready money that even a bad heavyweight can command in these days.

Mann, in fact, didn't want the Colonello fight for DeChard. Originally, he had contracted for a softer touch for his boy in the Pastor-Scott semifinals and was prepared to call off the bout when the promoters insisted on running in Colonello. DeChard insisted on going through with it. "I've got to find out some time what kind of a fighter I am," he said, "and if I can't lick Colonello I'm not going very far. I've been training for a fight, so let's fight."

DeChard took command of the fight from the opening bell. For two years Mann had been telling his inmates that finally he had come up with a fine heavyweight fighter. Naturally it was discounted as the mere talk of an enthusiastic trainer, but with the opening gong the truth of Mann's words was manifest. DeChard can, indeed, fight.

He threw the fastest right-hand punches of any heavyweight we have ever seen except Joe Louis. They hurt Colonello, who outweighed him ten pounds, and one of them dumped the big Italian on the floor. DeChard wasn't panicked by Colonello's rushing tactics. Ringsiders gasped as the kid, only lately out of the amateurs, picked off Colonello's leads rolled with punches and counter-punched when he was hit.

Most important, DeChard showed a positive zest for fighting. He looked as if he loved it. He wasn't content to box. He wanted to hurt Colonello, and he did. It was apparent, too, that he can take a punch because he did take plenty, but never was he in any distress. He moved around nicely, showed a pretty good left hand and knew how to protect himself in close which is the last thing a young fighter usually learns.

But that right hand is his chief charm. If Mann taught him how to throw that one during those four years in the gym, it was a masterful job of instruction. DeChard was throwing it straight and sharpshooting with it. Those thrice weekly trips to the gym were not wasted. He threw that right to the head, and he threw it to the body and he was throwing it fast.

They'll never get the lad away from Frankie Mann. There have already been attempts in that direction, but they have died abornin'. DeChard is suspicious of everybody he meets without an introduction via Mann. He doesn't want to be managed by anybody except Mann. "We're in this thing together," he was saying the other night.

As for Mann, he has no worries about the attempts to muscle his boy away from him. "I don't even have a contract with Jimmy," he said. "I don't need any contract, because he's the sort of a boy you can trust. The only fighter I ever had under contract was the only one who ever ran out on me."

Owen Tudor, 25-1 Shot, Takes English Derby

Hurricanes Guard Air Lanes Over 50,000 Fans; Morogoro Beaten in Homestretch

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Sports Writer

Newmarket, England, June 18.—Owen Tudor, a 25-to-1 shot, won Britain's classic Derby today, amid a roar of R. A. F. planes which drowned out the hoofbeats below.

It was difficult to tell whether the 261st Derby was an air show or a horse race because, with one of the biggest crowds assembled in England since the war started, the R. A. F. took no chances. It put every kind of a plane into the air over the estimated 50,000—the biggest crowd to see a race in ancient Newmarket since the sport was started by King Charles—the Charles who lost his head over horses, not politics.

The stretch—where Owen Tudor, flying the silks of Mrs. MacDonald Buchanan, outlasted his stablemate, Morogoro, owned by Maharani Saheb of Kolhapur—carried the thrill of a great horse race with the air carnival thrown in.

Here's the way it was but you've got to get the scene first:

The track of emerald green grass is not circular but virtually straight. The horses start over the green hill—where you can't see them.

A brilliant sun beat down, highlighting the girls' gay gowns and brass buttons of officers' uniforms. The grandstand was packed, the private stand bulging and the general admission stand overflowing with perspiring masses. Across the track on the Downs sprawled 15,000 who walked more than 2 miles from town. A barking bookie yelled: "They're off."

In a moment the 20 3-year-olds came thundering over the hill, running straight at you. They were all knotted together. It was hard to pick out the favorites—Lambert Simnel, Sun Castle, Morogoro. Then you saw it—an outsider, Starwort, plunged ahead, down in the dip of the uphill and downhill track—the uphill being the home stretch in front of the grand stand.

Pounding, galloping, they came, while over the same green hill's horizon appeared the slim, trim shape of a roaring Hurricane, its throttle wide open. Then the crowd began to yell. The din was terrific and strange. Probably nowhere before has such a weird symphony of sound risen from a race track. But this was a war-time Derby with the horses all messed up.

Out of the mob moved Owen Tudor, Morogoro and Firoze Din, a 100 to 1 shot. The Hurricane zoomed off, but the yelling crowd made up for the noise it was lending to the scene.

Morogoro, held at 11 to 2, made a desperate challenge, but little Billy Nevett, who obtained army leave to ride, saw him and gave Owen Tudor the gun. Owen Tudor went across the finish line of the mile and a half race with a length and a half to spare. Morogoro beat Firoze Din two lengths for runner-up honors. Lambert Simnel, 4 to 1 favorite, was tenth, while Sun Castle, second choice, also trailed.

A little man with a sunburned face tried to move in the crowded pres box, where he'd gone because he couldn't find another seat. He was Fred Darling, trainer of Owen Tudor and Morogoro. This made him seven Derby winners. Last year he won with a horse he owned and trained, Pont L'Eveque.

Browns Defeat Nats, 3-2, at Night; Tighten Hold on 7th

Rookie Holds Nats; Travis Hits Homer

Young Bob Muncrief Bests Steve Sundra In Duel; Nats Blow Belated Chances

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats turned on the cellar lights last night and at the end of two hours and 18 minutes of baseball against the St. Louis Browns, they were still in the cellar. They took a 3-2 beating and a firmer grip on eighth place.

Seventy-five hundred fans, many of them leaning an ear against portable radios that blared the blow-by-blow of the Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight, saw the Nats get the tying run on base in the seventh and ninth innings only to abandon it.

The Browns didn't rough up Steve Sundra much, but they jabbed him for a run in three different innings to win the ball game. Sundra outlasted young Robert Muncrief, rookie right-hander from San Antonio, but Muncrief retired with the decision. Both clubs made ten hits.

Fine Fielding

It was a swell ball game by a couple of clubs that were struggling to escape eighth place. A half-dozen superior fielding plays elicited roars of applause that drew dirty looks from the fans who were straining their ears for the Louis-Conn results.

Cecil Travis made a brave fight to keep the Nats in the ball game when he wiped out a 2-to-0 lead of the Browns in the sixth inning with a two-run homer into the left-field corner. It was Travis' sixth circuit blow of the year and his first in more than a month.

In the inning in which they knocked young Muncrief from the box the Nats, paradoxically, failed to score. It was the eighth and they got the tying run on base with two out when Travis drew a walk. Mickey Vernon punched out a double to right that was his third straight hit, and Travis moved to third with the tying run. Muncrief moved out of the box, and Jack Kramer, another right-hander moved in.

Early Purposely Passed

Rookie Manager Luke Sewell ordered Jake Early purposely passed to fill the bases and Manager Bucky Harris countered by inserting Cliff Bolton as a pinch hitter for the slump-ridden George Case. On Kramer's second pitch, Bolton flied out to left and the rally expired.

Buddy Myer, appearing as a pinch-hitter for Sundra in the ninth put the tying run on base with one out when he lashed a single to right. That ended the Nat's success, however. Johnny Welaj grounded into a forced play at second base and Roger Cramer obliged Jack Kramer by lifting a line drive to right for the game ending out.

Three double plays behind him helped Kramer to hold the Nats scoreless for five innings, but with two out in the sixth they suddenly tied the score. Lewis rocketed a single through the box and Travis lashed a long drive to left. When Cullenbine made a wild lunge for the ball near the foul line and came up with a mouthful of soda, Travis beat the drive out for an inside the park homer. He was helped along on his journey by Cullenbine's wild return throw to the infield and finally by Clift's relay to the plate, which struck Umpire in Chief Summers on the foot.

Jimmy Bloodworth came up with a sensational play on Lucadello's grounder that opened the seventh inning, but the winning run spawned from an almost similar play that followed. McQuinn also grounded to Bloodworth, who was forced to make a hurried throw to first, and it was a single for McQuinn. The Browns' first baseman stole second as Judnich fanned for the second out and Cullenbine got him home with a single to right.

The Nats never did recover from that one.

Charley Cushman's Pet Stallion Is Bay Double Scotch

(This is the seventh in a series of articles by Miss Hagner concerning breeding farms in this area.—Editor.)

By Anne Hagner

"I'm going in for quality, not quantity these days," says Charles V. B. Cushman, as he surveys the broad acres of his Windsor Farm, near Upperville, Va., dotted with broodmares and foals.

The visitor, eyeing the quantity of stock on pasture, is apt to arch an eyebrow at the "qaulity-not-quantity" slogan, but Cushman is quick to explain that most of them are boarders.

"Only half a dozen of them belong to me," he explains. "The rest are here to be bred to the bay stallion—his court has had 35 mares this season, you know."

Young for Stud Horse

The bay stallion is Doube Scotch, one of the few sons of Stimulus now standing in this country. Although he is only a 7-year-old (regarded as quite young for a stud horse) his fame is rapidly spreading among hunt country breeders who, admiring his classy bloodlines, have sent a host of mares to be bred to him during the past two seasons.

Double Scotch's record and appearance indicate that he should produce both runners and show horses. Of the former, he won two races and was second twice by a head, in races in which the winners broke track records at Suffolk Downs. Cushman had tremendous hopes for him as a stake horse when he broke a small bone in his foot at the Downs, causing his retirement.

Today the effects of the accident are not even visible as he romps about his big paddock. A bright, dappled bay with a narrow white strip on his face, he is considered

Cards Rout Phillies, 7-3, Boost Lead

St. Louis, June 18.—Johnny Hopp set the tempo with a first inning home run and the St. Louis Cardinals went on from there to win from the Philadelphia Phillies today, 7 to 3.

Max Lanier had a shutout until the eighth inning when his control failed and three runs scored. Until then the left-hander had pitched 21 consecutive scoreless innings. In 53 innings this year only 16 runs have been scored off Lanier who now has five victories and two defeats.

Venzke Gallops Around 18 Holes In 42 Minutes

By the Associated Press

Reading, Pa., June 18.—Veteran Runner Gene Venzke introduces galloping golf to the sports world.

Just to see how fast a round of golf could be played, the former Penn star sprinted and swatted his way around the long Riverside course in 42 minutes, 49 seconds and 91 strokes.

Friends followed in an automobile with Gene's clubs as he covered the 6,300-yard layout in an average of 2 minutes and 20 seconds a hole. His card showed a par and a birdie. He was one over par on 11 holes.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, June 18.—One of the all-time impasses in boxing history reared its head today when Joe Louis and Billy Conn weighed in for their title fight. Both appeared in purple tights!

CONSIDINE

The horrified commission, tossed into a state of added bewilderment, conferred hastily and decided that Conn would be forced to appear in the ring itself with black tights and that Louis would retain the royal purple. This was promptly hailed as a bad omen by the Conn camp. "Billy always wears purple tights," his manager wailed. But Brig. Gen. John Joseph Phelan drew himself up to his full height, arched his back as if he were leading the St. Patrick day parade up Fifth Avenue on a gray charger, and ordered that Conn wear black.

Little Benny Everlast, who is the Henry Ford of the boxing pants industry, promptly threaded his way through the sweating multitude gathered in the little basement from the State Department Building, where the weigh-in ceremonies were staged, and raced off to his bench. He was busy throughout the afternoon needling a pair of black trunks shinier than the seat of the pants of the perspiring managers who attended to the scale-tipping seance.

Except for this crisis, the weigh-in was without incident. Conn showed up on time, stepped on the scales, dropped what little clothes he had on, and in a crestfallen way watched the bar balance at 174 pounds. In Pittsburgh it might have been announced as 180⅝, but there were too many watching the scales today and no Conn lieutenant intrepid enough to give the scales the old chewing gum or invisible wire treatment.

The rows of moving picture and still cameramen began to blaze away at Conn on the scales; and the usual thundering herd of deputy boxing commissioners, whom you always see standing behind the scales, bore down on the scene.

Dr. William Walker prodded Conn with his veteran stethoscope, while the reporters, sweating under the kleig lights, ducked the flash bulbs being grenaded around by the still cameramen. "Finest trained fighter I've ever seen," the doctor said, mechanically.

Conn waited around a moment, then muttered, "I'm not going to wait for that blankety blink blink blooey Louis." He put on his real pants and went back to his hotel to eat a steak.

Joe came in 25 minutes late. He had gotten lost on the way to the weigh-in site. He stripped and stepped up on the scales. He was about as full of tension as a soggy firecracker. He looked over at us and started to speak. We whipped out a pencil, to be ready to record this militant pearl he was about to cast. But he said, "when you gonna send me them pictures of Sammy Snead?"

Joe weighed 199½, which indicates how hard he worked. Dr. Walker said, "finest trained fighter I've ever seen."

After Joe left, the reporters eddied around Commissioners Phelan and Col. Walker Wear and got a long and hard-to-record statement to the effect that while the commission has a rule that prohibits a fighter in one class fighting a fighter in another class, it is okay for Light-heavyweight Billy Conn to fight Heavyweight Joe Louis. As for the rules of the fight, and the expected battle over the glove situation, Gen. Phelan, that master of lucid prose, stated:

"You can say, gentlemen, that I told the two rules to all three of them. What? I mean told the three rules to all two of them. The rules? Everybody's got one. No fouling and the gloves, gentlemen, there were no request for to put the gloves on in the dressing room ahead of time, as you know what would happen if a story got out and there was a story about a brick put in the gloves, gentlemen. Absolutely no."

Got a rosetta stone on you, bub?

Joe Hunt Loses In Clay Court Tennis Play

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—Young Joe Hunt, of the United States Naval Academy, and Miss Helen Bernhard, of New York, high-ranking entries in the national clay courts tennis tournament, fell by the wayside today as form took a licking.

Unseeded Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati, one of the most improved younger players this season, toppled Hunt, ranked No. 3, with a four-set victory, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Miss Bernhard, seeded second among the women, was eliminated by Barbara Bradley, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 7—9, 6—4.

Title favorites, however, escaped defeat for at least another day. Defending Champion Don McNeill, of Gambier, Ohio, defeated Dave Freeman, of Pasadena, Calif., national badminton champion, 6—4, 7—5, 6—1, and second-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., defeated Charles Olewine, Santa Monica, Calif., 4—6, 7—5, 6—2, 6—2.

Frank Parker of Spring Lake, N. J., the 1939 champion who now is seeded fourth, also advanced into the quarter-finals.

Mike Jacobs May Drop District as Site of Big-Time Fights

Boxing Czar Wants Free Hand Here

Won't Tie Up With Any D. C. Promoter; 'Can't Make Any Money That Way'

By Al Hailey
Post Staff Writer

New York, June 18.—Promoter Mike Jacobs made it plain today that he is through with boxing ventures in Washington—unless the Capital agrees to his terms.

Jocobs' terms are that he be permitted to promote strictly on his own hook—in short, the New York boxing czar would be a lone wolf.

"Uncle Mike," sprawled over three ringside chairs watching the early arrivals pour into the vast Polo Grounds to see Joe Louis defend his world's heavyweight championship against William David Conn, said he is not associated with any Washington fight promoter at present and what's more he doesn't want to be.

Only One Way

"I ain't going to make any money that way," the Sultan of Swat said. "I'll go back in there if they'll let me do my own promoting, but that's the only way."

Asked if he had had any opposition from the District Boxing Commission, Jacobs merely shrugged his shoulders and said:

"If they want me to come back they'll have to see it my way. I could take my fights to any other city just as easily as to Washington and do just as well. I don't have to tie up with anybody."

Jacobs' "partnership" with Ray Alvis is washed up. Jacobs furthermore made it plain that he is not going to do business with the Joe Turner-Gabe Menendez combine.

As for the scheduled return Louis-Buddy Baer brawl, Jacobs was noncommittal.

Blow To D. C. Moguls

"We'll see what happens here tonight," he said.

This probably will be a blow to the District boxing governors, for the commission had proudly announced that Jacobs had promised them the next Louis-Baer shot. If it comes about, which is extremely doubtful at this time, the commissioners will have to eat out of the New York fight mogul's hand.

The outcome of that Baer-Louis episode is making its influence felt keenly upon tonight's proceedings.

Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission and his henchmen were keeping the identity of the referee a deep dark secret until the fighters actually entered the ring for the 15-round championship affair.

Although neither Louis nor Conn's camp has even hinted any opposition to Arthur Donovan as the third man, Gen. Phelan is understood to be peeved with Arthur because of his handling of the Baer-Louis fight in Washington and the attendant bad publicity.

Quality Not Quantity Motif At Windsor

by horsemen as quite handsome enough to sire hunters of quality and substance. Although he measures about 16 hands, most new acquaintances estimate that he must be at least 16.2, so deceptive is his appearance.

Hackenthorpe There

Double Scotch commands most of the attention in the shadow of the Blue Ridge, but there is one horse on the farm who rates more affection. He is 22-year-old Hackenthorpe, English-bread son of Crackenthorpe who, with Cushman aboard, won the coveted Wissahickon Cup, over timber, and numerous other steeplechases and point-to-points. Prior to his racing career, the big chestnut also took an admirable group of show championships, but displayed such speed when he was galloped with members of Cushman's racing string that he was headed for the 'chases.

Also a beloved resident of Windsor is Glyn, broodmare in her early twenties who has produced seven winners out of seven foals. This year's crop of winning racers includes Mafuta and Doctor's Nurse, who scored at Charles Town.

Another stallion arrived in the Cushman barns last April in the person of Black Jacket, gleaming charcoal-colored son of Black Toney. He is owned by the Government Remount Service and is regarded as an excellent prospect for airing hunters, though he has had no chance to prove his worth since he arrived in Virginia.

Promising Colt

Cushman is enthusiastic about one youngster that has shown considerable speed in sporadic dashes over the farm's 350 acres. He's a yearling son of Double Scotch and Glyn, and his owner plans personally to train him for the races.

There is one item in the career of the master of Windsor that has given him Nation-wide fame—of a sort. In 1928, the name of Charles V. B. Cushman headed the Eastland Farms Syndicate that allegedly paid $75,000 for a yearling son of Whisk Broom II at the Saratoga sales.

Cushman is likely to sigh in a most heartfelt manner when this is brought up today. "Don't mention that," he pleads; "it certainly wasn't half as bad as it sounds. What actually happened was, that we purchased the colt on private terms prior to the night he was officially sold." We are anxious to get him because he looked like an unusual prospect, but the price was much less than $75,000.

"I wasn't even in the ringside when he was put up before the sale, and they decided to run up the price on him to make it a world's record. So—they did, and I have been taking the blame ever since. I guess it won't be forgotten if I live to be a hundred."

Chisox Beat Yankees, 3-2; 2d Straight

By the Associated Press

New York, June 18.—The Chicago White Sox captured their second straight one-run victory from the New York Yankees today, 3 to 2, although held to five hits by Spud Chandler.

The Georgian was trying for his first triumph of the year to celebrate the arrival of a baby boy at his house yesterday, but the White Sox, experts at close games, made four of their hits count for runs.

A double by Luke Appling and a single by George Dickey was good for one run in the second and in the seventh they added their others on two hits. Joe Kuhel singled, stole second, beat a throw to third on Myril Hoag's grounder. Then Taft Wright singled and Dickey lofted a fly for runs.

Lefty Thornton Lee, in gaining his eighth victory, allowed ten hits but a two-run homer by Charley Keller in the second was the only blow that hurt. Joe DiMaggio hit safely in his thirty-first consecutive game.

out in front of Billy. He was grinning now, and as confident as if he were taking on a 5-year-old. Then the Bomber, who had done so little punching through the middle rounds that the fans were wondering if he had the wrong idea about what this business was all about, came to like a sleep-walker waking up under a lamppost with his pajamas on.

Billy Could Take It

He caught Billy near a neutral corner with a sharp left and a right cross that brought Conn erect. The "glamour boy" tried to fight back, and for a moment held Louis off. But the No. 1 boy smelled the kill now. He waded in and fired half a dozen rights, each of which might have busted a plank in two. Billy took 'em, but he was badly hurt. Then Joe stood him off with a long left spear, near the Louis corner, and whistled a right hand that had haymaker written all over it.

Conn went down and was motionless until the count reached eight. Then he rose to a sitting position and tried to pull himself up, but it was no go. It was all over, but it was a "pip."

Before that there hadn't been any great damage done, although the champion, at 199½, had a 25½ pound pull in weight. In the third, a Conn left raised a small "mouse" under Joe's right eye. So, just to get even, Louis "skinned" Bill's right cheekbone. In the sixth, Louis caught Conn with a larruping left that busted Billy's right eye, drawing blood from a wound just over the optic. Conn was hurt in the second and staggered in the fifth, but he evened these matters himself in the twelfth. That's when "Louis really got sore."

"I don't remember any particular wallop in that thirteenth," Billy said later in his dressing room, "All I know is there was a helluva lot of 'em. I wanta meet that guy again."

Louis-Conn Blow-by-Blow

Louis continued to stalk the challenger, trying to corner him. Conn hooked to the ear, but took a hard hook to the head himself. Joe dug a right to the pit of the stomach and threw another to the head. Billy bounced a left off the chin. Louis leaped in with a swinging left hook to the forehead. Conn twice threw lefts to the head.

Joe tossed two lefts into the body. Conn appeared to be showing more respect for Louis' punches now. Billy bounced a left off the jaw but in a half clinch took a hard right to the ribs. They traded stiff lefts, then Conn bore in and fired both hands to Louis' head. A small "mouse" appeared under Louis' left eye. Louis threw a left at the bell that seemed to have skinned Conn's right eye. Conn's round.

ROUND FOUR

Louis still stalked the dancing challenger. Conn hit Louis with a straight left to the stomach and a right to the ear. Billy threw a hook to the body and then nailed Joe with a hard right cross to the head. Conn moved in fast and tagged Louis with two straight lefts and a snappy right to the eye.

Billy stuck two straight lefts into Joe's face and then in a half clinch flailed away with his right to the head. Joe held on momentarily. Once more Conn bore in, but caught a hook to the jaw as he came in. Louis fired a left to the ear. Billy bounced a right off the chin, but took a left to the head himself. Conn rushed in with a right to the eye as Joe hooked hard to the head. The crowd was in a continuous uproar now. Conn fired two more rights to Joe's eye. Louis nailed Billy with a smashing left hook to the nose at the bell, but Conn returned to his corner with a grin on his face. Conn's round.

ROUND FIVE

Joe caught Billy with a straight left then crossed a right to the head. Billy hooked two lefts to the ear. They traded jabs as Billy danced away. Billy hooked a left to the head but took a hard left in the pit of the stomach. Billy crossed his right to the jaw but received four punches to the body in a half clinch.

Louis was all out now. Conn was trying to hold at the bell. A short hook just before the round ended cut Billy over the right eye. Louis' round.

ROUND SEVEN

Billy looked stronger as he jabbed Joe's nose. Louis poked two jabs to the head, then was short with a smashing right cross. Joe dug a left to the body. There was little action for a full minute as Joe tried to pin Billy and the challenger danced off. They traded hooks to the head.

Joe caught Conn against the ropes with a hard hook to the body, but Billy bounced out with a left to the eye. Conn caught Joe with two hooks to the head and left and right to the body. Louis dug his left to the ribs. Billy hooked a left to the ear and in close bounced a right off the other ear. Billy tagged Joe with a short right to the chin as Louis smashed away at his body. Conn bounced his right off Joe's eye. They struck straight lefts at long range. Billy threw two rights to the head in close.

ROUND NINE

Billy crossed a hard right to the jaw. Then he was just short with another. Conn jabbed twice to the face. Billy came out of a half clinch and banged away with both hands to the head and Joe covered up. They traded straight lefts. Conn hooked a left to the jaw and two rights to the head. Joe jabbed twice to Billy's sore eye but took a hard right to the head.

Conn fired a right to the head. Louis caught Conn with a hard straight left. Billy jabbed three times to the nose. In a half clinch, Joe bounced a hard hook off the jaw and another to the head, but Billy came right back with one for himself. Joe caught Billy off balance with a right to the head. Billy hooked two more lefts, one to the head and one to the body. They traded left jabs at the bell. Conn's round.

ROUND TEN

Joe came out rushing now, apparently intent on catching the dancer and doing damage. He bounced two hooks off the body. Billy missed with a right, but followed it right up with a hard left to the jaw. Joe threw a solid left to the head. Joe fired a right and two lefts to the head, then caught Billy going away with a long left.

Louis dug what was probably the hardest left of the fight to Billy's midsection. Joe jabbed to the nose. Billy slipped to the bottom rope, apparently on water in a corner, but was up immediately. It was no knockdown. Louis was back to digging both hands into Billy's body now. They traded both handy to head and body. Billy hooked a left to the head, but took a right and left to the jaw. They were mauling at close quarters at the bell. Louis' round.

ROUND ELEVEN

Joe jabbed hard to the nose and then caught Billy with a glancing right on the head. Louis smashed a right to the head, but took left, and right to the body. Joe caught Billy with a vicious hook high on the body. Billy dug a hook to the midsection and caught a left on the jaw. Conn was now staying at close quarters and just keeping on punching. Louis bounced a left off the head.

Billy fired a right to the jaw. Louis jabbed twice with his left to the face. In close, Joe threw two rights to the ear. They traded hard left hooks. Then Conn dug both hands to the body. Billy staggered Joe with two smashing left hooks and Louis held on. Billy fired another hook that hurt Joe and now he was bearing in. They traded hard left hooks at the bell. Conn's round.

ROUND THIRTEEN

Billy walked right in with a right cross to the head. They traded solid left hands to the head. Louis had his right hand cocked, apparently ready for any opening. Billy dug a left into the body, then bounced another off the head. Louis smashed Conn with a hard right. Louis threw two lefts and right to the head and Conn was hurt. They stood against the ropes and flailed away. Conn then fired at least 20 punches at the head and body.

A hook opened Conn's right eye again. Louis staggered Billy with a smashing right to the head. He straightened Bill up with a vicious uppercut. He nailed Conn with two more rights. Conn came back with a hook to the head. Joe threw a solid right that staggered Billy and he followed it up with three more. Another smashing right floored Conn.

Kavakos Beats MayHardware; Boost Lead

Kavakos Grill softballers increased their Capital City League lead last night at Washington Softball Stadium, scoring their sixth league triumph in seven starts by blanking May Hardware Co., 3 to 0. "Lefty" Horejsi hurled his finest game of the season, granting but two hits, and was never in danger. Burke, Ray Grace and Johnson led the Kavakos' attack.

Civil Service fought an uphill battle to nose out Evening Star, 7 to 6, in a 10-inning tilt. Trailing, 6 to 4, in the seventh, the Government workers tallied twice on King's double to tie the game. Then, in the tenth, King was safe on Pitcher Lou Sonnenheimer's own error and scored all the way from first on Norris' pop fly double.

Tonight two National Night League games are scheduled with Census meeting Community Businessmen of Mount Rainier at 8 p. m. and Elite Laundry tackling Lansburgh's at 9:15 p. m.

Gamble Won, Says Louis After Fight

was his injured wrist that gave the champion most worry.

"I han him mah right in the seventh," Louis said, pounding his paw into the palm of his left hand for emphasis. "My hand sort of twisted inside and I felt something pull in my wrist right where it joins the hand."

Louis said he knew then he had to be careful and wait for the perfect opening. He was roundly criticized by the up-close ringsiders, who were of one mind that Louis was obviously "dogging it" in the ring.

He didn't look the same after the eighth round when Billy took the fighting completely away from him. He was slow, a wide open target and he didn't land a good punch again until he put Billy up for the kill with that smashing right hand to the jaw in the thirteenth that preceded his final 11-punch barrage. In fact, Joe wasn't throwing any punches.

Joe was the picture of utter dejection when he returned to his corner after the eighth round. Conn had won the seventh by a close margin and in the eighth he made a monkey out of Louis. Joe returned to his corner and put his elbows on his knees, his head hanging. When he came out for the ninth he had defeat written all over him. And the 54,487 fans sensed it—ending of the Louis dynasty and swelling roar was deafening.

Conn knew it, too. In fact, Conn broadcast it with an exultant shout as he returned to his corner after the eighth.

"I've got him," Billy shouted excitedly to Ray and handler Freddy Fierio. "Ive got that big lug now and I'm going out there and tell him so,' and did just that.

"You've gotta fight now, Joe." Conn said to the champion, who replied, "ah, I know it."

Later in the round Conn slapped Louis a hard one with his lightning-like left hook and taunted Louis with "I got you that time, Joe. I'm going to knock you out."

Louis laughed in his dressing room and said that was the extent of their conversation.

"That Conn is the fastest man I ever saw," Louis said. "He did an excellent job of keeping his head, too. Aw, everybody knows he's much faster than I am."

This last was in answer to a query as to whether he thought he could match Conn's speed if necessary.

Praise on Each Side

Conn had nothing but praise for Louis after the fight and said he was the greatest fighter he had ever met. Louis came over to Conn's corner after the bout and put an arm affectionately across Billy's shoulder, telling Young William, "You're a great fighter, Billy." The dressing room comment of each made them charter members of the Mutual Appreciation Club.

The gate far exceeded Jacobs' afternoon prediction of $350,000.

The $450,000 figure means that Conn will take home about only slightly less than $100,000. Louis gets the lion's share—40 per cent. And the Federal Government gets 10 per cent.

Five Walsh Pistol Marks Are Sanctioned

The record committee of the National Rifle Association has officially recorded nine scores fired by Washington individuals and teams as national pistol records, it was announced by the N. R. A. here yesterday.

The committee, meeting here to officially sanction all new high marks fired in competition so far this year, revealed that Walter Walsh, F. B. I. agent and the Nation's fourth ranking pistol marksman, personally accounted for five individual records, three of which were fired on the same day, February 21, at Charlotte, N. C. These were the gallery slow-fire course at 25 yards, 188 of a possible 200 points; the gallery timed-fire course at 25 yards, 199x200; the slow-fire course at 25 yards, score 200x200 with an additional ten consecutive bullseyes. At the N. R. A. range here in April Walsh scored 288x300 over the gallery three-stage course at 50 feet for his fourth record score. Those four marks were set with the .22-caliber.

The Metropolitan Police team's winning score of 1,112 of a possible 1,200 in the District Gallery Championships here in April was good for a record in the .22 caliber three-stage course, while in the same matches Robert Mansell created a new record for the gallery rapid-fire course at 50 feet by firing 185x200. The other new D. C. record holder is Thurman Barrier with a 295x300 score over the N.R.A. short course with .22 caliber pistols at Coral Gables, and a 292x300 with the .45 caliber pistol over the national match course also at Coral Gables.

Danny Palmer, Rinaldi Lead Pin League

The Anacostia Spillway Commercial "A" meet was paced by Danny Palmer's 142 high single for his Carley's team while Nick Rinaldi, Rinaldi Coal, took the set honors with a 337 total. The Carley's boys won team highs after pinfalls of 597 and 1,726 and took all three from Rinaldi as well.

The War Department Mixed League at Penn was led by Miss Murrell with her 121-315, while Libasci took honors for the men after pinfalls of 142 and 375. The Culebras and Navesinks divided team honors with 509 for the former and 1,468 for the latter.

The Navy Mixed League at Penn Recreation found Mrs. Gruzewski, Navigators, the leading woman for the single with her 124 while Nettl Rutz, Aero Aces, had a 119 game which she followed with a 327 set. Fogelman, Flying Flamingoes, led the men with 148-370, aiding his team to high set with a 1,508 pinfall. The Barnacles and Sea Goons tied for high team game with 515 each.

District Women Golfers Favored in Maryland State Tourney

Chevy Chase Play Starts On Tuesday

Mrs. Payne to Close Entries Tomorrow; Mrs. Walter Stokes Will Defend Crown

The twenty-first annual Maryland State Women's Golf Championship will be played at Chevy Chase Tuesday through Saturday of next week but as far as the title is concerned it looks as though it will be a duplication of the recent District tournament.

For Baltimore and the rest of the Old Line State can hardly match the local talent which includes the defending champion, Mrs. W. R. Stokes; the District finalist, Mrs. Betty Meckley; last year's State finalist, Mrs. Myron Davy, and Mrs. T. F. Neblett, the former Louisiana State champ who is now living here.

Mrs. Jerome Sloman, the Baltimorean who won the Middle Atlantic Championship over the Chevy Chase course last fall, will be among those missing as due to an illness in her family Mrs. Sloman has forsaken golf this year.

Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, local member of the State committee, is accepting entries at the Kennedy Warren, accompanied by the entry fee of $2 plus 50 cents for a handicap card.

Entries close tomorrow afternoon. The course will be open for a practice round Monday, June 23, to those already entered. Mrs. W. L. Weible, Kenwood, and Mrs. L. B. Platt, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Gale E. Pugh, Manor, are other local members of the association.

East Potomac Match May Draw 4,000 Fans

Washington golf fans, who have stayed away from professional golf matches with the usual $1 fee by the thousands during the last few years, are expected to turn out full force for the free exhibition Sunday at East Potomac.

Manager Tommy Doerer, jr., has booked two former National Open champions, Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, for a 2:30 match, which includes himself and host pro Cliff Spencer.

Sarazen and Doerer will pair against Farrell, still one of the most colorful of the big time golf pros, and Spencer, who is hard to beat over his home course.

The public is invited, and even if East Potomac's Sunday regulars are just doubled some 4,000 will be on hand.

Amateur Golf Tryouts in 28 Varied Points

By the United Press

New York, June 18.—Twenty-eight sections, the same number as last year, will be used this year to determine the field for the National Amateur Golf Championship, the United States Golf Association announced today.

The tournament will be held August 25-30 at the Omaha Field Club, Omaha, Nebr. The sectional trials of 36 holes of stroke play will be held August 14 with the exception of the Denver district which will hold its trial on August 11.

A field of 150 players will be eligible with only former champions, probably about 10, exempt. The places will be allotted after the entries of those wishing to play in the qualifying trials and the former champions who wish to compete are received. Entries close August 1 at the U. S. G. A. offices in New York.

The Requisites

Entries will be accepted from amateur golfers having handicaps not exceeding four strokes, and who are members of clubs belonging to the U. S. G. A.

The U. S. G. A. also announced that entries for the Women's National Championship, to be played September 8-13 at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., will close August 12 for entrants whose handicaps have not been computed by authoritative committees, and August 18 for all other entrants.

The 28 points where the amateur qualifying rounds will be played are Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Tampa, Atlanta, Chicago, Cedar Rapids, New Orleans, Country Club of Maryland at Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Omaha, New York, Syracuse, Charlotte (N. C.), Cincinnati, Cleveland, Oklahoma City, Portland (Oreg.), Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Memphis, Houston (Tex.), Salt Lake City, St. Louis, and Huntington (W. Va.).

Ex-Soldier Dean Gets Questionnaire For Draft Today

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—Dizzy Dean, who once served nearly two years in the United States Army, received his draft questionnaire today.

The erstwhile great pitcher and now a Chicago Cubs' coach gave his age as 31 in filling out the blank and listed four dependents. Dizzy is married, but has no children.

"I really don't think I'll have to go at this time," said Dizzy, "but you can bet that if the country ever needs me, I'll be ready and willing to go."

Dean was in the regular Army before starting his baseball career.

Cubs Defeat Brooklyn, 5-1, As Leiber Hits Two Home Runs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers faltered in their pursuit of the first place St. Louis Cardinals today as the Chicago Cubs took advantage of Vern Olsen's five-hit pitching and Hank Leiber's slugging to gain a 5 to 1 decision.

Joe Medwick returned to Brooklyn's lineup and hit a ninth-inning homer to deprive Olsen of his third straight shutout and broke the pitcher's string of scoreless innings at 30. The victory was Olsen's fourth of the season compared to two defeats.

Leiber cracked out two homers to lead the eight-hit attack on Luke Hamlin, Newell Kimball and Vito Tamulis. After the Cubs had scored one run in the first of Dolph Camilli's two-base error, Leiber hit his first homer in the second with the bases empty. Hank found two mates aboard when he came up in the third and he parked the ball in the left field bleachers for his sixth round-tripper of the year.

W. J. Brown Leads Golfers Of Building-Loan League

Martin McCarthy Posts Low Gross With 75; R. H. Sinclair Wins Second Low Net Prize

W. J. Brown, with a gross score of 89 minus 18 handicap strokes for a net 71, won the District Title Cup in the third annual outing of the District Building & Loan League yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

More than 50 members and guests turned out for the afternoon golf while an additional 100 were on hand for the banquet and presentation of prizes at the club last night.

Martin F. McCarthy, one of the District's best amateur golfers with the "Iron Man" sobriquet, won low gross honors as expected with a 75, five shots over par for the hilly Virginia layout. McCarthy is Columbia Club champion and has been a ranking amateur here for years.

R. H. Sinclair missed low net honors by a stroke, finishing second with 90, 18—72, while second low gross went to Edward McAleer with an 85, which is several strokes over the usual game of one of Argyle's better golfers.

The lucky number in the Blind Bogey was 78 and U. M. Donnelly hit it right on the head. The prize for the most pars went to Pat Garrett while Al Miles had low putts, 16 for nine holes.

J. M. Rountree played well below his handicap to win low net among the guests with 88, 25—63. Low gross went to W. R. McCallum with a 77.

Coleman Seeks 4th Straight

Abie Coleman, the gnome, will seek his fourth straight local victory of the season tonight at Turner's Arena in a headline wrestling match against the Green Hornet, mysterious masked grappler.

Coleman has been using a new hold called the "Coleman clutch," and already such ace performers as Lou Plummer, Angelo Leone and Jim Austeri have been forced to give up.

The Hornet, however, is no ordinary opponent. He stretches 6 feet 4, weighs 250 pounds, and will have a big advantage in height. Coleman, undaunted by such a handicap, plans to rely on his speed and wrestling power.

Against Coleman's clutch, the Hornet will use his famous body bend which is one of the most tantalizing attacks seen at the Arena these nights.

'Bow-wow' Enrolls At Pacific College

By the Associated Press

Stockton, Calif., June 18 (AP).—Trouble ahead for football writers and announcers. Wojtkiewicz Wojciechowicz has enrolled at the College of the Pacific hoping to play under Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg.

He says he's a brother of Alex Wojciechowicz, Fordam all-America center in 1939. His friends call him "Bow Wow."

Opponent for Montgomery Is Sought

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced yesterday that he plans to secure an opponent tomorrow for Bob Montgomery, sensational Philadelphia colored lightweight, conquerer of Lew Jenkins recently.

In the meantime, Menendez has signed up Phil Furr, the unpredictable local welterweight, for a special 10-round bout on the Montgomery show scheduled Monday, June 30, at Griffith Stadium.

Furr has won himself new fame in New York as a result of a couple of victories, one in particular, over Vinnie Vines. Philbert is training daily at Turner's Arena for this coming match.

Menendez has been in contact with a dozen managers of lightweights seeking a foe for Montgomery.

Rowe Hurls, Tigers Whip Red Sox, 5 to 2

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 18.—Schoolboy Rowe returned to the mound for the Detroit Tigers today to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 2.

He held the Sox to eight hits and the only extra base hit off the Schoolboy came in the fourth inning when Jimmy Foxx whacked out his tenth homer with none on.

The victory gave the Tigers a two-to-one edge in a four-game series.

Mickey Harris started for the Red Sox and Mike Ryba pitched the last inning.

It was in the fifth that Detroit sewed up the festivities with a three-run rally. Frank Croucher started the ball rolling with a double. Then Rowe, Pat Mullin and Bruce Campbell got singles, and with a dropped throw at third by Jim Tabor to boot, the visitors took over the game.

Senate Beer Tops Schavitz

Senate Beer engineered the first triple play of the local softball season last night in Ballston Stadium as it defeated Schavitz & Sons, Baltimore's 1940 champions, 4-2, in a return intercity exhibition game.

The Baltimoreans loaded the bases with no one out and the score tied at 2-all in the third inning and set the stage for the three-ply killing. Deckleman lined to Al Wellens, who snagged the ball at his shoetops and doubled Cohn at first with a throw to Tuck Woodward. Woodward completed the side-retiring triple play with a throw to Larrick getting Parks at third. Phil Fox held Schavitz to seven hits. Senate got eight off of Parks.

In a supporting game, Yellow Cab upset Plaza Wine and Liquor, 3-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Cy Stewart.

Silver Beam Wins Fourth Victory of Charles Town Meeting

Red Idol 2d, Defeated by Half-Length

Remolee 3d in Feature Before 6,000; $5.40 Is Winning Price; Grouchy in Upset

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 18.—J. V. Stewart's Silver Beam, trained by former Jockey Carl Hanford, turned in her fourth victory of the meeting today when she won the Annefield Purse, named for the historic farm of W. B. Watkins, one of the stewards here. Silver Beam, excellently handled by Jockey Buddy Root, drove up on the outside to a half length decision over the Shenandoah Stable's Red Idol. A length farther back came J. E. Simmons' Remolee to be third in the field of six going 6½ furlongs.

Silver Beam was popular with the crowd of 6,000 witnessing the first of four programs under the guidance of the Charles Town Horse Show Association. The 4-year-old daughter of Trace Call and Silver Lustre paid $5.40 as the favorite. Her time was 1:24 3-5 for the 6½ furlongs. The track was drying out, but slow.

Remolee hopped to the front at once and opened a lead going to the first turn. Shailleen and Red Idol were closest to the pacemaker with Root allowing Silver Beam to settle into best stride. Remolee and Red Idol came together on the backstretch and waged a merry battle out in front. Silver Beam gained gradually. Entering the stretch, Root sent Silver Beam out for racing room and she responded to a drive to wear down Red Idol which had displaced Remolee as the leader.

The daily double went to the combination of "5 and 5." Jockey Rutsy Hernandez put up a fine ride on C. M. Feltner's Scootie to win the second race ahead of Dallyhaunis and Smart Lad. In the third race, Jockey Al Vesseli brought J. E. Simmons' Happy Hostess along in the closing stages to win from High Bud and Overbost.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNNY ROSE, $7.40, $4.40, $4.00; MARY'S BOY, $7.20, $4.80; JETAIME, $11.40.

SUNNY ROSE moved to contention on the outside after a quarter, drew out and was running easily at the close. MARY'S BOY went to the front boldly, but could not resist the winner and closed gamely. JETAIME improved his position gradually, but hung in the final drive. RIVER BROOM was a forward factor early and weakened.

At The Post

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al:

Don't tell a soul but the column has been popping up with some winners lately. They tell me that in Cuba last winter Jockeys Root, Witmer and Scocca had mustaches. The lip trimmings are popular with riders at the Havana track, Jockey A. F. Martinez, now serving a suspension, is one boy who wants all the mounts he can get. "Me ride anything. No chance all right with me," he says. When will Sammy Palumbo get out of his slump? That's the question around here. He figured in a dead heat for first money 29 races ago but he has been up 47 times without getting a whole winner. E. A. Nicodemus, from Waynesboro, Pa., was a visitor yesterday. He is the owner of Mowmet, the 2-year-old son of Mowlee who has won four straight races here. Track Superintendent Henry Erickson has a discouraging job. He and his men worked like beavers yesterday trying to get the track fast and the skies were frowning before sundown. If the rain holds off the oval will be in excellent condition for today's program. When Owner Galt Davis failed to see Yankee Lad perform yesterday it was the first time since he has owned the horse that he has been absent when he raced. The jockey bridegroom was asked why he picked a 6-foot, 200-pound friend for best man. "Somebody's got to help me carry my hefty bride across the threshold," he replied. I got that out of Jockey Albert Vessell's scrap book. Not new, but good

BILL.

First race—SUN MAKER should be ready to down a field of this kind. Has the speed and the opposition is ordinary. PRISON SHIP is far down the list but begins to figure in this company. FIERY ANN for the show end.

Second race—COUNSUELLO has the speed of this party and the 7 furlongs is the right route. STRUMMING should go well in a field of this sort. WAUGH SCOUT has speed and is dangerous.

Third race—ASTER LADY probably will outrun this gang to the first turn. If she does it will be all over but the pay-off. MICROPLAY won last out and gave indications of going this route. MY GRACIOUS to take care of the others.

Fourth race—ACE OF TRUMPS has been grooming for a race at this distance. Palumbo will do the riding and I see no reason for mistakes. NIJINSKY belongs close despite that 116-pound assignment. SETTLER for the show award.

Fifth race — MINSTON was messed about at the first turn and weakened after getting to the front last out. With better racing luck, this one should take it all. MAN AT ARMS closed with bold rush last out. Feather weight gives BRAINCHILD a chance.

Sixth race—TIME HER appears ready to handle a field of this caliber. Gets in light and has her speed. The Cedar Hill Farm entry of MIKE'S GRACE and NEVER HOME is dangerous. LAST BET belongs in the money circle.

Seventh race—THE SWAGMAN turned in a good effort recently and gets the No. 1 post position for this test. I see no reason for mistakes. SEA FINN likes the route and is rounding into shape. BROOKE HEROD and VICTORY LIGHT are good ones on the reserve list.

Eighth race—PENNY ARCODE gets another chance. Gets in light and should make the most of the inside position. TRANSDAY and WAR RUMOR for the place and show positions.

Substitute—If this event is used, I'll take STEALING HOME, LENA GIRL and HIGH AIM.

Best bet—SUN MAKER.

WHY, CER

D. C. Insurance Sales Rise 9% In 5 Months

Washington life insurance sales in May totaled $5,967,000, practically unchanged as compared with the same 1940 month but 6 per cent higher than the five-year average from 1936-1940.

The Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford added that District of Columbia ordinary sales in the first five months this year aggregated $28,648,000, a 9 per cent gain over the same period last year and 1 per cent higher than the five-year average.

Increases were more notable in the nearby States of Virginia and Maryland, the same source reported. Virginia life insurance sales in May advanced 8 per cent to $9,073,000 and the State's five-month volume was 3 per cent heavier at $42,303,000.

Maryland sales in May advanced 8 per cent to $9,162,000 and its five-month volume increased 6 per cent to $42,507,000.

Nationally, insurance sales in May increased 5 per cent to $804,162,000 and five-month volume was 4 per cent higher at $3,859,901,000.

Extra Dividend Voted

Directors of the Real Estate Title Insurance Co. have voted the semiannual dividend of 3 per cent, payable June 30. The board has also declared the usual 3 per cent selannual payment on the stock of the Columbia Title Insurnace Co., payable on the same date.

Few Banks Suspend

The Federal Reserve Board reports that five banks were suspended in the first four months of this year. In all of 1940, 22 suspended.

In the January-April period, the banks closed included two national banks and three State banks. All had Federal deposit insurance covering their $2,436,000 aggregate deposits.

Chile Redeems Bonds

Rodolfo Michels, Chilean Ambassador, disclosed that Chile has resumed "little by little" the redemption of its bonds halted when amortization funds were required for relief of the region hit by the 1939 earthquake.

The Chilean Government's action was disclosed in a written statement issued at the embassy last night stating:

"Although there still exist circumstances which include the Government of Chile to apply the funds for the amortization of the foreign dept to financing the plan for redemption of bonds, temporarily postponed by the measure, has been renewed little by little.

"The Government cherishes the hope that these redemptions will be continued and even increased until the normal scale is reached."

Staples Drop On Rumors of More Curbs

By the Associated Press

There was a partial turning of the price tide in commodity futures markets yesterday and some important staples registered sizable losses on speculative profit-taking. The selling urge was quickened by fresh talk of Washington action to keep speculation within bounds.

Chicago wheat, and New York cotton and cottonseed oil, pacemakers in the June upturn, were reactionary. The cereal closed down 1¼ to 1½ cents a pound; cotton lost 60 cents a bale and cottonseed oil finished .12 of a cent a pound higher to .09 of a cent lower.

Hints of possible repressive action were aimed at cottonseed oil, but despite considerable unloading by traders the market remained resistant due to continued strength in refined vegetable oils.

Other New York markets showed the following changes: Santos coffee, down .02 to .06 of a cent a pound; wool tops, .01 of a cent lower to .2 higher; rubber, unchanged to .11 of a cent higher; hides, unchanged to .06 of a cent lower. Domestic and world sugar contracts improved. Silk dropped 1½ to 3½ cents.

Cash markets were apparently unaffected by irregularity in futures. Further broad demand was indicated by a rise in the Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples to 87.54 per cent of the 1926 average, a new four-year high. This compared with 87.37 per cent Tuesday.

Foreign Exchange

New York, June 18 (AP).—The Canadian dollar closed ⅛ cent higher at 88⅞ United States cents in foreign exchange dealings today.

The "free" British pound sterling eased ⅛ cent.

Other major foreign currencies ended unchanged from the preceding session's close.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian Control Board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying, 9.91 per cent; selling, 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market, 11⅛ per cent discount, or 88.18¾ U. S. cents.

New York Cotton

New York, June 18 (AP).—Cotton futures slipped off 15 points today on tapering of trade buying. Narrower demand for cotton trade was in line with a recession in volume in the Worth Street textile market after several days of large turnover.

For a time in the early trading prices ruled at new highs for the last four years. A sharp decline in Chicago wheat inspired some professional selling.

Worth Street sources estimated the day's business in print cloths and other popular fabrics at better than 5,000,000 yards, somewhat under the average of recent days.

Cotton exports Tuesday, none; season so far, 997,896 bales; port receipts 13,062; port stocks 3,322,191.

$73,764,450 Plane Order Goes to Martin

By the Associated Press

The War Department has awarded a $73,764,450 contract to the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, which manufactures bombers for the United States and Britain. The order was for planes and spare parts.

The Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Paterson, N. J., received a $7,977,503 order for engines and spare parts.

Meanwhile the Commerce Department disclosed yesterday 591 airplanes were shipped to Great Britain and other countries in April—an increase of 110 planes over March.

The department no longer says exactly where such shipments go, but presumably nearly all of them went to the British Empire or China.

The airplanes were valued at $47,077,905, compared with a $27,506,424 valuation on the March craft.

Shipment of extra airplane engines, however, declined from 1,102 engines, worth $13,782,140, in March to 700 engines, worth $8,223,894, in April.

Exports of engine parts and accessories increased from $2,914,289 in March to $3,115,552 in April, setting a record for this classification.

Other April aeronautic shipments included $61,205 of parachutes and parts, $658,549 of instruments and parts, $1,879,132 of propellers and parts, and $5,266,603 of other airplane parts and accessories. With the total of $66,282,840 of all kinds of airplanes and equipment exported in April, aeronautic shipments in the first four months of the year totaled $190,646,643, nearly double the amount of the similar period last year.

Todd Shipyards Plans Expansion

New York, June 18 (AP).—John D. Reilly, president of Todd Shipyards Corporation, said today the company was considering an important expansion program to facilitate production under Government contracts.

Reilly told stockholders at the annual meeting that the Maritime Commission had asked the company to submit data looking toward construction of two additional ways at its South Portland, Me., and Richmond, Calif., yards.

In addition, he said, the Navy Department has requested the company to consider building some additional destroyers at the Seattle-Takoma yards, these to be turned out after completion of present contracts for 1,500 and 2,100-ton destroyers.

Pennsy R. R. Places $23,000,000 Orders

Philadelphia, June 18 (AP).—President M. W. Clement announced today the Pennsylvania Railroad has placed orders for $23,000,000 worth of new equipment, including 6,020 freight cars, 50 cabin cars, 15 electric locomotives and 12 steam locomotive tenders.

The equipment is in addition to an order for 7,245 freight cars placed early this year.

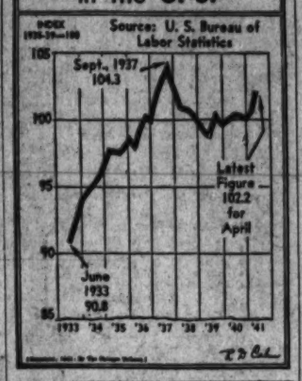
Cost of Living in the U. S.



Living Costs Ape Pattern Of 1914-16

By the Associated Press

New York, June 18.—The National Industrial Conference Board said today in a survey that the cost of living in many countries was following "much the same course in this war as it did in the early years of the World War."

The ratio of rise has shown variations but the general trend has been upward, the conference board said, adding that "while living costs rose in the first year or two of the World War, the really phenomenal advances occurred generally near the end of the war and usually reached their peaks in the early postwar years."

Early in both war periods, said the survey, increases were relatively great in the United Kingdom and small in the United States.

By September, 1940, England's living costs had advanced 21 per cent; by July, 1915, they had gone up 25 per cent.

In the United States living costs were practically stationary in the first year of the World War; in the first year of this war they advanced 2 per cent. They are now about 4 per cent higher than in August, 1939, according to the conference board, a research organization.

R. G. LeTourneau Stock Is Offered

Alex. Brown & Sons heads a banking group that will offer today 30,000 shares of R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., $4.50 cumulative convertible preferred stock, without par value, at $101 a share and accrued dividends from June 1.

Of the net proceeds, the company will use $1,445,000 for the payment of outstanding short term loans and to reimburse the treasury for the purchase price of the Peoria plant recently acquired, and the balance as an addition to working capital.

The preferred stock is convertible into common stock at the rate of 2½ to 1.

R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., is the world's largest manufacturer of tractor-drawn grading and earth-moving equipment.

$36.32 Dividend Voted by Utility

Miami, Fla., June 18 (AP).—Five thousand stockholders of the Florida Power & Light Co. will receive $5,671,000 about July 1 in full payment of all back dividends.

The payment is made possible through the sale of the Miami Water Co. to the City of Miami, and of the Miami Beach Railway Co. to interests headed by W. D. Pawley, airplane manufacturer.

McGregor Smith, power company president, said the dividend amounts to $36.32 a share on the $7 preferred stock.

Cottonseed Oil Price Moves Scrutinized

By the Associated Press

Price administration officials said yesterday that they were "studying" recent increases in cottonseed oil qubtations but they gave no indication that any immediate action would be taken.

These studies cover both cottonseed oil and cottonseed oil futures. Recent prices have been around 11¾ cents a pound for the oil compared with the 8.15 cents in April. Cottonseed oil is used in vegetable shortenings and salad oils.

Suit Is Dismissed

Wilmington, Del., June 18 (AP).—The Court of Chancery today dismissed the action brought by Harriet Mnuchin, the holder of 10 shares of stock of Pepsi-Cola Co., to enjoin the proposed merger of Pepsi-Cola Co. and Loft, Inc. Court costs were paid by the complainant.

C. & S. Plans To Liquidate Senior Issues

By the Associated Press

Wilmington, Del., June 18.—Stockholders of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation were told today by Justin R. Whiting, president, that a plan for liquidation of the preferred stock is "under consideration by the management."

The plan, he said, contemplates distribution of common stock the corporation now holds in Consumers Power Co., Central Illinois Light Co., Ohio Edison Co., and Pennsylvania Power Co.

The changes are proposed to bring the corporate financial setup into line with Securities Exchange Commission requirements.

If the program meets with SEC approval and can be carried out, Whiting said, the Commonwealth management believes it will be able to prove that the company's Southern group of properties would constitute an integrated system as defined by the Public Utility Holding Act and the corporation could continue to hold all.

The Southern group consists of Georgia Power, Alabama Power, South Carolina Power, Mississippi Power and Gulf Power.

The program was regarded as terminating the company's prolonged fight against dismemberment under the Public Utility Act's integration provision—a fight long led by Wendell L. Willkie, former president of the company.

If the plan is carried out, Whiting said, it is expected that the Mutual Service Co., now owned by Commonwealth's operating subsidiaries, would be reorganized into two separate companies, so that the companies whose stocks are distributed in return for Commonwealth preferred shares would own a separate service.

No action was taken on the plan, which Whiting classed as tentative. The plan must be approved by the SEC and by five New York banks with which Commonwealth recently negotiated a $17,000,000 loan before it can be presented to stockholders, he said.

The past year has been one of expansion, and the present year will see the same type of activity, Whiting reported to the stockholders. The company spent appproximately $38,500,00 in property investment last year and will probably total $43,000,000 this year, he said.

William H. Roarke, representing an organization called The Right to Work, addresssed the meeting, asking the management to employ non-union labor wherever possible.

Week's Power Output Expands 0.5 Per Cent

New York, June 18 (AP).—Electric power production climbed to a new high record for the week ended June 14, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Output of 3,087,344,000 kilowatt hours compared with a revised total of 3,042,128,000 in the preceding week, or a gain of .5 of 1 per cent, or the similar period a year ago production was 2,664,853,000, an increase of 14.7 per cent.

The expansion in output was less than seasonally expected and the Associated Press index of electric power production declined to 145.2 from 146.4 the previous week. A year ago the figure stood at 128.3.

Newspaper Advertising Mounts 2.2% in May

New York, June 18 (AP).—The monthly index of newspaper advertising compiled by Printers' Ink showed an advance of 2.2 per cent in May over April when adjusted for normal seasonal variations, the publication said today.

The index was also 2.2 per cent higher than the corresponding month a year ago.

Stocks Dive at Close But Hold Part Of Early Rise; Trading Is More Active

New York, June 18.—A last-minute selling attack failed to smash a general stock market advance today and leaders extended the previous session's gains.

Closing prices, however, rarely resembled the figures attained earlier in the day, for the sell-off chopped major fractions out of some quotations which, previously, had established new 1941 highs.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks lifted .2 of a point at 41.8. Transactions totaled 576,240 shares compared with 403,880 yesterday.

Most of the dealings took place in the morning, while prices still were on their way up. The first two hours more than doubled yesterday morning's operations. Then the market turned virtually stagnant in prelude to the dive finale.

At the last, it was seen that of 768 issues traded, 355 had advanced and 208 had declined, leaving 205 unchanged.

Although commentators regarded the downturn as evidence mainly of profit-taking, it coincided with publication of predictions of a Turkish-German agreement. Previously reports of successful British operations across the Channel and in the Near East had assisted trading optimism.

On the upside at the last were Commonwealth & Southern preferred (with a new 1941 high mark), Air Reduction, American Can, Westinghouse, Dupont, Johns-Manville, Eastman, J. I. Case Pennsylvania Railroad, and Youngstown.

Loft ended ⅛ lower after it reached a peak for the year. Also behind, after riding with plus signs through virtually the whole session, were United States Steel, Bethlehem, United States Rubber, United Aircraft, Western Union, Santa Fe and Great Northern preferred.

In the Curb, where 91,000 shares changed hands compared with 68,000 yesterday, advancers included Heyden Chemical Aluminum of America, New York shipbuilding founders shares, Singer Manufacturing, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Royal Typewriter.

Railroad issues edged a little higher in today's bond market as the main list showed slight inclination to move from Tuesday's prices. Obligations of Belgium were again strong.

The four main divisions in the Associated Press averages closed unchanged, leaving only the foreign group to slip .2 of a point to 45.5. Turnover of $4,925,400, par value, compared with $5,531,000 yesterday.

While the carrier division had the most numerous and best gains, even here there were any number of issues closing unchanged or a shade lower. Among the better performers were Atlantic Coast line first 4s at 76¾, Erie Convertible 4s at 51¼ and 5s of 1975 at 27, Great Northern 4s at 100⅞ and St. Paul 5s at 8⅝.

United States governments shared in the general apathy. On the stock exchange final prices were 3-32 higher to 3-32 of a point lower and over the counter a correspondingly narrow range prevailed.

Obligations of Belgium soared for the second day in succession and no one in the street could find a specific reason for it. The government 6s moved up 8¼ points to 82¼ on sale of 3 bonds. The 6½s added 10 points at 84 also on exchange of 3 bonds and the 7s gained 2 at 80 on transfer of 2.

Bonds of Italy, Japan and Germany were mostly lower.

Tin Can Shortage By 1942 Foreseen: Substitutes Urged

Pittsburgh, June 18 (AP).—Experimentation to find packaging substitutes for tin cans to combat a growing shortage of tin was urged by R. S. McBride, food consultant of Washington, in an address to the Insitute of Food Technologists meeting here today.

Predicting that "we will not have enough tin for food packaging along conventional lines by 1942," McBride suggested the use of substitutes in which no shortage threatens, increased use of returnable containers and possibly "some old fashioned crude, bulk packaging methods characteristic of the general store cracker barrel days."

To Holders of Funds for 1st Mortgage Investments:

For some time there has existed some difficulty in securing prime investments in 1st mortgages, which form of investment has long been considered as probably the safest for those who cannot afford to take a risk.

There has been an abundance of funds for such investments, but existing conditions have caused competition with a certain class of the present day form of financing that many of the loans offered are considered "full" by conservative appraisers.

While the majority of first mortgages at the present time are being made at 4½% interest, and some at 4%, opportunities still exist for moderate size loans, mostly on home properties, that may be termed "seasoned", but still modern and not too old, for which in many instances, 5% interest may be obtained, with a safe margin of security.

We will gladly furnish prospective investors with full particulars, as applications are received--no obligation of course.

Co-operation of brokers invited.

"MOORE & HILL" since 1900--"Never a loss to an Investor."

Faithfully yours,
MOORE & HILL COMPANY

Contract Bridge

The following hand would have landed in the right contract if a jump bid had been made. This time it was the original bidder's fault.

"What should my bidding have been on this hand?" he writes. "I was dealer and handed myself these cards:

♠ AK985
♡ AKJ7
◇ 843

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

"When the hand was over and we were chalking up two overtricks, my partner suggested that I was a bit cautious to say the least. I told him I didn't believe my hand had much potentiality after his minimum response of one no trump. What say you?"

East's hand is so powerful that a more encouraging reply than one no trump by his partner should interest him in a slam. As it is, he should say three hearts.

In many cases a partnership can reach a game, occasionally a slam, with a series of minimum bids, each one adding something to the information already conveyed. But if one player holds a very strong hand which will make game opposite as little as a king and queen, then he must stimulate his partner's interest in the hand with a jump shift.

Over three hearts, a bid of one more than necessary, West must bid again. He will probably take a preference of either spades or hearts and East can then go to game.

Leading stars of stage, screen and radio (why it's never "radio, screen and stage" would be hard to say, but it never is) have been enlisted by the Treasury Department to take part in its Defense Savings Bond program, "Millions for Defense," which you'll hear over WJSV and the Columbia network beginning Wednesday, July 2.

Unlike most blurbs, however, which announce "leading stars" and then go on to produce some bit players of whom you've heard little, if at all, those taking part are really "leading." Fred Allen, whose weekly CBS program the Defense Bond series is replacing, will be master of ceremonies for the first show, whose cast includes Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and Charles Laughton, from Hollywood, and Clifton Fadiman, John Kieran, Franklin P. Adams and Oscar Levant, of "Information Please," and Grace Moore, of the Metropolitan Opera, from New York. Mickey and Judy are to sing Irving Berlin's new "Any Bonds Today?" and Charles Laughton is to give his now-famous rendition of "The Gettysburg Address."

The July 2 program will inaugurate a series of 13 hour-long programs which have been donated by the sponsor (Texaco) and C. B. S. to stimulate bond sales.

Guests to appear on later programs include Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Lily Pons, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Bob Ripley, George Jessel, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Deanna Durbin, Bette Davis, Abbott and Costello and—oh well, you think of a "leading" name.

I'LL SEE INSPECTOR!

I'M SORRY, INSPECTOR! WE HAVE NO FILE FOR THAT MAN!
I WAS AFRAID THERE WOULDN'T BE ONE, MICKEY! I NEVER HEARD OF HIM TAKING A RAP!

DO YOU PLAY MUCH BRIDGE, MR. GREEN?
OH, I PLAY AT IT NOW AND THEN—JUS. LIKE TONIGHT

I TRY TO TELL HIM
WELL, IN THE FIRST PLACE, REMEMBER TO COUNT TRUMPS AND WATCH WHAT HAS BEEN PLAYED
